Rundstedt's Bulge Shrinks to Ourthe River Valley.

PARIS, Jan. 13 [Saturday]—(AP).—Field Marshal von Rundstedt's Belgian bulge had shrunk all the way east to the valley of the Ourthe river today as German troops, ending all organized resistance at the western end of their salient, backtracked toward the reich with three allied armies in pursuit.

[The German withdrawal from the Ardennes salient "does not seem to have been concluded," the Berlin radio said today.]

The allied forces, which have wiped out at least 20 German divisions since the enemy struck thru the Ardennes forest four weeks ago, made advances of three to four miles yesterday across snow-covered fields against German rear guard action.

As the tide of battle ebbed here, it rose abruptly in northeastern France, but doughboys were healing a breach in the old Maginot line and had driven the enemy from all except the south edge of Rittershoffen, a village eight miles south of the reich border north of Strasbourg.

1st Army Gains Three Miles.

With skill born of similar reversals on the Russian front, the Germans withdrew from their extended positions in Belgium without stranding sizable forces, altho Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army succeeded in cutting up their troops boxed east of Bastogne.

The United States 1st army struck three miles south from Laroche, overrunning a number of abandoned villages and fanned out east toward Wibrin.

The British 2d army, moving four miles in from the west, joined up with the United States 3d army near the fallen southwest cornerstone city of St. Hubert, lopping off the westermost tip of the Ardennes wedge. This tip is seven to 10 miles long and nearly 10 miles wide.

Here the three armies, racing across 100 square miles of abandoned territory, had to contend primarily with road blocks and mine fields, but farther east the Germans were stiffening against 1st army surges against the northern shoulder which must be held if Von Rundstedt is to pull out his forces. Already the Americans are two and a half miles from Von Rundstedt's main escape route.

Nazis Speed Up Withdrawal.

In order to salvage his forces, Von Rundstedt was accelerating the withdrawal on the southern flank where the 3d army was lunging at his lines at two points from Bastogne 10 miles east to the mountains of northern Luxemburg. Where the Germans will elect to stand was a question.

One front dispatch tonight said

RUSSIANS OPEN 'BIGGEST DRIVE OF ALL TIME'

LONDON, Jan. 13 [Saturday]—(AP).—Berlin reports said last night that the long awaited Russian winter offensive in southern Poland, which began at dawn yesterday, is "the biggest of all time." The Germans said the drive, on a broad front west of the Vistula river bridgehead town of Baranow, 120 miles below Warsaw, had penetrated the German lines amid "extremely violent fighting."

The new push came as Moscow announced that soviet shock troops had hurled the remnants of the German garrison at Budapest into a five square mile pocket in the heart of the Hungarian capital.

A late report from Berlin to the Stockholm Dagens Nyheter described the Russian Polish offensive as the greatest yet launched. The Russians are attacking "with 500 heavy guns, two air fleets, several tank armies, and innumerable infantry divisions," it said.

Push Toward Silesia.

The drive apparently was aimed at Kielce and Krakow, last major strongholds protecting German Silesia. When fighting subsided last August in this area—the shortest route to Germany's heart—the Russians held positions only 20 miles southeast of Kielce, rail town connecting Krakow with German held Warsaw, 93 miles northeast of Kielce.

At that time the Russians also were within 37 miles northeast of Krakow and within 75 miles of industrially rich Silesia, which has been a target of American heavy bombers.

Gain Inside Budapest.

Inside wrecked Budapest the Russians, using flame throwers, tanks, and tommy-gun teams, captured another 135 blocks, and also took the city park [varoliget], the Kerepesi cemetery, an oil refinery, army factory, and other buildings. All these are in Pest, the half of Budapest lying east of the Danube.

A midnight soviet bulletin also said that Hungarian patriots had risen and were firing on the Germans from cellars, rooftops, and street barricades. One group bombed a restaurant, killing 20 Nazi officers. In retaliation the Germans are blowing up houses and public buildings without warning and "thousands of civilians are perishing in the ruins," Moscow said.

Another 1,270 German and Hungarian prisoners were taken, making a total of nearly 11,000 seized in 16 days. In the same period it is estimated that the Russians have killed more than 15,000 of the enemy.

Convict Girls Who Aid Nazis in U. S. to Flee

Bay City, Mich., Jan. 12 [Special].—A federal court jury of eight women and four men tonight returned verdicts of guilty against two American girls accused of assisting in the escape of two Nazi prisoners of war they had met as fellow workers in a canning factory.

The jury required four and one half hours to decide on the girls' guilt after pondering testimony that wholesale drinking was a common practice in the factory, that love notes passed with ease between civilian American girls and prisoners, and that girl workers attended frequent midnight petting parties in the prisoners' stockade.

Those convicted were Kitty Marie Case, 21, and Shirley Jean Druce, 19, residents of Owosso, Mich., and former employes of the Roach Canning company plant there.

Discharged from Plant.

According to testimony during the three day trial, the girls were discharged from the plant in mid-July for fraternizing with prisoners and thereafter arranged thru an exchange of notes with two prisoners for them to sneak out of the plant to an automobile which the girls agreed to have waiting.

The prisoners, Gottfried Hobel, 20, and Eric Claasen, 20, privates in the German army, eluded guards and kept the appointment on July 20. They were recaptured in the company of the girls the following day after the quartet had spent the night in a woods adjoining Colby lake, near here.

Judge Frank A. Picard deferred sentencing the girls until Feb. 13 and told them they were "lucky you were not charged with something more serious under the circumstances." The formal charge on which they were convicted was "conspiracy to defraud the government of its legal function in retaining lawful custody of prisoners of war under the Geneva convention." It carries a maximum penalty of two years imprisonment and $10,000 fine.

Girl's Father in Navy.

Judge Picard commented that there were "extenuating circumstances" in the case which he wished to study. One of these, he said, was that Kitty's father, Ralph Case, is in the United States navy and was stationed at Pearl Harbor at the time of the Japanese attack. The girls were allowed to remain at liberty on bonds of $1,000 each.

Kitty testified the automobile used in the escape belonged to her aunt and was driven by her sister, Phylis, 17. She said Phylis took them to Colby lake but became frightened and returned alone to Owosso where she told her mother, Mrs. Alberta Case. The mother informed the sheriff and a manhunt followed which ended in capture of the Nazis the next day.

Kitty denied she was consciously aiding the Nazis in an escape, insisting she had merely arranged a night out "as a lark." She testified, however, that she is in love with Hobel and said he plans to marry her.

200 Women in Plant.

Both Kitty and Shirley asserted conditions in the canning factory were favorable to fraternization. Kitty said she went to work there last June and that there were 250 civilians, mostly women, and 300 German prisoners, employed there.

Kitty said whisky bottles often passed from hand to hand among the workers. She became acquainted with Hobel, she said, thru a note which he passed to her and for several weeks carried on a note writing love affair with him. Hobel knew some English, she said, and she used a German-English dictionary.

On one occasion, Kitty said, one of the military police on duty in the factory gave her a note from a prisoner and suggested she answer it. She spoke of a foreman "who sometimes brought a bottle."

Asked if she had attended "petting parties" at the prisoners' stockade, located about 7 miles from the factory, Kitty admitted she had visited the stockade at night but said she had done so only out of curiosity.

Yank Captain Gets Warning on His Future

It was the considered opinion of Chicago members of the medical profession last night that the future of Capt. Peter Beal, former dermatologist with the University of Chicago Billings clinic, has not been endangered by publicity given his work in the Philippines. Arthur Veysey, Tribune correspondent, recently told how Capt. Beal and his associates are treating tropical skin infections suffered by Yanks on Leyte.

Their opinion, however, was not shared by Dr. Stephen Rothman, director of the division of dermatology, department of sciences, at the university. Dr. Rothman, after reading of Dr. Beal's work at the front, wrote to Mrs. Lecelia Beal, the young army physician's wife, who lives at 1345 Rosedale av., warning her and her husband not to become involved in such publicity again.

Once Fought Against Allies.

Dr. Rothman, who as a Budapest student fought against the allies in World War I. and who came to the University of Chicago in 1938, explained last night that he intended his letter as advice to a young member of the profession.

Dr. Rothman, who obtained his citizenship here in May, 1944, said he did not like the story about Dr. Beal for two reasons. One was that Veysey referred to Capt. Beal as an "expert" when Beal had been in Rothman's department only a few months, and the other was the implication that Capt. Beal is finding new skin fungi. "It takes about two years to make such a determination," Dr. Rothman said.

Seeks New Fungi to Conquer.

To Mrs. Beal Dr. Rothman wrote: "My main problem in this matter is to warn you, and indirectly Peter, not to become involved in such kind of publicity again."

Chicago dermatologists said that they did not see anything in the story to harm Dr. Beal in the profession. Dr. Edward Oliver, head of the dermatology department of the Northwestern university medical school, said: "We're proud of our young doctors at the fighting fronts. My son is with a bomber squadron. I'm sure Dr. Beal has nothing to fear from that story."

Dr. James Herbert Mitchell, dermatologist at the Presbyterian hospital, saw no harm in the story.

Mrs. Beal, however, referring to Dr. Rothman's warning, said she was "crushed" by the fear that because she commented on her husband she might have hurt his future.

(Editor's note—The Tribune cabled Arthur Veysey last night: "Congratulations Beal story. Send more stories Chicago medical men.")

Nazi 'Women Drivers' Are Boys

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY, Jan. 12.—A familiar rumor has it that Hitler is using woman tank and truck drivers, proving his shortage of man power. Yesterday the commanding officer of a combat unit reported he observed two dead women drivers of enemy ammunition trucks lying in a ditch beside their wrecked vehicles, adding he "recognized them as females by their long hair and comely features."

A couple of G. I.s were sent forward to identify and bury the women. They returned from the job with the explanation the corpses were two beardless boys, about 16, wearing their long, blond hair combed back as lads do. They produced safety razors from the dead lads' effects as proof.

The Germans dropped thousands of propaganda leaflets over Roermond yesterday, exhorting the Yanks to quit fighting with the usual old arguments. The G. I.s scrambled desperately to grab the leaflets as souvenirs.

Details of the German air raids on Brussels and Eindhoven New Year's day disclosed a shortage of skilled pilots. In the 1,000 fighter bombers employed in the raids, personnel included aviators still undergoing training.

Against the combination of intensive allied fighter interception and violent anti-aircraft fire, few planes reached their objectives, many pilots refusing to follow the JU-88 pathfinders over the targets and evincing a preference to turn away and jettison their loads.

Breaking formation proved fatal, however, as allied fighters ripped thru the scattering units, shooting down 160 planes, while the ground batteries knocked down the amazing score of 300, making the total losses almost 50 per cent. Sixty pilots were captured.

PLANES SINK 12 LOADED TRANSPORTS; M'ARTHUR 12 MILES INLAND ON LUZON

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Luzon, Jan. 13 [Saturday]—(AP).—Forty-six small Japanese freighters and one large transport attempting to unload at San Fernando, port 45 miles north of the Yank beachhead on Luzon Island, have been smashed by Vice Adm. Kinkaid's 7th fleet, Gen. MacArthur announced today.

Torpedo planes attacked at dawn Wednesday but were driven off by intense anti-aircraft fire. Five of Kinkaid's destroyers then steamed in and made short work of the audacious enemy reënforcement try, sinking or heavily damaging the entire enemy fleet.

The warships then turned their guns to shore and shelled the port area, destroying three large ammunition dumps.

"Advance Unchecked."

The Yanks have seized the terminals of four major highways leading to Manila as well as more than 10 miles of the only railroad from Lingayen gulf to the capital.

The 6th army invaders have penetrated 12 miles from their original beachheads, gaining three miles in one day.

Increasing contact with the enemy was noted in MacArthur's bulletin, indicating that forward elements were entering zones of enemy concentrations.

Sharp fighting was reported along the Manaoag-Pozorrubio road on the east flank, where MacArthur yesterday reported first appreciable contact with the enemy.

Calls for Planes' Support.

Associated Press Correspondent Spencer Davis said the Yank ground forces called for air support. Navy Wildcats responded with a 30 minute rocket barrage. The infantrymen then pushed ahead and found a number of abandoned pillboxes, two machine guns and five dead Japanese.

Front line dispatches disclosed the use of tanks in the American advance, altho none had been mentioned in the bulletins. The open country is highly advantageous for tank warfare down the 100 miles to Manila. The Japanese used light tanks in their southward march down the same broad valley three years ago.

Take Highway Hub.

The important city of San Carlos, where five main highways intersect, was captured. It is in the center of the valley at the deepest point of penetration. Malasiqui, another highway junction to the east, also was captured, both on Thursday.

MacArthur said American planes

TELL LAST HOUR OF 3 DESTROYERS LOST IN TYPHOON

[This is the first detailed account of the capsizing of three American destroyers during a recent typhoon in the Western Pacific. Loss of the destroyers was announced Wednesday by the navy.]

[By wireless to the New York News and The Chicago Tribune.]

WITH U. S. 3D FLEET AT SEA—[Delayed].—Mountainous waves and a 115 knot wind during a typhoon in recent combat operations in the Western Pacific dealt a heavy blow to the fleet, capsizing three destroyers and damaging smaller warships with a loss of more than 50 lives.

Sunk were the 1,500 ton destroyers Hull and Monaghan, and the 2,100 ton Spence. Their steering controls had been torn away. Several other escort craft were damaged but they were able to proceed to port.

Flshed from Sea.

Henry John Deters, 28, of Boston, chief machinist's mate of the Spence, was fished from the sea after 50 hours in the water. He said the Spence had been rolling about 75 degrees continuously, but suddenly listed to port and balanced there for about 10 seconds. All lights were out when the ship, with a lurch, rolled over on her side and a minute later sank.

Many in the crew boarded life rafts in that time, but the waves were so mountainous that most of the survivors had to abandon the small craft. The rafts somersaulted in the water, Deters said, and the Spence herself, just before sinking, bobbed about like a cork.

The fireroom had been taking water thru the vents faster than the pumps could expel it, and many of the casualties were below deck.

Visibility Zero.

One destroyer sighted another vessel off her starboard bow and swerved to avert a collision. This caused her to lose her steering apparatus, a stack, and a whaleboat. Windows were blown from the bridge housing and water entered the vessel's vents 500 to 1,000 gallons at a time.

Visibility was zero and the spray coming over the ship was like needles, the captain said. Men in the engine room worked feverishly, manning the pumps.

All three of the destroyers lost sank on the same day.

Many voluntary acts of heroism at extreme personal risk were performed by men attached to other ships. The crew of a battered destroyer escort rescued 55 survivors from the Hull and Spence at night while the wind was still of gale intensity and the seas were high. A lieutenant and a boatswain's mate dived into the sea twice to rescue exhausted and helpless men from other ships.

Mate Pulled Under.

The next morning the same two, wearing life jackets with lines attached, repeated their dives to make other rescues. While they were pulling one man alongside the ship the vessel rolled, fouled the line of the boatswain's mate and pulled him under the hull three times.

Each time the lieutenant went after him, helped him to divest himself of his life jacket, and pulled him to safety. The third time the boatswain's mate was taken aboard his ship, exhausted and suffering from submersion.

The next afternoon another survivor was spotted in the water about 80 feet off the starboard bow, with a large shark swimming close by. The vessel's executive officer dived overboard when the shark was less than 20 feet from the man in the water.

The officer pulled his man alongside the vessel, but heavy roll sucked the survivor under the hull. A torpedo man, standing by a rescue net, dived into the water and aided the officer in completing the rescue of the then unconscious sailor.

Cruiser and Several Destroyers Sent Down by Bombs.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Jan. 12 (AP)—Carrier planes of the United States 3d fleet are continuing to attack four enemy convoys off French Indo-China after sinking 25 ships including a cruiser, several destroyers, and 12 loaded transports, the first day of the assault yesterday.

Adm. Nimitz announced the sinkings and damage to 13 other enemy ships in a bulletin today. Tonight in a second bulletin he disclosed as additional details that the ships sunk included six enemy transports at Saigon and six at Quinhon harbor, 250 miles northeast.

Heavy Troop Losses.

These transports were being massed for a counter-smash at Gen. MacArthur's invasion scene at Lingayen gulf on Luzon, less than 1,000 miles east of Saigon. The fact the transports were loaded meant heavy losses of enemy soldiers.

Adm. Nimitz also disclosed that an additional 110 Japanese ships and small craft were sunk or crippled and 66 more planes destroyed or damaged in last Monday's attacks on Formosa by carrier planes.

One Cruiser Sent Down.

Adm. Halsey's airmen sank one Katori class light cruiser and several destroyer escorts guarding the convoys off Indo-China. Halsey's flyers also swept inland Indo-China air bases from Saigon 250 miles northeast to Quinhon harbor. Thirty-nine planes were destroyed.

Tonight's bulletin said the inland attacks started numerous fires in the vicinity of Saigon. Bombing and strafing attacks on the Thanh Son Nhut air base near Saigon and at Port Nhabe were particularly successful.

Halsey Achieves Surprise.

Halsey seemed to have achieved almost complete surprise. Only 18 Japanese planes were seen air borne over Saigon, Indo-China's first commercial port. American fighter planes shot down 10 of them.

With Halsey's airmen striking Indo-China air fields simultaneously with carrier plane attacks on the four enemy convoys, it was plain that the Japanese forces were caught almost as they left the great harbor of Camranh bay, east of Saigon.

20 Flying Boats Sunk.

Fifty Japanese planes were found at Thanh Son Nhut air base north of Saigon. Eight of these were destroyed. Twenty flying boats and seaplanes were destroyed in Camranh harbor and Cat-Lai anchorage near Saigon, and at Quinhon harbor.

Another bomber was shot down off the Indo-China coast.

Nimitz's first report of the 3d fleet's dramatic Indo-China foray strongly suggests that Halsey smashed a major Japanese effort to send aid to Luzon. The report that he was continuing his attack discloses weaknesses in air defense at the heart of Japan's empire line running from the nomeland to Singapore, 675 miles south of Saigon.

Super-Battleship Sunk.

Nimitz also announced that the destruction of the new super-battleship, the 45,000 ton Musashi, by air attack last Oct. 24 in the second battle of the Philippine sea, had been confirmed. The Musashi's sister ship, the Yamato, was damaged by bombs. These two vessels were the two most powerful battleships in the Japanese navy.

Nimitz's bulletin said:

Had 9 16 Inch Guns.

The Musashi and the damaged Yamato presumably were in the powerful force including five battleships and 10 heavy cruisers caught by Mitscher's planes in San Bernardino strait.

Armed with nine 16 inch guns and a heavy secondary battery, the Musashi went under construction in 1937 and joined the imperial fleet in the autumn of 1942. She was 870 feet long and had a beam of 139 feet and could cruise at more than 25 knots.

Tells of Formosa Sinkings.

Two Japanese destroyers were sunk and six damaged at Formosa Monday by 3d fleet carrier planes, Adm. Nimitz disclosed in reporting additional achievements by the task forces now in action off Indo-China.

The two destroyers were among 24 additional sinkings listed in the Formsa achievements. The six destroyers or destroyer escorts were among 86 vessels, ranging down to small craft, added to the list of those damaged, a total new bag of 110 ships.

Two destroyers, an oiler, a large cargo ship, two medium cargo ships, and 18 small craft were sunk. The 86 additions to the list of ships damaged were a destroyer, five destroyer escorts, two oilers, five large cargo ships, three medium cargo ships, 28 small ships, and 42 small craft.

Twenty More Planes Downed.

Twenty more planes were destroyed and 44 damaged.

The delay in making the report was occasioned by a radio silence necessary to cover movements of the fleet across the South China sea.

The new losses at Formosa were in addition to those reported in a bulletin Jan. 9. That bulletin, lumping together achievements of Jan. 8 around Formosa and at Okinawa in the Ryukyu Islands, listed 17 Nipponese planes destroyed, 17 damaged, 14 ships sunk, 17 small ships and luggers damaged, and a large tanker left burning.

Land based army Liberators raided Iwo Island in the Volcanos. Marine torpedo planes from the Palau Islands struck Wednesday at enemy air facilities on Yap, in the western Carolines.

U. S. BOMBS BURY BURMA RAILROAD IN A LANDSLIDE

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, Jan. 12 (AP).—Budalin, Japanese stronghold 60 miles northwest of Mandalay, has been captured by British forces from enemy troops who resisted fiercely from concealed bunkers, an allied bulletin announced today.

Mandalay, last remaining railway to the northeast, the Mandalay-Lashio line paralleling the Burma road to China, was blocked yesterday by a huge landslide touched off by 500 and 1,000 pound bombs dropped by Lightning fighters of the 10th United States air force. The bombs, dropped atop a 100 foot cliff, sent hundreds of tons of earth over the tracks.

"This is one of our new schemes by which we are able to deny the Japanese the use of a railway without actually damaging it. We are just putting it on ice until we get there with our ground troops," said Maj. Gen. Howard C. Davidson.

CITY CLUB URGES F.D.R. TO BOOST LAKE DIVERSION

A statement calling for executive action by President Roosevelt to increase the amount of water diversion from Lake Michigan was issued yesterday by governors of the City Club of Chicago. The present condition of water pollution, particularly on the south side, is forcing Chicagoans to drink "too much sewage," the statement said.

Under war time building restrictions, the board of governors said, an increase in water diversion is the only possible answer to the problem of obtaining pure drinking water for the south side and surrounding areas.

Altho public health officials agree that water containing more than 50 coliform bacilli in each 100 cubic centimeters is unsafe after present chlorine treatment, in many months the average count in Chicago has been between 500 and 7,000.

It is expected that Early will make arrangements for a visit by President Roosevelt to France which is generally anticipated here. [In Washington, the White House declined to comment on the story.]

"continued to dominate the sky." Heavy bombers cratered runways and destroyed a number of parked planes at Grace park airdrome in the Manila area. Many locomotives and 40 freight cars were destroyed in fresh attacks on rolling stock virtually the length of Luzon.

Low level strafing attacks wrecked enemy motor columns, destroying more than 200 vehicles and five tanks.

Japanese air activity still was negligible.

American planes again swept oft-bombed enemy airdromes in the central and southern Philippines and harassed shipping at Miri bay and Brunei bay on northern Borneo.

Targets to the south and east included Celebes, the Moluccas, and the northern New Guinea area, where an Australian warship shelled coastal positions at Wewak.

7th Air Force Backs MacArthur.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Jan. 12 (AP).—Adm. Nimitz disclosed today that 7th air force heavy bombers based in the Palaus have been supporting Gen. MacArthur's Philippine operations with attacks on Luzon, Cebu, Negros, and Mactan Islands. The American base at Peleliu is about 1,100 miles southeast of Manila.

The 7th air force under Nimitz' control lent aid to Lt. Gen. Kenney's far eastern air force under MacArthur because of the great difficulty of completing air fields on rain bogged Leyte.

2 MORE CONVOYS: JAPAN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Japanese broadcasts yesterday pictured a third huge American convoy "advancing boldly in the face of our fierce attacks" into Lingayen gulf and admitted the Nipponese have been forced to "yield air mastery" in the gulf area where Gen. MacArthur's troops are smashing toward Manila.

London reported an enemy broadcast, heard in Australia, told of the appearance of two additional American convoys—one of about 150 ships off Panay Island, southeast of American-occupied Mindoro, and another of 100 to 150 ships off Panay's neighboring island of Negros.

CHICAGO YANKS HELP KNOCK OUT TANKS ON LUZON

BY WALTER SIMMONS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES ON LUZON, Jan. 11 [Delayed].—Troops advancing from the village of Umanday didn't see a Jap today. They learned the enemy had left at daybreak after burning the buildings they had occupied and dynamiting two bridges.

A six ton enemy tank was found abandoned at Umanday. Three others had been knocked out earlier at Bugallon, to the north. Two of them were silenced by an 81 mm. mortar unit commanded by Lt. Harvey Jewitt of Bellingham, Wash., Sgt. Roy Hinojosa of Edinburg, Tex., forward fire director, saw a mortar shell land on the hood of one tank. Three rounds silenced both.

Chicagoans in Unit.

Several Chicagoans are in this accurate shooting unit. They are Sgt. Stephen Grudzien, 3946 Artesian av., and Privates Edward Lach, 1220 48th av.; Robert Stempinski, 1628 Beach av., and Edwin Harynek, 1510 N. Campbell av. Pvt. Ralph Mineo of Newton, Ill., is another member.

Three angry carabaos [water buffalo] provided the only opposition to troops entering this town. It was necessary to shoot them after they had injured one man. Yesterday it was different—14 inch naval gun fire was used to rout Japs from a ravine. The slightness of Jap resistance, however, is indicated by the fact that fewer than 40 dead have been counted in this advance.

A unit commander credited Pvt. Lemuel Ferguson of Austin, Tex., with being the first man to plant the American flag on Luzon. Landing in the first wave, he stepped ashore with the flag two minutes after H-hour.

Find No Jap Mines.

Corp. Francis Stasila, 3931 W. 61st pl., Chicago, Ill., member of a mine platoon, said no enemy mines had as yet been found in this area. Other midwesterners in the advance included these Chicagoans:

Sergeants Maurice Stark, 1254 S. Springfield av.; John Kozicki, 3241 S. Avers av., and James Barder, 8739 Marquette av.; Corp. Francis Cincinelli, 4816 N. Winchester av., and Privates Egbert Dost, 1736 N. Talman av.; Raymond Elie, 1709 W. Fletcher st., and Clarence Holcomb, 4920 Quincy st. Lt. Michael Morley of River Forest, Ill., and Pvt. Nicholas Aquelina of Waukegan, Ill., were the others.

WHY NO AUSSIES IN PHILIPPINES? NEWSPAPER ASKS

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Melbourne Sun said today that minor duties had been assigned to Australian land forces in the Pacific, and asked "Who is responsible for this strategy, Gen. MacArthur or the Australian government?"

"Many Australians wonder why Australian fighting men, among the world's finest shock troops, were not used in the attack on the Philippines," the editorial said. "There is every reason to assume that MacArthur, whose high opinion of the prowess of the Australian soldier is well known, would have welcomed one or more Australian divisions."

BRIG. GEN. L. J. SVERDRUP.

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Luzon, Jan. 12 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Leif J. Sverdrup, St. Louis, Mo., today became the first American to be decorated in the Luzon campaign.

Sverdrup, chief engineer officer of Gen. MacArthur's invading army, received the distinguished service cross for "great gallantry" in reconnoitering and seizing Lingayen air field. "This is the engineer soldier at his best," MacArthur said.

FOUR MORE G. I.s SENTENCED FOR TAKING SUPPLIES

PARIS, Jan. 12 (AP).—Heavy prison sentences were imposed on four enlisted men in today's session of the general United States army court martial trying 184 soldiers, including two officers, accused of looting army supply trains and diverting cigarets and other rations into black market channels. Those sentenced and their terms at hard labor:

Pvt. Robert L. Cosgrove, 21, Columbus, O.; Tech. 4th Grade James E. Lemen, 31, Fresno, Cal., and Tech. 5th Grade Howard A. Raubolt, 22, of Wyandotte, Mich., 40 years each, and Sgt. Paul W. Hart, 28, St. Joseph, Mo., 35 years. All were dishonorably discharged and lost their pay allowances.

For the first time since the trials began, the defendants took the witness stand, told their side of the story, and threw themselves on the mercy of the court. One defendant begged the court to keep their names out of the newspapers because "our folks at home won't want us any more."

OSMENA IS BACK IN AMERICA FROM THE PHILIPPINES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12 (AP).—President Sergio Osmena of the Philippine commonwealth has returned from the islands to the United States, the war department announced tonight.

Osmena will confer with various government officials concerning relief and rehabilitation measures for the Filipinos.

Because of hardships he experienced during the reentry of Gen. MacArthur and his forces into the Philippines, President Osmena, now at Jacksonville, Fla., will undergo a physical checkup there before coming to Washington. He will return to the Philippines as soon as he completes his conference here.

ADMIRAL JOINS SAILORS IN FIGHT ON FIRE AT SEA

BY FRANK L. KLUCKHOHN.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

ABOARD A UNITED STATES WARSHIP IN LINGAYEN GULF, Jan. 6 [Delayed].—Above me flames are burning high. Fragments are raining upon the thin metal covering overhead. The wounded are being carried or are staggering past. It is Jan. 6.

We've been hit in a Japanese air attack for the second time in two days—far inside Lingayen Gulf, just off the beachhead on Luzon where American troops will be in three days' time.

Controls Temporarily Gone.

Right now it's worse than hell as we burn topside with an ammunition jammed steel casing threatening to explode any minute and many of our controls temporarily gone.

This hit occurred on the starboard side of the flag bridge, where the admiral is holding the hose with sailors against the blaze, despite his severe burns. He has to be physically ejected from the bridge by his chief of staff, who takes over the fight against the flames, despite burned hands and shock.

Damage crews are swiftly running hoses and employing chemical equipment; electrical units are stringing wires, repairing communications, and medical corpsmen are aiding the wounded. On the bridge some men are blown to pieces, others are burned unrecognizably, but are still living, and many of the wounded fight on.

Keep Place in Line.

About four Jap planes got thru to press the attack. Gunners stayed at their posts and shot down one attacker off the port bow. Others were killed at their guns, with which they remained even after the clear signal. One plane succeeded in scoring a hit on us.

Gradually, the flames are controled. Then, for a time, until we get in control again, we lurch along almost ramming other ships. But under the executive officer—Comdr. W. P. McCarty, the captain having been wounded yesterday—we don't even lose our place in the formation.

Last night we had several planes come in to make a run on us. Our ack-ack bursts ringed an attacking Jap with horrible fury. He was smoking but it was apparent his bombing run would succeed.

Reverses Engines.

Then our skipper swung the ship around and took the main force of the explosion on the forward gun turret, with the ship's bridge getting much of the blast.

His face and hands burned, our captain, smelling burning powder in the turrets, ordered the ship engines reversed so the flames could not blow thru the ship. Then he sent in those cool, calm youngsters of the damage units before being led from the bridge.

The two physicians worked indifferent to anything except caring for the injured.

These are just ordinary American lads. They trained to perfection on a veteran ship. They are seeing their guns rain steel on the Japanese and are watching dogfights between our planes and the enemy's with their own lives in the balance. And they have seen many, many Jap planes explode, burn, and "splash."

At 5 a. m. Jan. 6, we are only seven miles off the landing beaches. We are the first, since the Japanese took over, to see the razor-backed ridges behind the shore line, towns nestling at intervals along the shore line, their buildings clearly distinguishable.

The ships behind us turn their bows to the shore, we finally complying as we all grind toward the shore simultaneously, masts stretching off one after another in the distance.

Shortly thereafter we're hit the second time. We have had funerals with a salute by the marine guard, taps ushering men from under the Stars and Stripes into the sea. A little while ago we had another alert.

JAPAN WILL SEND ACE OF FOREIGN OFFICE TO MOSCOW LEGATION

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Berlin radio said today that Tokyo was sending the political ace of Japan's foreign office, Suemitsu Kadowaki, to Moscow in a shakeup of the Japanese legation there. Accompanying Kadowaki as a counselor in Shoji Ogata, who served as consul in Petropavlovsk on the Kamchatka peninsula in 1935.

Berlin gave no explanation of their assignment to Moscow, but the news was regarded here as significant in view of recent signs of increasing uneasiness in Tokyo over the soviet attitude toward the Pacific war.

LONDON, Jan. 12 [Reuters].—Kojiro Inone, Japanese ambassador in Hungary until 1941, has been nominated Japanese consul general in Dublin, Eire, the German Transocean news agency said today.

CAPT. WERMUTH PENS LONG NOTE FROM JAP CAMP

The fifth and longest message from Capt. Arthur W. Wermuth, 29, the "One Man Army" of the Philippines before the fall of Bataan, arrived here yesterday. His mother, Mrs. Clara Wermuth, reported that while the message was written on a regulation Japanese prisoner's card, it contained the limit of 50 words in the space for personal communications.

The card was addressed to Capt. Wermuth's wife, Jean, a surgical nurse in Traverse City, Mich., and began, as did the card received last August, with the printed statement: "I am interned in Philippine military camp No. 1," followed by "My health is good," the latter word underscored on the printed form. The message proper read:

"Missing you and the family with all my heart. Praying for our reunion in the near future. Have no worries on my concern, for I am as well as can be. Give my love to mother, Talia [his sister], and dad [his father-in-law, Eli P. Wilkins]. Take care of yourself above all things. Regards to all friends."

Capt. Wermuth has sent four cards to his wife, using the home address of his mother's cousin, Mrs. Harry Wolfe, 2628 Farwell av. Five messages, however, have reached his family.

NEW DEAL PICKS FOE OF INQUIRY TO SUCCEED DIES

Hart a Hague Follower; Rankin Also Named.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—Rep. Hart. [D., N. J.], a henchman of Boss Frank Hague of Jersey City, was named chairman of the new house committee on un-American activities by the New Deal leadership today.

Rep. Hart.

Five Democrats were chosen to serve with Hart. They are Representatives Rankin [Miss.], who led the drive on opening day making the committee permanent; Robinson [Utah], Bonner [N. C.], Murdock [Ariz.], and Peterson [Fla.].

Republicans are expected to name Representatives Thomas [N. J.] and Mundt [S. D.], members of the old Dies committee, with several members, including Hoffman [Mich.], under consideration for the third place.

Subject to Confirmation.

The Democratic selections are subject to confirmation by a caucus next week and the entire slate must be approved by house vote.

Hart's appointment violated all congressional precedents because he voted against creation of the committee which he is to direct. Customarily, either the sponsor of a

The Democratic slate was considered a compromise choice between candidates of southern conservatives and northern left wing forces. But four of the six voted against making the committee permanent, it was noted, while Rankin and Peterson voted in the affirmative.

Hart, Robinson and Murdock, moreover, were listed by the CIO as congressmen elected with the support of Sidney Hillman's political action committee, which is fighting to kill the investigation.

Rankin Is Silent.

Rep. Rankin refused comment, remarking that the list was not yet "official."

Hart served in the last congress on the committee investigating the federal communications commission and was one of the majority which voted to hold secret meetings when the evidence threatened to involve high administration officials. He joined in the final report whitewashing the FCC.

Hart was reported to have gone home over the week-end. His friends said that the New Jerseyite, a Roman Catholic, is sincerely opposed to communism and that his investigation of operations against the American system of government would be "on the level." Others noted that Hart has shown an unswerving subservience to New Deal dictates thruout his 10 years in congress.

De Lacy Move Opposed.

Meanwhile some Democrats were indignantly discussing a report that the Democratic members of the ways and means committee, who supervise committee assignments, were giving consideration to the bid of Rep. De Lacy [D., Wash.] for a post on the important naval affairs committee.

De Lacy has been named in committee reports to congress as one of the Communist front leaders in the United States. He was prominent in the American Peace Mobilization and the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties, both organizations stamped subversive by the attorney general.

Thru his affiliation with these groups, De Lacy indorsed anti-war measures during the Stalin-Hitler nonaggression pact but quickly switched to advocacy of America's entry into the war after Germany invaded Russia.

HEATLESS PARIS GETS NEW WOE: HEAVY SNOW

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 12.—Temperatures below freezing and an almost uninterrupted snowfall for 24 hours added today to the hardships of heatless Paris. Employes in most shops and offices worked in overcoats, scarves and hats.

The price paid by the city for street sweeping is only a fraction of what the unemployed draw from the dole for not working. As a result, downtown streets are a sea of slush and streets in some residential districts are blanketed with 18 inches of snow.

The transportation of meat, wheat, potatoes, milk and other necessities by truck has been virtually paralyzed. The snowstorm here was the severest since the winter of 1941-'42.

BULGAR PRINCE GETS LAUGHS IN TREASON TRIAL

Spectators Amused by Innocence Plea.

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP).—Prince Cyril, former regent of Bulgaria, and other political leaders, including former ministers and deputies who have been indicted as war criminals, entered pleas of innocent in the Sofia People's court this week, the Bulgarian radio reported today.

Charged with atrocities against Bulgarian patriots, crimes against the allies, collaboration with the axis, and delaying an ultimate break with Germany, all the defendants asserted they were innocent.

Asked by the prosecutor about the sudden and mysterious death of King Boris, his brother, in September, 1943, Prince Cyril said he believed the death was not natural, but was reluctant to express a further opinion.

Laughter in Court.

The appearance of Cyril was a highlight of the court sessions, the broadcast said, adding: "He made a sensational entry into the hall. He did not bow to the court."

Some of Cyril's protestations of innocence provoked laughter from the court, the radio asserted, and tonight the German DNB agency reported from Vienna that "scandalous scenes occurred during the trial of Cyril as the public interrupted his testimony with unmannerly shouting and sarcasms."

Charged with atrocities against the Partisans, Cyril's defense was that members of his government were "so preoccupied with questions of high policy that they were unable to follow closely the anti-Partisan activities of the police."

"In Hands of Germans."

Cyril said he followed the policies of Boris "because I was in a difficult position," and that he had signed all the laws presented to him "even tho I did not agree with the regents and the government."

Asked by the prosecutor why, after Boris' death, Bulgaria "continued an unfriendly policy toward the soviet union, Britain, and the United States," Cyril answered: "I really do not know how to answer this question. We were in a desperate situation and had to mark time. We were in the hands of the Germans."

Nazi Shell Kills U. S. Red Cross Girl in Belgium

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Jan. 12 (AP).—Anne Kathleen Cullen, 26, of Larchmont, N. Y., the first American Red Cross girl to die thru enemy action on the western front, was killed Dec. 20 when a shell hit an American hospital in Belgium. Miss Cullen, member of a clubmobile group, was buried in a military cemetery.

13 New Members

Thirteen high school students were initiated yesterday afternoon into the Steinmetz chapter of Quill and Scroll, national high school journalistic fraternity. An impressive ceremony before nearly 1,000 boys and girls was held in the school auditorium. A lighted candle, representing truth in journalism, was the center piece for the initiation ritual.

Philip Maxwell, a member of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's editorial staff, gave the address to the initiates. Others speaking were Matthew L. Fitzgerald, new principal of Steinmetz High school, and Harry C. McKinsie, a high school district superintendent.

THEATER OF AIR OPERETTA IS ON W-G-N TONIGHT

The Chicago Theater of the Air will present one of the most tuneful of all operettas—Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta"—from 9 to 10 o'clock tonight before 4,500 guests in the Medinah Temple auditorium. The show will be broadcast over W-G-N, WGNB, sister FM station, and the coast to coast Mutual Broadcasting system. Marion Claire will sing the title role; Angelo Raffaelli, that of Capt. Richard Warrington, an American officer on a pirate search, and Ruth Slater and Arnold Robertson will sing supporting roles.

The musical setting will be provided by Henry Weber and the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus. A cast of 100 persons will participate in the broadcast.

So Many Nazis Captured, Yank Pens Can't Hold All

WITH AN AMERICAN DIVISION NEAR WILTZ, Luxemburg, Jan. 12 (AP).—When the Germans tried to escape from a pocket southeast of Bastogne this infantry division took so many prisoners it didn't know what to do with them. GREEK REGENT SCORES EAM ON HOSTAGE ISSUE

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 12.—Archbishop Damaskinos, regent of Greece, forsook the dignified language common to high churchmen for the first time tonight to issue a bitter denunciation of the EAM leftist liberation front. The prelate's criticisms came less than 24 hours after the truce ending the revolution was signed by the British and delegates of the liberation front central committee.

Damaskinos struck mainly at the liberation front's action in seizing thousands of Greek civilians as hostages during the civil war which will end at 1 a. m. Monday, according to the truce signed last night. British Lt. Gen. R. M. Scobie was unable to persuade the EAM-ELAS delegates to agree to release these hostages, altho the truce terms cover the release both of leftist prisoners held by the British and British and Greek government fighters taken by the guerrilla armies of the front.

[In London, the Associated Press reported, the British government also assailed the EAM on the hostage issue, altho indorsing the truce.]

Assails Use of Force.

Damaskinos did not confine himself to the hostage question. He ripped the whole liberation front stand on the revolution.

"It is my opinion that the present condition is due exclusively to the wish of armed bands to take over all power of authority . . . bands resorted to violence and sought to use the factor of surprise against an unarmed state."

Concluding, Damaskinos, however, offers to arrange meetings between the Plastiras government and the leftist front in order to solve the hostage question and all others by peaceful means. But he warns this will be the last time he intervenes in order to make possible such meetings between Greece's warring factions.

Terms of Truce.

The truce terms include the following points:

1. All service personnel, whatever nationality, including Greek police and gendarmerie, captured by the guerrillas, will be returned.

2. An equal number of ELAS prisoners will be released by the British in exchange.

3. In computing exchanges, no account will be taken of the gravely wounded of both sides, who will be exchanged without regard to numbers.

4. All British civilians captured will be returned, irrespective of the identity of their captors, place where they were captured, or their present locations.

The military section of the terms specifies the general lines to which the guerrillas will withdraw in various areas of Greece.

TURKISH STRAIT PASSES ALLIED ARMS TO RUSSIA

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP).—Turkey is permitting war supplies to be shipped thru the Dardanelles strait to Russia, a British foreign office commentator disclosed today.

The only reason supplies previously had not been sent thru the strait to Russia, the foreign office source said, was because of the danger of air attacks. Shipments began without any objection from the Turkish government once the German air bases in the Ionian sea and the Balkans had been neutralized by the allies, he asserted.

Under terms of the Dardanelles conference at Montreux, Switzerland, in July, 1936, no armed ship is permitted to pass thru the strait in war time. A Washington D. C., report said, however, the right to use the strait for supply ships is automatic under the Montreux convention. According to the Washington source, the United States and Britain told Turkey some time ago they expected to use the strait when Russian ports were ready and that their merchant ships would be armed defensively. Turkey was said to have agreed that this was all provided for at the Montreux convention.

YANK TO HANG FOR MURDER OF ENGLISH ENVOY

ATTLEBRIDGE, England, Jan. 12 [Reuters].—Pvt. George E. Smith Jr., 27, of Pittsburgh, Pa., was found guilty today of having murdered Eric Teichman, 60, former British diplomat, and was sentenced to be hanged.

Pvt. George E. Smith Jr.

Smith swayed as the sentence was read but recovered his composure and smiled when he left the court handcuffed to a guard. He had been tried before a 12 man court-martial.

Smith, who pleaded not guilty but did not take the stand, had been described as a homicidal degenerate by the officer who defended him, 1st Lt. M. Sokarl. Sokarl attempted to establish that Smith was insane.

17 Tattoo Marks.

Smith stripped so that the court could see tattoo marks on his chest, arms, and legs. Names like Patsy, Dick, George, and Mickey were on his chest. One tattoo resembled a baby's face. Others on his arms included a square with a cross. On his right leg was a drawing of a naked girl. Beside the picture was a shamrock and the name Ann. On his left leg were an inverted "thirteen" and a horseshoe. Altogether there were 17 tattoo marks on his body.

The verdict was brought in while Smith, smiling, was chatting with two military policemen. He stood before the 12 members of the court while the president read the verdict.

He Smiles at Guards.

Smith then walked smartly to the table of his counsel and began smiling and nodding to his guards, but he continually licked his lips. He shook hands with Lt. Sokarl just before he was handcuffed and led out.

The verdict and sentence are subject to review by Smith's commanding officer and by the staff of Gen. Eisenhower. Smith also can apply to President Roosevelt for a pardon.

Maj. Charles D. Brockhurst prosecuted Smith. The American killed Teichman when the Briton went to investigate hunters tresspassing on his estate on Dec. 4.

Leonard Wojtacha, a private of Detroit, Mich., alleged to have been Smith's companion on the hunt, faces a charge of having been an accessory to the murder.

MIDWEST YANKS HALT KILLING TO LAUNCH A LIFE

Two Find They're Pretty Good Midwives.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 1ST ARMY IN BELGIUM, Jan. 12—The moon was a cold, pale disk. The night was cold and Tech. Sgt. Elmer Schaeffer, Belleville, Ill., and Pvt. Edward Wynn, Janesville, O., were returning to their lines in the 84th division's sector.

It had been a day and a night of death for soldiers in the American counter-offensive. And like all soldiers moving toward the rear, the minds of these two were fixed on hot chow and a chance to get warm.

As they passed a farmer's cottage they heard the cry of a woman in pain, and so they walked inside. Alone in the agony of childbirth lay a Belgian woman. The fortunes of war had sent her husband to another sector.

Elmer and Ed hadn't had experience in this field but it was obvious that the woman needed a doctor quickly. In stumbling French and with gestures they told the woman they would get a doctor, then rushed toward the nearest village.

Elmer fetched a physician and thought his task had ended, but the elderly doctor pressed the two Yanks into service as midwives and for an hour they boiled water and offered their help. The doctor eventually spanked breath into a seven pound boy. Elmer and Ed wiped the sweat off their brows, shook hands, and sat down weakly.

Said Ed: "If the folks back home hear about this I'll never be able to return." Elmer added: "I'll take my foxhole any time."

Corp. Don McCalla, Becker, Minn., fired his Garand rifle on a target range in the United States. The next time was a few days ago with the 84th division while on patrol. As he was moving over a hill, McCalla saw a German about to open fire. The Minnesota duck shooter opened up first and with his first bullet fired in combat he killed the German.

It happened in Africa, Sicily, and Normandy. It always happens. And two nights ago it happened again in Belgium on the 84th division front.

Sgt. Philip Garliardi, Lindsey, Cal.; Pvt. Everett Blackert, Hoopole, Ill.; and Pvt. Ross Himegaugh, Hartville, O., heard a noise. Certain it was a German party trying to slip thru their line, the three Yanks dispersed, surrounded the noise, and moved in for the kill. They had three pigs on the spot.

Doughboys usually complain that the American bazooka is inferior to the Germans' shoulder firing rocket. But five infantrymen of the 2d division in recent fighting have been credited officially with five Tiger tanks by bazooka fire.

A team composed of Pvt. Joseph T. Nemec, 3004 S. Pulaski rd., Chicago, and Pvt. Samuel M. Distefano, Canonsburg, Pa., claims two tanks destroyed and possibly a third. Pvt. Albert R. Bruner, Evansville, Ind., and Pvt. Eugene Gillen, Jersey City, N. J., reported they fired two rounds and knocked out two tanks. The fifth went to Staff Sgt. Alfred L. Maddux, Trion, Ga., who grabbed a bazooka and fired at an approaching tank, crippling its controls and forcing it to careen into a building.

* *

Sgt. Vernon H. Olson, Newfolden, Minn., commanding a tank destroyer with the 3d armored division, believed the footsteps behind him were those of another G. I. until two doughboys with grim faces shouted, "Halt." It took a lot of arguing on Olson's part to convince them that he was not a German in an American uniform; the man behind was a German walking in to surrender.

Three young men, armed with a wooden toy pistol, were captured by a Chicago avenue police squad early today after they held up four pedestrians along Michigan av. on the near north side in less than 90 minutes.

They are Rocco Prate, 16, of 524 Armour av.; Leo Dash, 17, of 1701 Erie st., and John Stortzman, 16, of 946 N. Racine av. When Policemen Patrick O'Shea, Benjamin Engelter, and Charles Zichus seized them at Wabash av. and Ontario st., Dash tossed the pistol over a fence.

They confessed they robbed Thomas T. Ewing, 868 N. Wabash av., of $8; Frank Grandinette, 230 E. Huron st., of $12, and Joseph Baskel, 640 N. Wabash av., of a package of cigarets. The fourth victim made no report to police.

YANKS AND NAZIS HAVE FIST FIGHT ON ITALY FRONT

ROME, Jan. 12 (AP).—The Italian front has stirred with sharp patrol action in improved weather and the American 5th army has sent raiders deep into enemy territory, the allied command announced today.

One party slipped into Barchetta, near highway No. 65 less than 10 miles south of Bologna, and found the town unoccupied. Another patrol near Disotta, west of highway No. 65, had a combat with the enemy at such close quarters that it wound up as a fist fight.

2 Senators in Palestine Probing Surplus Disposal

JERUSALEM, Palestine, Jan. 12 (AP).—Senators Tunnell [D., Del.] and Burton [R., O.] arrived in Palestine yesterday on a tour of the middle east. They are investigating the disposal of surplus army equipment and American civilian agencies.

Allied Armies Pursue German Forces

4TH CAVALRY'S ICY, INDIAN WAR REWINS LAROCHE

LAROCHE, Belgium, Jan. 12 (AP).—American cavalry fought a muffled and icy Indian style war in recapturing the shattered road junction town of Laroche. The smell of death still is heavy here today.

Members of the United States 4th cavalry regiment, one of the oldest horse outfits in the American army, which is now mechanized, beat the British into the town by a few hours. The 4th is attached to Brig. Gen. Alexander R. Bolling's 84th Railsplitter infantry division.

Laroche is the largest town yet retaken from the Germans in the bulge. Next to Houffalize, it is the most important place in the tip of the salient.

Civilians Suffer Heavily.

Blizzard conditions made this campaign the most difficult yet faced by the Americans on either the western or the Italian fronts. Civilians also suffered heavily from bombing and shelling. Some 200 were buried under debris of what once was a pretty Belgian town nestled at the foot of high, wooded mountains.

The first six or seven emaciated women and children to emerge from cellars and near-by woods when American jeeps rolled in found their homes in ruins.

In driving over the lonely roads up and down the mountains where the highways just cling to the mountainside, one scarcely ever is out of sight of overturned tanks, guns, or tank destroyers. For every tank being lost in battle, both the Americans and Germans are losing one or more to the weather and terrain.

Tanks Slip Off Roads.

In a half mile, observers counted four German tanks which had slipped off the icy roads and tumbled hundreds of feet down the mountains, snapping off six inch trees as if they were twigs.

Late yesterday, a 4th cavalry task force commanded by Col. John C. MacDonald, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, former commandant at Norwich university, avenged the Task Force Hogan.

The 400 men of the Task Force Hogan, commanded by Lt. Col. Sam Hogan of Pharr and Fort Worth, Tex., had to abandon all their equipment in the little town of Marcouray, north of Laroche. The 84th division's cavalry retook Marcouray, driving the Germans back south.

The little village almost was hidden under a mass of tanks, armored cars, trucks, and gun wreckage of the Task Force Hogan. A sprinkling of German vehicles was mixed with the American wreckage.

Not a house stood intact in Marcouray. The area for miles around was littered with the bodies of men, horses, and cows, killed in savage battle.

G. I. STUDIES OFF DUTY; BETTERS U. S. BOMBSIGHT

LONDON, Jan. 12 [Reuters].—Sgt. Sigmund Kramer, 29, Cleveland, O., a bombsight maintenance man, has invented a valued bombsight attachment, it was announced today.

Kramer, who studies calculus off duty, had heard Fortress crews complain of having to make two runs over a target and getting punished the second time as enemy guns got their range. His invention, the altitude drum lock, prevents accidental movement of a knob on the bombsight by a bombardier's knee. With the altitude drum lock fixed, this risk is eliminated and flyers' lives are saved.

Kramer made the first model of his invention, which is used on all modern bombsights in the European theater of operations, from a piece of scrap metal. One of his first inventions was his name, Kramer, which he substituted for Krajewski when he was 21.

367 British Civilians Slain in Month by Flying Bombs

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP).—German V-bombs killed 367 British civilians and seriously injured 847 in December, the ministry of home security disclosed today. The figures represented almost a 50 per cent drop from November. The five year total for civilian casualties was 54,592 killed and 76,799 seriously injured.

BATTLE TO KEEP GERMANS OUT OF ALSACE FOREST

Toe to Toe Fight in Two Villages.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 7TH ARMY, In Alsace, Jan. 12.—The fiercest fighting of the Alsace campaign continued today for the villages of Hatten and Rittershoffen with the Americans striving to prevent a penetration of the Maginot zone into the Haguenau forest.

Our counter-attacks with armor and infantry gained ground in most of Rittershoffen but the Germans still were holding out in the southeast portion of the village and the battle surged around the church and cemetery there.

In Hatten the situation was still obscure. The American counter-thrust found the enemy fighting stubbornly and tanks and tank destroyers shot it out at point blank range while the infantry fought hand-to-hand from house to house.

Hayloft to Hayloft.

Barns and other farm buildings between the two villages also were caught up in the smash of war. The Germans were defending these structures with small arms and machine gun fire and our infantry from the fields braved the cross fire and advanced to contest each rural strong point. Here it was a struggle from hay loft to hay loft.

The German heavy artillery pounded at the road between Hatten and Rittershoffen trying to halt the movement of our tanks. American big guns struck back. It was another gray, foggy day and neither side had accurate observation. This worked against us particularly, negating our superiority in artillery and air power.

Heavy Losses for All.

German casualties have been heavy. The enemy used more than 25 tanks including Panthers [Mark V's] to support his infantry in yesterday's attack and lost at least six. As for personnel losses, his dead are strewn in the disputed villages and in the area between. American losses have been less but they cannot be called light.

FRENCH WRITER SAVED FROM FIRING SQUAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 12.—Henri Beraud, 59, French writer and newspaper man, today was saved from a firing squad when Gen. de Gaulle commuted a death sentence passed on Beraud by the purge court Dec. 29 to life at hard labor.

Beraud was charged with intelligence with the enemy because he wrote anti-British articles in the newspaper Gringoire during the occupation of France by Germany. In court Beraud insisted he always had been anti-British since witnessing as a reporter what took place in Ireland during the "black and tan" days. He asserted he had been as much against Germany as against the British.

The death sentence brought protests from famous French writers and yesterday Populaire, a Socialist newspaper, disclosed that a foreign power had intervened in Beraud's behalf. It was reported today the foreign power was Britain.

3 ARMIES CHASE NAZIS PULLING BACK IN BULGE

the German withdrawal might continue all the way to the reich frontier, altho there were indications the enemy might choose to anchor strong positions on St. Vith, four miles inside Belgium.

The United States 3d army, which accounted for an estimated 80,000 killed, wounded, and captured, sent the Germans reeling eastward by crushing powerful box positions southeast of Bastogne and seizing 3,400 more captives. Near Nocher, two miles southeast of Wiltz, the 80th division drove a mile and a half.

British Gain Four Miles.

While the British made a general four mile advance and the Americans headed east in Belgium for the enemy's Vielsalm-Houffalize line, trouble was developing for Von Rundstedt in the rear of that position.

First army forces fighting within two and a half miles of the last good east-west highway out of the Ardennes six miles northeast of Houffalize made any new line anchored on that town look none too secure. And a 1,000 yard advance south of Bihain, seven miles due north of Houffalize, by the 3d armored division met only moderate resistance.

Furthermore, the 1st army was across the Salm river north of Vielsalm and sent out patrols more than two miles east.

To the north patrols entered Heraumont, only 10 miles northwest of St. Vith, the next natural rallying point four miles west of the German frontier.

The 7th army kept the Germans in the Bitche salient in northeast France on the defensive, reoccupying Althorn, six miles south of Bitche and hammering the enemy from all sides of this salient.

Ten miles south of Strasbourg, the French raided enemy positions below Kraft, and stirred up a nest of armored resistance. The Germans threw in two attacks in this area and both were repulsed. The Germans also were battling 8 to 10 miles north of Strasbourg.

Germans Mass Tanks.

The Germans, massing 100 tanks or more, still appeared to be feeling for a soft spot in the French and American lines.

These German attacks were in nowhere near as great strength as the costly break-thru in the Ardennes, which was achieved only with with the destruction of six to seven German armored divisions, uncounted thousands killed or wounded, and more than 30,000 captured.

Once more Gestapo Chief Himmler was reported in personal command of this German drive. Defense of the city of Strasbourg was entrusted to the French 1st army.

United States 7th army troops well north of Strasbourg knocked out six tanks in repulsing the Nazi attack last night which spent its strength at the village of Hatten, eight miles south of Wissembourg.

Snow, rain, and fog cloaked the battle zones and not a single allied plane was able to take to the air during the morning.

Quick Tempered Vicar Fined for Caning Officer

ST. CLEARS, England, Jan. 12 (AP).—A 70 year old clergyman today was fined five pounds [$20] for kayoing a billeting officer. The cane swinging clergyman, Canon John James, vicar of St. Clears, had refused to accept a billeting order to take two evacuated children at the vicarage. An argument ensued, testimony showed, with the vicar threatening to report the officer, W. E. Jones, who said, "You old hypocrite, why don't you practice what you preach?" "I was quick tempered and cracked him with my stick," the vicar said.

It was back to the horse and buggy days for Policeman Jacob Meyer, a motor patrol wagon man at Summerdale station, yesterday, when he aided Junkman Jacob Meyer, 2220 Division st., to recover a horse and junk wagon.

Junkman Jacob's vehicle was stolen from Winnemac av. and Leavitt st., and abandoned by a joy ride thrill seeker in the rear of 4814 N. Hoyne av.

Policeman Jacob drove the horse in. Junkman Jacob thanked his namesake effusively, and said he was unhappy not to be a kinsman of the obliging wagon man.

GERMAN VERSION OF FIGHTING ON WESTERN FRONT

The German Friday war bulletin as broadcast by Berlin said:

"In the winter battle in the Ardennes our brave divisions yesterday stubbornly withstood continued American attacks. On the north front of the salient enemy infantry and tank forces came to a standstill in our fire immediately after deployment. On the south front the enemy intensified his pressure southeast of Bastogne where he broke into our front with three massed divisions. The battles were still in progress.

"In the lower Vosges mountain troops are engaged in a successful attack at Reipertsweiler. South of Wissembourg tanks and panzer grenadiers have torn further pillbox groups from the Maginot line and have penetrated deep into the field of fortifications. The strongpoint of Rittershoffen was captured. Counter-attacks by American reserves were smashed.

"The enemy, weakened by his tank losses, did not continue his attacks against the bridgehead north of Strasbourg yesterday. In the central Alsatian battle zone enemy forces encircled at Obenheim were smashed. The figure of prisoners has increased to more than 1,000."

BOMBERS BLAST U-BOAT PENS AT BERGEN, NORWAY

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP).—Royal air force bombers poured six ton bombs on U-boat shelters in Bergen on the Norwegian coast today. Bad weather over the western front prevented allied air support in the battle of the Ardennes.

Screened by R. A. F. Mustangs, two squadrons of Lancasters cruised over the Bergen dock area for 30 minutes despite persistent German fighter and flak attacks in order to make certain they hit their targets.

Explosions spread such a cloud of smoke over the submarine shelters that one or two crews brought their bombs home with them rather than risk missing the targets and causing casualties among Norwegians.

ALLIES' TANKS STILL INFERIOR, BRITON CHARGES

Claims They're No Match for German Vehicles.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Allied tanks in the sixth year of the war still are inferior both in armor and armament to those used by the Germans, R. R. Stokes, Laborite member of parliament, charged today.

Stokes declared in the Weekly Tribune that neither the British nor the Americans have anything to equal the Germans' 48 ton Panther [Mark V.] with a 75 mm. gun, or the 62 ton Tiger [Mark VI.] with its 88 mm. weapon. He claimed the two-pounder and six-pounder guns on British tanks are effective only at 400 and 800 yards, respectively, and will not penetrate the front armor of the Tiger or the Panther whereas the high velocity 75 mm. on the Panther and the heavier gun on the Tiger will knock out any allied tank at 3,000 yards.

Stokes said his assertions were true despite statements to the contrary by Prime Minister Churchill, and other British officials.

Claims Public Deceived.

He said that Minister of War Grigg declared at Cardiff, Wales, over two years ago that the British had tanks coming into production that were better than anything produced by the Germans, Japs, or Italians, and better than any tank in the world.

"Either Grigg didn't know what he was talking about or he was willfully deceiving the public, as no one can say that either the Sherman [American tank] or the Cromwell [British tank] is better than a Tiger or a Panther," Stokes asserted.

In support of his argument Stokes quoted Noel Monks, London Sunday Dispatch correspondent with the United States 9th army, as writing last Nov. 19, that "tank crews are suffering under the same heartbreaking handicap that British tank crews have had to put up with during the whole of the war—inferiority of fire power."

He also quoted a dispatch by an unidentified Associated Press correspondent published Nov. 29 that "three German tanks — the new Royal Tiger, the regular Tiger, and the Panther — are rated the best tanks in battle today by veteran tankmen of the 2d United States armored division. One officer said: 'Our Shermans are all right in their class but they are outclassed. It's like a lightweight fighting Jack Dempsey.'"

Calls Sherman Allies' Best.

Stokes said the British never recovered from the 1940 decision to go into production on the 41 ton Churchill tank which now mounts a six-pounder altho at the time the special vehicle development committee warned the ministry of supply that it was no match for the German vehicles.

"Every effort to get something done has failed," Stokes wrote, "and the matter has never been properly discussed in the house [of commons] except in secret session which was insisted upon by the government to conceal its own shortcomings. Had the matter been debated in public there is little doubt but that several ministers would have lost their heads."

The best tank used by the British or Americans "probably is the Sherman with its 17-pounder but the 17-pounder is a single purpose gun and not of much use against infantry, and a tank so mounted is top-heavy," Stokes concluded. He advocated a heavy tank with a 3.7 caliber gun firing a 28 pound shell or an armor piercing shell.

TRIBUNE GUARD CHIEF, 66, TO BE PUT ON PENSION

Harry P. Walsh, 66, chief of THE TRIBUNE'S guards, who was shot and seriously wounded in a fight with a pay roll robbery gang in 1940, will retire on a pension next Tuesday after almost 40 years of service.

Harry P. Walsh.

The veteran guard will move to Vista, Cal., near San Diego, where his daughter is in school. Until recently he resided at 7823 Cornell av. with his family.

He came to THE TRIBUNE April 5, 1905, as a hall guard, and later became a mail driver. On Nov. 20, 1920, he was placed in charge of watchmen. He was given the title of chief of guards in February, 1936.

Chief Walsh was shot five times in a gun battle with four pay roll robbers at St. Clair and Illinois sts. on July 19, 1940, and was in a hospital for seven weeks.

Walsh was guarding a $9,179 pay roll, which the robbers seized. THE TRIBUNE paid a $10,000 reward for information leading to their arrest. Two of them, Tony Lullo and Peter Allegretti, were sentenced to one year to life in prison, and a third, Neal Rizzo, got a one to 10 year sentence. The fourth man, Walter J. Smith, who turned state's evidence on his accomplices, was assassinated in May, 1943, when he returned to his old neighborhood in Chicago.

REVEAL BRITAIN HAS $28,000,000 PIPE LINE FOR OIL

LONDON, Jan. 12 [Reuters].—Geoffrey Lloyd, chairman of the oil council board, revealed today that a secret oil pipeline across Britain is now carrying more than 5,000,000 gallons of oil and gasoline daily. The line cost $28,000,000 to lay.

It is 1,000 miles long and links up all the oil discharge ports on the southwest and northwest coasts to the London area and to nests of secret airdromes thru Britain, Lloyd said.

All the oil passing thru the line was brought by tanker from overseas.

Chicago Cool to 68° Edict; New Deal Radiators Sizzle

Obeyed on First Day

Chicagoans in their homes, offices, schools, and other public buildings had their first experience with War Mobilizer Byrnes' 68 degree temperature ceiling yesterday, and they didn't like it. They also had their first relief from severe weather this month.

Outside of family dwellings, heat reduction appeared to be general. City buildings, including public schools and county and federal buildings, reduced heat promptly. The Chicago Real Estate board said it could not determine how many apartment house managers followed the board's decision to comply with Byrnes' request, but it was believed that most landlords had done so. None of the agencies concerned with the conservation program had any means of checking on single home residents.

Landlords Would Lower Mark.

No resistance to the government's suggestion was reported. The city health department said complaints of lack of heat were not unusual in number. Instead, the department reported a large number of inquiries from landlords as to whether they might reduce below 68. They were told that 68 thru the day is the department's minimum requirement.

The temperature outdoors yesterday was 39 for the first time since Dec. 15. On two other days, Dec. 20 and Dec. 31, it was 33 each day. The remainder of the time since Dec. 15 it has ranged from freezing to below zero.

Yesterday was the 34th consecutive day with snow on the ground to a depth of 4.8 inches or more, an all time record for Chicago. Warm air from the north and northwest flowed into a low pressure area covering the middle west, said O. T. Lay, meteorologist in charge.

Nature Makes 68° Easier.

The comparative mildness probably made the change to 68 easier for people who had been accustomed to apartments heated to 75 or higher, said Joseph B. Ford, president of the real estate board.

Persons who feel chilled in 68 degree temperature were advised by Dr. Irving S. Cutter, Tribune health editor, to put on warmer clothing.

"Sixty-eight is all right for people in good health, but it is not warm enough for older people with poor circulation," he said.

"The sense of warmth is always influenced by the amount of moisture in the air. We have little trouble with humidity in Chicago. There is plenty in the outside air, but we bake it out with too high room temperatures. Plants in the room aid humidity. Even a gold fish bowl helps."

Steam Behind Edicts

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12 [Special]. — In a room in which a thermometer showed a temperature of 74 degrees, Chairman Krug of the war production board held a press conference today to discuss his efforts to enforce the two day old order of War Mobilization Director Byrnes for a 68 degree maximum for home and office heating.

Krug acknowledged the high temperature in the room when it was called to his attention by a reporter, but commented that his own office in the same building had been chilly for some time. He said he understood heat in some offices and public buildings had been reduced to 68 degrees.

Capital Radiators Sizzle.

He did not name any of the public buildings where he understood voluntary compliance had already brought about a temperature cut, and a survey of official Washington failed to disclose any offices which might have provided a basis for such a report. Sizzling radiators were keeping temperatures at comfortable and in some instances uncomfortably high levels.

The survey showed temperatures ranging from 72 degrees in the national housing agency to a torrid 79 in the office of war information. The mercury stood at 75 in the offices of the solid fuels administration for war, and at 76 in the petroleum administration for war.

In the offices of the WPB, temperatures ranged from 72 to 75 degrees. The house and senate galleries showed 74.

73 Degrees in White House.

An office in the White House adjacent to the sanctum of Byrnes was found to be heated to 73. President Roosevelt in a statement issued at the White House said government agencies, including the White House, would be required to comply with the Byrnes order.

Pending issuance of official WPB orders in regard to conserving coal by limiting home and office temperatures and by eliminating outdoor advertising and display lighting, Krug said voluntary compliance is being sought.

He said he expected difficulties in working out details will probably delay putting Byrnes' directives into effect until Feb. 1.

Krug said he expects the reduced heating edict will save 13 million tons of coal a year.

Asked if the coal to be saved by curtailing lighting wasn't negligible, Krug said, "Absolutely not! Two million tons isn't hay."

IF WE ARE DIVIDED, WE BOTH WILL LOSE, SAYS AID OF BRITISH

The difficulties in the way of continued friendly collaboration among the English speaking nations may be great, but they are nowhere near so frightening as the alternative to friendly collaboration, D. Graham Hutton, midwest director of the British information service, said at a luncheon of the Chicago branch of the English Speaking union in the Blackstone hotel yesterday.

This alternative, he asserted, was a possible collapse of the peace minded bloc of nations which the English speaking and other like minded states might constitute in the post-war world.

Bound together in a friendly partnership, he said, these nations would control the vastly greater part of the world's industrial capacity and raw materials. Disunited, each of them, even the United States, might be greatly outclassed in these categories by an aggressor bloc.

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP). — The theft of $20,000 worth of British cigarets from the royal arsenal cooperative society's warehouse was blamed today on black market gangs. BOY LOSES HAND IN EXPLOSION OF JAP WATER MINE

Edward Alchanowski, 14, of 3116 Aberdeen st., a seventh grade pupil at St. Mary's Catholic parochial school, suffered severe lacerations of his right hand yesterday when a Japanese water mine he was carrying exploded. His hand later was amputated at County hospital.

Edward Alchanowski.

Police said the mine, believed to be about the size of a hand grenade, was the type used by the enemy against troop landings. Thrown into the water at the advancing soldiers, it explodes after becoming wet. Police said the youth dropped the mine into the snow or slush at 1053 W. 32d street, causing it to explode.

The mine was a gift to Mrs. Helen Piloponis, the youth's sister, from her husband, John, a sailor in the South Pacific. Young Alchanowski was taking the mine to school when the accident occurred.

YANKS CAPTURE TOWN; GENERAL TAKES KISSES

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE AMERICAN 3D ARMY, St. Hubert, Belgium, Jan. 12.—Only about 2,500 of the normal population of 3,300 remain in this town, captured yesterday without opposition. They are sorely in need of electricity, medical supplies, and such food staples as milk, flour, and fats.

Illinoisans Here.

Among the Illinoisans seen here by Gary Sheahan, Tribune artist, and this correspondent were Pvt. Frank Nagel, Fox River Grove; Staff Sgt. Eugene M. Abrams, 5942 S. Marshfield av., Chicago, an army photographer, formerly a free lance serving THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE; Sgt. Herbert Goldstein, 5344 Woodlawn av., Chicago; Pvt. 1st Class John A. Olsen, 815 N. Humphrey, Oak Park, Ill., and Pvt. 1st Class Arthur Rosenbaum, 827 E. 52d st., Chicago, whose wife, Gertrude, lives at 3703 W. Grenshaw av., Chicago. En route to St. Hubert we also met Staff Sgt. Lawrence W. Lehrsen, 1011 N. 20th st., Melrose Park.

The commanding general of the division, whose troops took St. Hubert, went into the town today to pay his respects to the mayor and to assure him the Americans would coöperate in trying to meet the town's urgent needs.

Beauties Crowd Around.

When he departed the young beauties of St. Hubert crowded around his jeep and bestowed kisses while photographers clicked their shutters. A. G. I., disgusted with the European habit of kissing both cheeks, shouted: "How about kissing American fashion, general?"

The general's only comment, however, when he saw himself being photographed while kissing, sounded like that of the lowliest, henpecked private. He said: "My wife will give me hell for this."

AMERICA RESUMES FINNISH RELATIONS ON INFORMAL BASIS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12 (AP).—The United States extended a friendly but cautious hand to Finland today after turning the diplomatic cold shoulder for six months.

Acting Secretary of State Grew announced that Randolph Higgs, an American diplomat now in Stockholm, is being dispatched to Helsinki to look after American interests and that he will be joined soon by Maxwell M. Hamilton, a foreign service officer who will hold the personal rank of minister.

It is not known at the state department whether the Finns plan to send an informal representative here.

RABBI, 25, LOSES COURT FIGHT ON ARMY INDUCTION

Judge Upholds Action of Draft Board.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 12 (AP).—Habeas corpus proceedings for the release of a Brooklyn, N. Y., rabbi from the United States army were dismissed today by Federal Judge Calvin Chesnut, who said he had failed to find any legal data that the rabbi's draft board had acted "arbitrarily or capriciously."

Pvt. Abraham Feder, 25, now stationed at Fort George G. Meade, Md., claimed exemption from service on the contention that he was a Jewish rabbi of the orthodox faith. He charged that he had presented satisfactory evidence to that effect to his draft board, but it was disregarded.

He also told the court he had signed an application for voluntary enlistment under duress as a means of obtaining a month's deferment to serve his congregation during the Passover holiday.

No Evidence of Duress.

Judge Chesnut ruled, however, that he failed to find evidence of duress, since Pvt. Feder offered no testimony that he had misread, misunderstood, or unwillingly signed the application or that there had been any misrepresentation.

As to the soldier's rabbinical status, the court said that altho he did not have before him all of the data available to the Kings county, N. Y., draft board, which inducted Feder, he had the report of the advisory panel on theological classification in New York.

Exemption Not Warranted.

He disclosed that this report stated in effect that Feder's status did not warrant his exemption as a rabbi or ministerial student, that he did not convince the panel he was a bona fide functioning rabbi, and that his ordination was not in the traditional orthodox Hebrew form.

Feder was inducted April 17, 1944, after a series of changes in classification ranging from 4-D as a theological student in 1941 to 1-A in January of 1943, 4-F in April, another 4-F rating in June, and 1-A-L in August. He was born in Romania and came to this country as a boy.

Feder said he had been a student at the Beth Joseph seminary in New York, from which he was ordained, and served the congregation of Cheva Necumas Zion Anshe Shas in Brooklyn until he entered the service.

PAC MUST LOOK TO '46, HILLMAN TELLS CIO GROUP

Oakland, Cal., Jan. 12 (AP).—Sidney Hillman told a conference of the California CIO council and the state political action committee the immediate job of the national citizens' political action committee must be to organize for the 1946 congressional elections and for the support of elements seeking world coöperation.

Earlier, in an interview in San Francisco, the national PAC director said: "We are going to remain nonpartisan. We are not going to capture or be captured by the Democratic party."

He said the PAC's most important function, second only to winning the war, is support of forces favoring international coöperation.

ORDERS MENTAL TEST FOR POSER IN SUICIDE HOAX

Federal Judge Walter J. LaBuy yesterday ordered a psychiatric test for Stuart Nahin, 18, of 2259 N. Kedzie av. and continued until Feb. 6 hearing on charges of impersonating an FBI agent, illegally wearing an army officer's uniform, and cashing worthless checks. After his arrest Nahin attempted a suicide hoax by leaving some clothing and a note on the bank of the river at Clark st. He was seized later in a loop hotel and said he had planned suicide, but had lost his nerve.

Civilians Join Maryland Hunt for 2 in Slaying

Chance, Md., Jan. 12 (AP).—Law enforcement authorities and armed civilians converged on this Eastern Shore community and neighboring Deal's Island tonight in search of two Negroes suspected of shooting one man to death, wounding another, and beating a woman and a girl. State police said Raynor Graham, Deal's Island oyster packer, was found shot to death in his automobile in front of his plant; Kenneth Willing, Chance, was shot in the head when he accosted two Negroes tampering with his boat, and the women were beaten shortly afterward.

NAVY TO NAME NEW CRUISER FOR GARY, IND.

Gary, Ind., is to have a new United States cruiser named after it. This was disclosed yesterday by Mayor Joseph E. Finerty on receipt of notification by Secretary of the Navy Forrestal.

The letter stated that the keel will be laid soon and that a Gary delegation will be welcome at the launching. Gary is being honored, the navy secretary said, because of its great contribution to the war program in its production of steel.

Rep. Madden [D., Ind.] for a long time has been trying to get a warship named after Gary, but was balked because a destroyer escort bore the name Gendreau Gary after a sea hero. Navy rules bar the same name for more than one ship. This difficulty has been overcome, Mayor Finerty said, by the navy's agreement to rename the destroyer escort.

2,098 WOUNDED IN ACTION IN EUROPE LISTED

Names 145 Illinoisans on Casualty Report.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—The war department today made public the names of an additional 2,098 United States soldiers wounded in action in Europe. The list includes 145 Illinois men, of whom 98 are from Chicago and its vicinity.

With this list the army today began a new system of furnishing casualty information. Newspapers now will be given lists of names copied directly from telegrams dispatched to the next of kin, eliminating some of the Washington delay in transmitting lists to the press for publication. The new system, however, makes it impossible to identify the next of kin by relationship, such as mother, wife, or father, as in previous lists and in a few lists yet to come. Thus, in this and future lists the name following that of the casualty will be that of the next of kin or some other person to whom the war department has been told to address casualty information.

Despite the fact that the time lag in publishing names of casualties has been reduced, some time still may elapse between notification of the next of kin and the time when the war department furnishes a name for newspaper use. During this interval, the army reports, next of kin will have been kept informed directly of any change that may have occurred in the status of a casualty.

THE QUESTION.

What would you feel justified in doing to a neighbor's child who continually defaces your property?

WHERE ASKED.

Field Annex building.

THE ANSWERS.

A. G. Falco, probation officer, 1521 Warren av.—I wouldn't refer the child to any authority because that automatically brands him as being bad. Children have no inhibitions. If they feel like kicking out a basement window—they'll do it. I'd try to get the child to like me and he'd respect my property.

Florence Preston, railway clerk, 1706 Crain st., Evanston—I believe there are few children who can't be reasoned with. If you can't reason with them it's because of their parents or because they are not mentally right. It may take a little patience and a smile but the results will be worth all the effort.

Ralph Goodwin, salesman, 4041 Ellis av.—Too many people are intolerant of other people's children. I wouldn't do anything about a child who defaced property until it became extremely serious. I would just wait for them to grow up and learn what's done and what is not done. That seems to me to be the better way.

Mrs. R. A. Gauen, housewife, Waterloo, Ill.—It depends upon what kind of a child he is. I'd handle him with kindness and try to explain that he has done wrong and make him feel sorry for his misdeeds. If he continued, I would assume something was wrong with the child and I'd go to the proper authorities.

C. E. Benson, taxi driver, 4758 Kenmore av.—Children don't destroy property with the idea of creating trouble for the owner. Usually they do it because they think it's fun. It's something to do. They don't realize the seriousness of their crime. I'd give them fatherly advice, buy them some candy, and laugh it off.

U. S. FLYER BAGS 7 JAP PLANES; IT'S A RECORD!

FIFTH AIR FORCE BASE, Philippines, Jan. 12 (AP).—Capt. William A. Shomo of Huff, Pa., set a new record for the army's far east air forces yesterday, downing seven Japanese planes in aerial battle over Luzon.

Lt. Paul M. Lipscomb of Fort Worth, Tex., Shomo's wingman, shot down three more. Together, they accounted for all except three planes of an enemy formation.

The pair were flying a reconnaissance mission when they sighted the Japanese at 3,000 feet elevation.

Shomo got six fighter planes and one twin engined bomber. This bettered the record of late Col. Neal Kearby, San Antonio, Tex., of six planes downed in one battle over Wewak, New Guinea, Oct. 11, 1943. Lipscomb was credited with three fighters.

The two Yank airmen attacked the bomber led Japanese formation from the rear. They methodically shot up the tail planes, spectacularly zooming above and then below the formation.

FBI SEIZES WIFE OF 5 ON ARMY CHECK CHARGES

New York, Jan. 12 (AP).—A woman arraigned before a United States commissioner under the name of Mrs. Ruth Kryger, 22, of La Grange, Ga., was held today on charges of unlawfully receiving army allotment checks from two soldier husbands.

Asst. United States Atty. John J. Donovan Jr. said she had been receiving $100 a month in such checks.

E. E. Conroy, special agent in charge of the New York federal bureau of investigation office, said Mrs. Kryger, who was arrested yesterday, had been married five times and that her last husband, Gunnar Kryger, Danish merchant seaman, now was at sea. Three of the others she married were soldiers. She said she had lived here since last September.

Mrs. Kryger waived examination and was held in $500 bail for removal to Newman, Ga., to face charges there.

ADDING MACHINE, FAN, CLOCK STOLEN. H. H. Hopkins told police yesterday that burglars stole an adding machine, a 30 day clock and an electric fan in a burglary of his office at 1724 Fulton st. Thursday night.

Takes Wrong Name

The former Dorothy Jennings, who was married under wrong license. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

West Plains, Mo., Jan. 12 (AP).—Annulment proceedings have been filed in the marriage mixup of pretty Dorothy Jennings, 19, and two boys. Miss Jennings, at Kansas City, explained she and Dale Howard, 14, West Plains, intended to marry but that Dale couldn't obtain a license. A friend, Arnold Clinton, went to Salem, Ark., and obtained one in his name instead of Dale's.

Then, Miss Jennings related, she and Dale went thru a ceremony before a Salem justice of the peace.

The girl's father, Jack Jennings, has filed the annulment action. Dale's mother, Mrs. William Clasby, Kansas City, asserted: "My boy isn't married to any one and isn't going to be."

Gen. W. H. Hale Appointed Pacific Deputy Air Chief

CITY AND COUNTY HEADS FROWN ON TAX AUDIT PLAN

County and city officials took a cool attitude yesterday toward a proposal by J. Soule Warterfield, former president of the Chicago real estate board, that the state set up a new agency to audit and certify the tax levies of local governments, with the object of making sure that all taxpayers get the benefit of reduced tax bills when any part of a levy is held illegal.

As it now stands, only those taxpayers who protest and sue to protect their interests gain any benefit when a levy is outlawed. Usually only large taxpayers can afford to litigate. The small home owner customarily pays in full and gets back nothing.

Opposed to More Bureaus.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki said he had not studied the proposal, but that he was opposed to creating more bureaus.

"I think there is a much easier and more practical way to remedy the injustices of the small taxpayer," he added. "Adopt a law requiring that he receive a discount on his tax bill whenever the courts reduce a levy for any litigant. It could be done by having the county collector issue him a credit slip good for a reduction on his next tax bill.

"Under this system the taxing bodies which habitually overlevy just to take advantage of the nonprotesting taxpayer would have to economize and live within their tax limits."

Still Subject to Court Review.

Jacob Shamberg, chief of the state's attorney's civil law department, said the proposed body's acts still would be subject to court review and he doubted it always would rule in a way to meet the courts' opinions. He pointed to intricate cases in which the taxing bodies allegedly failed to itemize their budgets adequately. Only the courts could decide them finally, he said.

Deputy County Controler Richard J. Daley, who has introduced several tax preadjudicating bills in the legislature, said he sympathized with Warterfield's objective, but believed a local board of certification would be better; that the proposed state body would have to cope with some 15,000 budgets [there are about that many taxing bodies in Illinois] and would be swamped with work.

Scheme Against Home Rule.

Ald. Bowler [25th] asserted there was no need in Chicago for any state reviewing body.

"Our budgets are made openly and our tax levies are watched by many civic bodies," he added. "Overlevies are spotted quickly. This scheme looks like a plan to cut down on our home rule. Give a state body the right to hold up our budgets and the council will have little power left."

Bridges Open 59,888 Times for Boats.

Chicago's 55 moveable bridges over the Chicago and Calumet rivers threw motorists for a loss of 4,200.5 hours [175 days] during 1944, as they waited for river traffic to pass, Harbormaster William J. Lynch disclosed yesterday in his annual report.

Lynch said the bridges opened a total of 59,888 times, and remained open an average of 4.2 minutes each operation.

Open 2,470 Times Less.

The bridges were raised for everything from row boats with tall masts to camouflaged naval vessels, Lynch reported, but added that the number of openings in 1944 was 2,470 times less than in 1943. He attributed this to an increased use of barge traffic, and a decrease in sand boats, because of less construction.

Lynch said that the number of barges used on the rivers in 1944 [figures unavailable] was unprecedented in water traffic history.

The busiest bridge in Chicago was at Kinzie st., which opened 3,417 times. The 92d st. and the 95th st. bridges, over the Calumet river, were second and third, with 3,118 and 2,975 times, respectively.

Stays Open Longest Time.

The 130th st. bridge stayed open for the longest average time—10 minutes each—Lynch reported. This bridge, a pontoon type, has not been used since Aug. 30, when it was replaced with a high bridge which allows traffic to pass without its moving.

The Diversey pkwy. and N. Halsted bridges stayed open an average of 3 minutes each to tie for the shortest operational time, while Erie st. and Randolph st. bridges were tied for second with 3.1 minutes each.

Lynch said the openings counted this year did not include the bridges across the drainage canal. Figures for the canal are considered a military secret, as they would reveal the number of war vessels built here and sent down the Illinois waterway.

Held Up for Four Days.

The Michigan av. bridge opened 1,389 times, for an average of 4.2 minutes each, during 1944. Figuring an average of 50 automobiles delayed during each operation, Lynch said 69,450 motorists were held up a total of four days during the year.

The 92d st. bridge, which carries heavy truck traffic for the Calumet industrial area, opened 3,118 times for 5.5 minutes each, delaying an estimated 62,360 trucks a total of 285.8 hours.

YANK WILL HEAR SCHOOL SONG ON CITIZENS' HOUR

A recording of today's broadcast of the Citizens of Tomorrow program saluting Thornton Township High school will be sent to an American soldier overseas by his mother. The broadcast from 10 to 10:30 a. m. over W-G-N will be opened and closed by the Thornton school song, "Our Alma Mater Song," the words and music of which were composed by Charles Lambert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Lambert, 15625 Myrtle av., Harvey. Lambert, a 1942 graduate of Thornton, is now a corporal attached to the air force at a fighter base in England.

Charles Lambert.

His mother is sending him a record of the program as a surprise. He will be able to play it at the Red Cross Aero club near his base.

Dr. William E. McVey, superintendent of the high school and junior college, will be host on the program. Thornton's choir of 80 boys and 24 girls, directed by Walter Armbruster, will sing two numbers.

The star performer will be Margie Rockstroh, 17, who will sing a selection from "Pinafore." Philip Maxwell, who conducts the program, will add two more names to the roll of honor—Katharine Kehle, 17, of Thornton, and Beverly Jean Boyle of Rensselaer, Ind. Melvin Beagle, 16, will present news items from other schools.

TRIBUNE PHOTO EXHIBIT WILL MOVE TO LOOP

More than 250 prize shots of Tribune camera men, which are being shown at the fifth annual photographic exhibit, will be on display until tomorrow in Tribune Tower. The exhibit will then be moved to The Chicago Tribune Public Service office at 1 S. Dearborn st., where it will be open to the public later next week.

The exhibit opened Dec. 31 and has been viewed by hundreds of visitors, who voted for their favorite picture. Three prize winners will be announced later.

LAWYERS LEAVE ETHABELLE HALF OF HER $250,000

Two Receive $125,000; Tax Collector, $17,000.

Miss Ethabelle Green, 36, who sued the estate of William Hale Thompson for one million dollars and settled in Probate court Wednesday for $250,000, yesterday saw half of that sum go to her two lawyers as fees and then saw a deputy internal revenue collector take approximately $17,000 for taxes. That left her $108,000. She said she would go away on a trip for her health.

Probate Judge John F. O'Connell entered an order settling Miss Green's claim yesterday morning, and a short time later, various claimants to portions of her legacy began making their appearance.

The order was entered after Atty. Herbert M. Lautmann presented an agreement, signed by Mrs. Thompson, widow of the former Chicago mayor, to the settlement "because of the large amount involved in the claim and because of the large sums which would be expended in settling such a claim."

Harrington Accepts $100,000.

Atty. Joseph T. Harrington, representing Miss Green, thereupon announced that he had been induced to accept $100,000 as his fee as his contribution to the settlement effected in Judge O'Connell's office.

Atty. Lautmann protested that he understood that the fees were not to be disclosed to the public.

"That's true," shouted Harrington, "but when my client attempts to doublecross me and settle this case behind my back, then I am released from all promises."

Harrington then told the court that he would like it understood that no other lawyers were to file a lien against his fee, and Lautmann said the administratrix would make out a check first to Harrington for $100,000 and then one for $25,000 to Atty. Samuel L. Golan, who formerly represented Miss Green.

Tax Collector Gets $17,000.

With half of her settlement remaining, Miss Green then faced a deputy collector of internal revenue, who sought $17,000.

Miss Green's settlement of $108,000 ended court action based on alleged promises made by Thompson that he would leave her one-half of his fortune if she would remain with him as his foster daughter, nurse, and secretary. She had served 13 years in that capacity, she said, before Thompson died and left no will.

Then followed a conference in Lautmann's office, attended by Miss Green and her two attorneys. When it ended, Miss Green, wreathed in smiles and Persian lamb, said she had no further statement to make, except that she was leaving town for her health.

Final action in the case was brought when Atty. Harrington drew up several orders dismissing all other claims filed by Miss Green in Probate and federal courts.

MEDAL OF HONOR WINNER ARRIVES FOR 6-DAY VISIT

Lt. Edward S. Michael, flyer who was awarded the congressional medal of honor by President Roosevelt Wednesday in the White House, returned to Chicago yesterday to spend a six day leave. The pilot, who said he was so thrilled and honored "that I can't express myself," was accompanied by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Michael, 6616 Schreiber av., and his wife, Bertie Lee Michael of Douglas, Ariz.

He was awarded the nation's highest military honor for a mission over Germany April 11 in which his plane was badly crippled by a swarm of fighters. After seven of his crew members bailed out, Lt. Michael, the pilot, altho seriously wounded, stayed with the plane in order to save the life of his bombardier, whose parachute had been shot to shreds. Lt. Michael and his wounded co-pilot managed miraculously to turn the disabled plane to England.

The bombardier, Lt. John L. Lieber, 28, of Flushing, N. Y., and the co-pilot, Lt. Franklin A. Westberg, 21, of Minnesota, also attended the White House ceremony. After his leave Lt. Michael will report to Love field, Dallas, Tex., where he is now attached to the 5th ferrying group.

VALUE OF BLOOD BARRED IN TAX RETURN TO U.S.

The office of the collector of internal revenue in Chicago yesterday was confronted with a novel war time problem. Is the value of a blood donation to the American Red Cross deductible by the donor as a contribution in determining his income tax? It is not, Collector Campbell's tax service advisers said.

Contributions in money or property are deductible, but it was said blood has not as yet received a "property classification" for this purpose, and it may take a ruling from the revenue bureau to settle the question definitely.

On the other hand, professional blood donors, who sell an occasional pint of blood to hospitals, are expected to include receipts from this source in their taxable income. The price is $5 a pint in some cases.

SIGN OF TIMES: BOSS AIDS THIEF, WANTS HIM BACK

Louis Badula, 17, of 1247 N. Bell av., a truck driver charged with larceny by bailee on three counts, was placed under supervision of the Catholic Big Brothers until Aug. 10 yesterday after pleading guilty to the charges. Judge Joseph J. Drucker of Boys' court lightened the sentence because of the man power shortage after the young man's employer said he was willing to take him back because he was a good worker.

Edward L. Quan, manager of the Service Parcel Deliveries, Inc., 1044 Harrison st., said that Badula failed to deliver a $35 tweed overcoat on Jan. 3, and sold it instead; on Jan. 15 he sold 12 snow shovels and collected $5.40 for a c. o. d. package but never turned in the money. Badula returned the coat and the shovels and promised to repay the $5.40.

Badula said he wasn't sure he would return to his employer. He said he made $42 a week there, but that it wasn't enough to keep up instalments on his 1935 automobile. Harold White, 39, of 2840 N. Whipple st., who bought the shovels from Badula, was released of a charge of disorderly conduct.

IDENTIFY GROUP ASKING JUSTICE IN MOYNE CASE

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 12 (AP).—The presiding judge said today that a telegram which he had received from New York at the opening of the trial of two Jewish youths charged with the killing of W. E. Guinness [Lord Moyne] was signed by Alexander Wilf and the American League for a free Palestine, of which Wilf is executive director.

The judge, who said the telegram expressed the hope the men would be given a fair trial, had not previously named the signers.

The telegram itself was not available today. Friday is the Moslem Sunday and there were no proceedings in the trial of Eliahou Hakim and Eliahou Bet Souri, who yesterday said the assassination of Moyne, British resident minister in the Middle East, was on instructions from a secret organization to which they belonged.

LINK SHOOTING OF SENATOR TO GRAFT INQUIRY

Officials Believe Killer 'Tailed' Legislator.

BY ORVILLE DWYER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Jackson, Mich., Jan. 12.—Expert homicide sleuths tonight widened their search for missing parts of the jigsaw mystery surrounding the killing yesterday of State Sen. Warren G. Hooper [R., Albion] after a day of intensive crime detection had produced a number of important pieces of the puzzle.

State Police Commissioner Oscar Olander and Kim Sigler, special prosecutor at grand jury investigations in which Hooper was a key witness, hurried to Detroit tonight on a tip that a clew had been discovered there. From state police barracks here and at East Lansing, Michigan's most determined manhunt was spreading over the state and had assumed angles extending to Chicago.

Conclusions by Officials.

Meantime, State Police Capt. William Hansen and Detective Lt. Lyle Morse and Jackson county's prosecutor announced they had reached the following conclusions:

That the killing "probably" was connected with the grand jury inquiry into legislative graft. That Hooper was "tailed" by the slayer. That he was shot to death in his car by a person who was driving the car. That the killer likely was a passenger known to Hooper but unsuspected by him.

Other investigators expressed the belief the senator may have been slain by gangsters imported from Chicago by "some of those hit or expecting to be hit" in Judge Leland Carr's special one man grand jury, which already has named more than 50 prominent men.

These theorists said some of those under indictment for legislative bribery are reported to have connections with the Chicago underworld and that the nearer city of Detroit has been free of most of its gunmen since a grand jury there sent many officials to prison in a clean-out of gambling.

Police closely questioned the passers-by who found Hooper's body in his sedan late yesterday on highway M-99 near Springport. The senator's body, with three powder-rung bullet holes in the left side of his head, was slumped on the right side of the front seat. A fire of undetermined origin had burned his legs and arms.

An Important Witness.

Sigler said the senator had been an important witness in half a dozen cases before the grand jury. Sigler said Hooper had testified against Frank D. McKay of Grand Rapids, former Republican national committeeman; Floyd Fitzsimmons, Benton Harbor sports promoter, and William Green of Hillman, former state representative, who were indicted for conspiracy to bribe legislators in defeating a pari-mutuel betting bill.

The prosecutor revealed that threats had been made against the lives of two other principals in the grand jury probe. He said these were Maj. Charles Hemans, former lobbyist whose testimony resulted in the conviction of 17 legislators, and former State Sen. Stanley Dombrowski [D., Detroit], who pleaded guilty to perjury.

REPORT GREEK IDENTIFIED IN DOOMAN KILLING

Police said yesterday they were preparing murder charges against Peter Boulahanis, 27, of 3705 Grenshaw st., reputed Greek gambler, for the New Year's day slaying of McKinley [Mike] Dooman in a cocktail lounge at 938 Belmont av. The shooting, police said, followed a quarrel earlier in the day over a Greek gambling game called barboot, in which Dooman was reported to have used crooked dice.

Peter Boulahanis

Police testified at a habeas corpus hearing before Chief Justice Harold G. Ward in Criminal court yesterday afternoon that Boulahanis had been identified by three witnesses at a showup in which he appeared with his brothers, Tom, proprietor of a coffee shop at 609 N. Clark st., and Nick, 26, of 916 S. Carpenter st., and George Bilek, 25, an employe in the coffee shop. The judge ordered all except Peter released. The witnesses were taken before the grand jury, but no action was reported taken.

Federal agents still were investigating the operations of a gang of ration coupon counterfeiters, of which Dooman was said to be a member. Police found 70,000 stamps calling for 350,000 gallons of gasoline in Dooman's home and in a safety box following the murder.

7 BLOOD DONERS NEEDED TO AID FATHER OF TWO

Robert Francis, 43, of 1162 N. La Salle st., a taxi driver who has been unable to work because of an enlarged spleen, appealed to Tribune readers last night for seven blood donors to appear at Wesley Memorial hospital so he may undergo an operation which would cure him.

Hospital authorities explained that Francis, a relief patient, could undergo surgery immediately except that the blood bank must be replenished before the transfusions are given. Donors are asked to call the hospital's information desk [DEL 6500] for specific instructions.

Francis is married and the father of a son, 5, and a daughter, 4.

DEATH LAID TO ACCIDENT.

Edward Latimer, 68, of 356 N. Cicero av., who was found injured fatally last Dec. 28 near the elevator of the John M. Smythe company at 703 Madison st., was injured as the result of an accident, a coroner's jury decided yesterday.

LESS ESSENTIAL INDUSTRIES FACE LABOR CEILINGS

WMC to Tighten Rule Over Workers.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12 (AP).—A stringent new program to steer employes of less essential firms into war jobs will be ordered into nationwide effect by next month, it was learned tonight.

Drawn up by the war man power commission to implement a directive of War Mobilization Director Byrnes, the plan has been dispatched to the WMC's regional directors.

Altho the plan has been tried on a limited scale in a few areas about the country, this would be the first time it would apply to the nation as a whole.

It calls for a national inventory of less essential firms and provides for establishment of employment ceilings for all those that have eight or more workers.

May Include Others.

It also grants authority to WMC area directors to bring under the program businesses with fewer than eight workers. Informed sources predicted that this authority will be exercised in a number of areas.

Supporting this forecast, the WMC's Boston labor-management committee reported today that about 24,000 metropolitan area firms with fewer than eight employes will be brought under ceilings. These ceilings will be based on the number of workers employed last August.

In another hint of the impending measure, William H. Spencer, Chicago regional WMC director, said a "drastic cut" in man power quotas is in the works for nonessential and some essential businesses in Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin.

Seek 700,000 Workers.

The new plan is intended to help recruit 150,000 war workers needed immediately and another 550,000 required by July 1.

Providing "teeth" for his edict, Byrnes authorized the WPB to impose sanctions in the case of "recalcitrance." These include withholding of materials, power, and other essentials.

The new program is understood to provide for local area surveys of less essential firms to determine which have skilled or unskilled workers needed in war plants.

Labor "Loans" Planned.

Where such workers are located, employers will be asked to "lend" them for "must" war production jobs. Where coöperation is not voluntary, ceilings will be imposed. As a last resort, the WPB will invoke sanctions.

In most areas coöperating companies will be permitted to employ women to compensate for male workers lost.

In addition to cataloging less essential firms, the program calls for a list of critical industries and another of essential firms. Needs of critical plants will be met first, then those of essential businesses.

FAVOR DRASTIC CURTAILMENT OF CIVILIAN GOODS

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Jan. 12.—Recommendation that the production of goods for civilian consumption be reduced radically will be made when a group of American government officials representing the war production board and the war man power commission returns to the United States after an extended tour of the European theater of operations. This was stated here today by William Y. Elliott, vice chairman for civilian requirements.

The group includes five members of the war production board and two members of the man power commission, headed by Paul V. McNutt, chairman.

They have just completed a tour of the combat and supply zones, where they studied at first hand the army's requirements for war production, with special emphasis placed on investigating critical items and shortages that may exist. They talked to the men, from privates to generals, who handle and consume war supplies.

'L' Lines Pay $1,958,481 on Delinquent Taxes

A check for $1,958,481, representing the bulk of the Chicago Rapid Transit company's settlement of delinquent taxes, was handed over to County Treasurer Schlaeger yesterday by A. A. Sprague, company trustee. The total of back taxes owed by the "L" lines in the agreed settlement was $2,675,304 and the rest of the debt is to be paid in a few days.

BOARD FIXES SCHOOL BUDGET, $72,924,328; AIMS TO CUT LEAVES

The Chicago board of education yesterday adopted the annual school budget, providing for expenditure of $72,924,328 in 1945, and agreed informally to discontinue granting sabbatical leaves of absence in an effort to relieve a war time teacher shortage.

The meeting was recessed until next Wednesday, when the board is scheduled to issue tax anticipation warrants against the new tax levies, after authorization by the city council, and take final action on the question of teacher leaves.

In the new budget, tax levies for six school funds total $69,248,717, or 2 million dollars more than the total for 1944, with the added income marked for writing off uncollected back taxes. The increased tax is accounted for in the educational fund, which was raised from $53,200,000 to $55,200,000.

After last Monday's public hearing on the budget, the board shaved approximately a million dollars from appropriations called for in the tentative budget.

KNUDSEN BACKS LABOR DRAFT OF ALL MEN 18 TO 45

BY LAURENCE BURD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12.—Lt. Gen. Knudsen, director of production for the army, today indorsed the administration sponsored bill for a labor draft of all men 18 to 45 years old.

Testifying before the house military affairs committee, Gen. Knudsen argued that such a measure would boost arms output by cutting labor turnover and absenteeism and forcing workers from nonwar jobs into arms plants.

The general, who left the presidency of General Motors corporation five years ago to help speed the war program, asserted that present labor controls authorized by War Man Power Chief McNutt have failed to channel enough workers into jobs where they are needed.

Favors Age Limit of 60.

Compulsory measures are needed, Knudsen said, to put workers in jobs where production is behind schedule.

Asked by Rep. Sparkman [D., Ala.] whether he thought the measure should be extended to include men up to 60 years of age, Knudsen replied, "Yes, the more the better."

The current bill, introduced by Rep. May [D., Ky.], chairman of the military affairs committee, would prohibit men 18 to 45 years old in war essential work from changing jobs without permission from their draft boards.

Opposes Violator Draft.

Knudsen, following the line taken earlier by the war and navy departments, opposed the bill's penalty provision, which provides for induction of violators into menial labor units of the army and navy. He urged civil penalties of fine and imprisonment as a substitute, on the ground that the army and navy have no use for such men.

An amendment along these lines, providing a fine of $10,000, five years in prison or both, was proposed today by Rep. Kilday [D., Tex.], a committee member.

CIO Opposes May Bill.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12 (AP).—President Philip Murray said today the CIO is opposed to meeting man power shortages by legislation, such as the May bill. He proposed taking the problem out of "the congressional mess it is in and returning it to the people where it belongs."

The AFL has adopted a similar point of view.

ADMITS LOOTING 25 MAIL BOXES DAILY IN 6 WEEKS

Robert Jamieson, 15, of 919 Addison st., a second year pupil at Lakeview High school, was captured yesterday by Town Hall police, who said he confessed to looting approximately 25 mail boxes a day for the last six weeks. Money obtained was spent on clothes, girls, and comic books, he said. War bonds and government checks were found under a rug at his home, police added.

Detectives William Nolden, Paul Lovell, and Fred Mudloff arrested the youth yesterday as he left an apartment building at 1506 Roscoe st., where he had just ransacked the boxes. Police were put on the trail of Jamieson earlier in the day when Mrs. Mary Hodson, 3517 Lakewood av., telephoned she had seen a boy dart in and out of buildings carrying a brown box.

Postal authorities called in on the case turned him over to juvenile authorities, where he will be prosecuted by the government.

RELAXED HIRING LEVELS ASKED IN WAR PLANTS

Demands that war plants and their liability insurance firms relax hiring standards, particularly in considering 4-Fs and discharged war veterans, were made yesterday by man power and union representatives as the task of filling 2,739 critical jobs in Chicago was dumped in the laps of union leaders.

Labor leaders of both AFL and CIO groups voiced their complaints when 60 war plant and man power officials met representatives of the army in the Civic Opera building at a meeting called by Maj. Gen. Russel B. Reynolds, commanding officer of the 6th service command.

May Be Used Elsewhere.

Gen. Reynolds and Lt. Col. A. H. Brawner, chief of the command's labor branch, said the Chicago program, which will start next Monday, is an experiment which, if successful, will be extended to other critical labor shortage areas. He listed 16 plants making army supplies and said management and unions in each had agreed to give the plan a trial.

The unions, he said, have agreed to recruit workers from less essential plants and from nonmanufacturing jobs for the next six weeks in an effort to fill man power needs as certified by the war man power commission.

Union officials who complained of applicants' inability to get jobs, but who pledged their organizations to coöperate in the venture, which is to be announced in Washington today, included Harry O'Reilly, general representative of the Chicago Federation of Labor; John MacDonald, business agent of the AFL machinists' union; Paul Russo, assistant regional director of the CIO auto workers, and Joseph Germano, district director of the CIO steel workers' union.

WMC Criticizes Employers.

William H. Spencer, regional WMC director, in a statement made at a meeting of WMC officials, criticized employers who, he said, have failed to hire half the applicants referred to them by unions and the WMC, and warned the employers that WMC services would be withdrawn from plants which do not abandon pre-war hiring standards.

He said he is planning a drastic cut in man power quotas of less essential plants in Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin, and added, "We have enough workers in Chicago, but the needed men and women are not in war work." He said the WMC was working out a plan designed to produce a "wholesale shift of workers to critical activities."

He said he also was considering a plan under which contracts would be decentralized in an effort to take the work to workers in smaller areas which have avalaible skilled labor.

EXPRESS THIEF GETS TWO YEARS.

Herman E. Tolber, 36, of 4849 Magnolia av., former dispatcher for the Railway Express agency, was sentenced to two years in federal prison yesterday by Judge Michael L. Igoe on charges of stealing from shipments. He pleaded guilty to taking more than $11,000 worth of merchandise.

THE ARMY'S USE OF MEN.

Secretary of War Stimson justifies the army's current demand for more men on the ground that it is under its authorized maximum strength of 7,700,000 "highly effective men."

The army should get what it needs but when Mr. Stimson discusses effectives, he disregards a factor which appears to bear directly on the question of why the army, with all its man power, finds itself shorthanded on the actual line of battle. That is that the army and Mr. Stimson have not been making an economical use of existing forces. Its record in this respect is perhaps no better than that of industry, which is also frequently accused of labor hoarding. A closer comparison, however, might be between the army and the federal burocracy, which has reached 41 per cent of the size of the army and still pleads a man power shortage.

The army, and, for that matter, the navy, have thousands of officers and men both in this country and in foreign theaters who are assigned to duties which are not directly related to hitting the enemy and damaging him. Many of these peripheral service activities could be handled by older civilians or by women.

Hansen Baldwin, military editor of the New York Times, recently said in the magazine, Life, that if the army sloughed off its excess fat in the European theater alone, five or six more combat divisions could be organized out of the personnel behind the front.

"The greatest fault of our army administratively," he said after a tour of inspection in Europe, "is still the fault of waste—the red tape that clogs the wheels and the little, non-essential 'empires' that ambitious officers or leaders build up. We rarely get along with one where two or three can be used. . . .

"The army is definitely overstaffed and overmanned. An efficiency survey could probably reduce by 10 to 25 per cent the number of officers and men employed in noncombat—and particularly in rear area—activities. . . . The 12th United States army group has a substantial number of general officers on its staff and enough personnel of all grades to form an understrength division. The American army and SHAEF'S command and headquarters personnel are occupying more than 150 hotels in Paris. Rear area medical installations, visitors' bureaus, air forces activities, especially some of the administrative functions of the wing organizations, and the supply and maintenance elements of the air forces are among the units with far more personnel than is actually needed for efficient operations."

We want a fighting machine, not a burocracy, with as many bureaus, agencies, and as much boondoggling as in the New Deal itself. The army as it stands mirrors many of the defects of the political administration which brought it into being. It is time to clean house and get the rear guard out of its hotels and offices and up to the fighting front.

CONVENTIONS.

The 1st amendment says: "Congress shall make no law . . . abridging the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances." If words mean anything, these words mean that there is no authority in the federal government to forbid the citizens to meet when and where they choose to meet. That is the law of the United States, in peace and in war.

It may be true, as alleged, that the holding of conventions during the war places an undue strain upon railroad and hotel facilities. If so, there could be no objection to a statement of the facts by Mr. Byrnes or some one else in possession of them, and a request that conventions be dispensed with this year whenever possible. There is no doubt that such an appeal would be very generally heeded.

But that isn't the way this administration works. It doesn't request. It orders. What's more, it undertakes to tell the citizens who may meet and who may not meet. It has the effrontery to license the right of assembly. If a group wishes to hold a meeting, it must first submit its reasons for doing so for approval by the burocracy. It would be difficult to imagine a more provocative invasion of civil liberty than this one.

As much reduction in travel would have been accomplished by a simple request. It is, therefore, difficult to avoid the conclusion that the administration deliberately sought to accustom the people to the invasion of the Bill of Rights.

LIEUT. GEN. LUMSDEN.

Lt. Gen. Herbert Lumsden, who was with Gen. MacArthur as Prime Minister Churchill's personal representative, was killed on the bridge of a ship in the American armada as it approached Lingayen for the Luzon invasion.

Gen. Lumsden was one of the survivors of the artistocratic British army tradition that began with Wellington's fox hunters. He was a cavalry officer and gentleman steeplechase rider, and was one of the few to extract real glory from the Dunkirk disaster. His lancer regiment helped fight the desperate rear guard action that made the withdrawal possible. Later he served with distinction under Gen. Montgomery at El Alamein.

His talent for leadership and his personal gallantry—he was wounded while serving as the general of an army corps in Africa—fitted him particularly well for his mission to Gen. MacArthur. Our own army will mourn the death, within its ranks, of a brave ally.

KING PETER HOLDS OUT.

The Yugoslav government in exile in London made a deal with Tito by which King Peter was to be replaced by a regency. Peter now says he won't go along with this arrangement. He says he is quite willing to let the people of his country decide his fate but he wants to be sure that the election, when it takes place, will be an honest one. He doesn't think it will be on the square if Tito wields unrestricted legislative power until the people or, more accurately, their representatives in a constituent assembly, have decided what form of government they want.

What all this means is pretty obvious. Peter wants to keep his job and feels pretty certain that, if Tito is allowed to run the country for the next few months or years, there isn't going to be any place for Peter in Yugoslavia. Peter knows, also, that Tito is Stalin's man and that there are large numbers of Yugoslavs—probably a substantial majority—who oppose communism and fear that the triumph of Tito will mean the complete subjection of their country to Russia and its governmental system.

Perhaps some of these anti-Communists and anti-Russians don't care much for Peter, but as between him and Tito their minds are made up. That is why the king put as much emphasis as he did upon the representation of all parties in the temporary government. Evidently he has information that his people will not vote for communism if they have anything like a free opportunity to express their wishes. He wants to avoid the kind of plebiscite that Stalin took in the Baltic countries after his troops moved in and the leaders of opinion in those countries were exiled to Siberia.

THE UNHAPPY JAP ADMIRALS.

Americans were taking the beaches of Lingayen gulf when Gen. Homma, the Jap who commanded in the capture of the islands remarked to some German reporters in Tokyo that now undoubtedly the Japanese navy would come out and strike some heavy blows in this region. It isn't quite clear whether the general was referring to something which would be done as a matter of course or was, as an army man, slapping the admirals in the face and with his irony daring them to risk their ships to save the Luzon garrison.

Thus far the suicides have been committed by the Japanese soldiers. No Japanese garrison has been saved by naval action and no suicidal attempt has been made to save one. The closest thing was in the Solomons in August, 1942, when we lost ships in night actions and the uncertainty whether we could hold out in the islands was great. This, however, was after the Jap naval defeat at Midway where the islanders' dream of sea power began to fall apart.

That the Japanese generals would have extended themselves as they did at the beginning of the war without full confidence in the Japanese navy is entirely unlikely. From Attu to Leyte the navy has been unable to remove, relieve, reënforce, or supply any unit of the army once threatened by an American landing. Whenever the navy tried to carry its share of the undertaking it was badly mauled and put for home and mother with its battered remnants. The American approach to the Philippines stirred the admirals into one fight in those waters. The landing at Leyte goaded them into another. Both attempts were failures and the second was particularly damaging.

As the result of the failure in the Leyte waters an estimated 130,000 Japanese soldiers were exterminated. Now the Americans are back on Luzon headed for Manila, Bataan, and Corregidor. The Jap navy could not prevent the landing from the convoy. If the Jap generals are not drinking with the Jap admirals it would not be remarkable. There isn't a whole naval face in Tokyo.

We are not counting the next naval battle won. In some waters the Jap navy must stop the invading fleets or die in the undertaking. Perhaps in that fact lies the significance of the latest naval encounter off Indo-China. The harassed admirals are confronted with the difficulty of making their choice of time and place. If they are to die in Philippine waters or, alternately, inflict a paralyzing defeat on their enemy they are making a decision which may deprive the home land of all naval protection. If they do not accept the battle there they are exposing the south China sea and nearly all of their new empire to American domination. They are thrown back on their heels.

Homma's taunt, if it were one, would indicate the army's thought on the matter. Only extremely vainglorious military men could know the shame of these encounters. Vainglorious men may take desperate and even unwarranted steps to retrieve what they consider their honor. We do not minimize the Jap capacity for sacrificial action. When the Japanese admirals have decided that the fight is to the death it will be just that sort of a fight. Unless they have degenerated, none can survive an all-out defeat of their navy. Its traditions are already in tatters. The waters of the Philippines may or may not be the historic spot. Homma suggests that it should be.

OPA'S EXPLANATION.

[New York Sun.]

The OPA explains its invalidation of blue points in this wise: If the blue points outstanding had all been cashed at once, stocks of canned goods would have been reduced to a dangerously low level and there would not have been enough to go around until the next commercial pack becomes available.

But why should the OPA assume that housewives would cash all their blue coupons at once? They had not done so in the past. Many had followed the advice of the OPA and had refrained from buying more than their immediate needs. A much larger number merely followed their usual prudent marketing practices. The fact that the points had a relatively long life made hoarding uninviting, except for a few. What the OPA has done is to reward the selfish few and penalize the many. This, in itself, is of less importance than the fact that OPA has now given all housewives effective warning that points are highly perishable. Every housewife from now on, if only from the duty that she feels toward her own family, will see to it that she is not again caught with a mass of worthless coupons.

MR. PEPYS COUNTS UP.

13th Jan.—Spent the last week-end in preliminary studies for my income tax returns, 1944 final and 1945 guesswork. Find my guessing for 1944 was fairly accurate, but not because of my own clairvoyance. One variable chunk of expected money never turned up at all, and this would have put me in a pretty pickle if another variable had not swelled up to correct the item, or nearly so. If the government thinks that my achievement in almost scoring a bull's-eye is proof that its dream schedule scheme is above reproach, I will testify that it was just a case of dumb luck.

In recent years have been in a state of "snafu," as the soldiers say, at tax scheduling time, but now I have the situation well in hand. The new forms do not require the genius of Joel Kupperman, but when the trap closes at the bottom of the sheet its jaws take a bigger bite than before.

Attended the annual dinner and business meeting of the Cliff Dwellers club on the first Monday after Twelfth Night, and found the members of this companionship in high spirits, singing their festal anthem, the words of which run:

We are jolly, we are happy,
At this, our feasting time;
Put the food on, put the drinks on.
Altogether! Zivio!
Zivio! Zivio! Zivio!

Only two members of the club know what "zivio" means. They are Polasek, Bohemian sculptor, and Ingerle, Bohemian painter.

Left the dinner before the speaking began to see Helen Hayes and company enact "Harriet," which deals with the family life of the little lady who wrote "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Had a pleasant and an instructive evening. Now I am sure that "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was not written by the Duncan Sisters.

The War of the Weeklies.

Yes, I do remember Golden Days [Jan. 4], which came to me parallel with red-top, copper-toed boots and the collecting of tin tobacco tags. Also I recall its Boston rival, the Youth's Companion, out-circulating it five to one.

James Elverson of Golden Days also published a Saturday Night weekly, which outsold about four to one its ancient and irate neighbor, the Saturday Evening Post. Perhaps that rivalry prompted the vitriolic advertisments of the S. E. P. in the '80s. I quote: "It is perfectly free from the degrading and polluting trash which characterizes other so-called literary and family papers."

Editors really spoke up in those days. Today everybody knows Saturday Eve, but who remembers Saturday Night? Chiggers.

  And in whose name the nations now unite,
Told in a shield upon a soldier's sleeve

Promising vengeance, and justice restored,
  Burning but brighter as the hour grows late!
Above, the rainbow in colors that blend
  Fashions hope's emblem and lifts up our eyes
To untroubled blue that heralds the end
  Of tyranny's power and shows the calm skies,
Azure in peace, that shall tranquilly reign
When peoples of earth their freedom regain.

The only authorization so far was to the defenders of Wake Island.

W. E. W. writes: "My son in the coast guard had been serving on an LST and now is using LCI in his address. Why?"

C. W. asks: "Does the G. I. law date the discharge from Pearl Harbor to be eligible? How does a veteran proceed to get a loan for business?"

The G. I. law says that 90 days of honorable service after Sept. 16, 1940, or less service if he was discharged by reason of a service connected disability. However, if the veteran was in service prior to Sept. 16, 1940, it is only required that he served 90 days and was discharged on or after that date. Veterans desiring loans for any of the purposes mentioned in the law are advised to go first to a bank, lending agency, or individual and discuss their plans just as if the law were not in existence. If the lender thinks the venture and the veteran are good risks, the lender then advises the veterans' administration and it, in turn, advises the lender of the veteran's eligibility, after which the transaction may proceed.

POOR VISION—A CHILDHOOD HANDICAP.

DESPITE widespread information concerning the benefits of properly fitting spectacles, many of our youngsters are handicapped because of defective vision. The school years constitute an extremely important interval and nature intends that everything desirable shall be seen, heard, and understood. If, for example, a lad is obliged to strain in order to make out exercises on the blackboard, he will be subjected to excessive fatigue. Furthermore, he may be taking in but a fraction of the lesson of the day. We are demanding more and more close work and accurate sight is essential.

Naturally, we expect that good illumination will be provided. Many a classroom is poorly equipped in this respect, particularly the rows of desks on the far side of the room, away from the windows. On dull days the light may be altogether too dim.

We must recall that at birth nearly all babies are farsighted but, under average conditions of growth and development, this disadvantage vanishes. If it is still present when the tot enters the first grade, the muscles of accommodation will be forced to overexert themselves. Then it is that systemic symptoms may appear such as headache, nervousness, etc. We should make certain that the child who does not see as well as his playmates is given the aid of suitable glasses.

We all realize that a crossed eye comes about because defects have not received attention. This is especially true when the optics are not equal in power. A squint may be first observed during the eruption of teeth, or following a digestive upset. What happens is that one set of muscles controling the movements of the eyeball becomes stronger than the opposite group. Because the globe is drawn out of its normal position, the sight of the "turned" orb may be lost.

Episodes of this sort may not be frequent but when they occur, in order to preserve single vision with both structures, they must be made to "track." If the condition is not cared for by the age of 3 years, ocular acuity may disappear rapidly.

The thing to do is to proceed with repair without delay. The involved eye should be brought again into use, either by glasses or by means of a simple surgical procedure. Unless this is accomplished, many a victim will become inferior and solitary because he feels out of place and odd. Even tho the condition is noted only occasionally, it should not be neglected. It is never safe to assume that it will adjust itself.

Most of our schools provide visual tests. If the child cannot read at the required distances, it is incumbent upon the parents to do something about it. Examinations are so readily performed and so informative that correction is relatively easy. Children no longer are embarrassed by the necessity of wearing "specs."

School physicians are performing a notable service. They are able to pick out those who are overtiring the organs of vision. The expert who serves best in this situation is the one who understands thoroly the function of the machinery of sight.

The family doctor is always a sound adviser. Even tho he may not be a specialist, he recognizes the wisdom of preventing serious eye disorders in those who entrust themselves to his counsel.

DIAGNOSTICATING.

L. P. writes: In an article on mumps you referred to the "pickle test." What is this?

REPLY.

This is an old time diagnostic procedure. If a child developed a swelling in front of the ear, he was asked to eat a pickle. If he could do so without pain, it was "sure fire" proof that mumps was not present. If discomfort increased, it was assumed that the malady had started.

BUSY MEALS.

L. G. writes: What causes foods to go directly into the skin after eating? No sooner do I finish my meal, than it rushes into the skin.

REPLY.

Edibles have no way of reaching the surface of the body except via the circulation. Do you break out with hives? If so, you are allergic to something in your diet. Perhaps you are like the alcoholic who takes on a skinful.

More on Books.

From a sailor in the Pacific:

"What we need is books. It is a tough row of stumps for a gang of men, penned up on a ship for months, who have read every word of printed matter aboard. I know several hundred in that shape.

"Nothing is wasted. Clippings from home town newspapers are posted on bulletin boards . . . every one reads them. If people would only give a book a week to some man in service, that would do it. Stick a book a week into a piece of brown paper, and send it with a 3 cent stamp. The boys would appreciate that more than all the candy [that gets here melted to liquid in almost every case] and tobacco and shaving lotion ever mailed. We can always get the necessities, including tobacco.

"But, gee, nights are long when you can't turn on a radio, can't go out, can't even find last week's Smilin' Jack or Little Abner to read in a corner under a red safe light. So plug for that, will you . . . and thank the Chicago public library for anything along these lines it can do. Believe me, they can't possibly realize how much good they are doing."

Honors.

At a time when restaurant service has become notorious, we nominate the bus boys at Hutchinson Commons of the University of Chicago as the men most likely to succeed in reviving one's faith in dining out. It could happen only where the waiters are often Ph. D.'s-to-be, but they clean the tables in the twinkling of an eye. The other day a young collegian left his untouched breakfast for a minute and went to buy a cup of coffee. When he returned, his meal was gone.

Harriet Went to Siam.

Harriet Beecher Stowe lives again in Helen Hayes' performance of "Harriet" long after little is remembered of her book, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," other than that it tore one nation in two and was translated into the languages of 37 others, ranging from Chinese to Welsh. Did you know, for instance, that a member of the harem of the king of Siam in the 1860s became so inspired by this book that she changed her name, Hidden Perfume or Lady Son Klin, to Son Klin Harriet Beecher Stowe?

Details of this fascinating bit of history are told in Margaret Landon's current best seller, "Anna and the King of Siam." Anna was Anna Leonowens, an English governess in the king's palace. It was she who first passed around at court an old and battered copy of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Lady Son Klin became so interested that she began to translate the story into Siamese. As her work progressed, her veneration for Mrs. Stowe grew. Finally one day she invited Miss Leonowens to a mysterious dinner. After a sumptuous feast, all adjourned to the garden, where Lady Son Klin's 132 slaves knelt in rows. Speaking from her verandz, she told them:

"I am wishful to be good like Harriet Beecher Stowe. I want never to buy human bodies again, but only to let go free once and for all. So from this moment I have no more slaves, but hired servants. I give freedom to all of you who have served me, to go or stay with me as you wish. . . ."

Lady Son Klin was not the only convert. The king's son, Prince Chulalongkorn, declared, "If I live to reign over Siam, I shall reign over a free and not an enslaved nation." He remained true to his word. His proclamation emancipating the slaves of Siam was his first act as king on Jan. 1, 1872.

Miss Leonowens by that time had gone to America to live, meeting Longfellow, Holmes, Emerson, and even Mrs. Stowe. Soon an agitated letter came to her:

"My dear friend and teacher. My goodness gracious. You will not know us any more, we are all so changed, a freedomed people; some of the free not like to leave their master and mistress so they weep for gladness, but most run off like wild deer from shotgun and are for joy like one mad.

"Me and my two sisters are too happy we fear almost to say how happy for fear perhaps it will all vanish. Your loving pupil, Son Klin Harriet Beecher Stowe."

PREPAREDNESS.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—As a veteran of World War I, I would like to answer the writer of "The Growth of Militarism" which appeared today over the signature of "World War I. Vet."

If our government had spent half the money appropriated for the various alphabetical projects on military preparations, Japan might have avoided war with us, which in turn might have kept us out of the European war.

This country needs a strong military policy. It should never have discarded the slogan given us by a great American—"Walk softly and carry a big stick"—nor the program necessary to back it up. The organized pacifists are constantly telling us that if we build and maintain a large army and navy, we will be anxious to use it and will look for slight excuses to do so. This theory does not hold true with the American people who are not easily provoked into war because they know its heartbreaks, hardships, and consequences. F. R. LINROTH.

WHY THEY AREN'T AT THE FRONT.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—"A. C. Cummings, London-News-Chronicle political commentator, came out for the blood of American generals," according to a news item. "He wanted to know why the supreme command was apparently unaware of Field Marshal von Rundstedt's plans and dispositions beforehand, and why there was an astounding gap on the American army's front."

Could it be because American soldiers are being used to rehabilitate England in the midst of the war, instead of being on the battle front, after the American government has spent millions of dollars to train them for combat duty? What right have our boys to be used to rebuild London, when our government is crying for the need of men to man the war plants in our own country, and wanting even to draft 4-F's?

LOUISE KERROTT.

HER HUSBAND'S PORTRAIT.

Atchison, Kas., Jan. 6.—This was the fourth consecutive Christmas my husband [Brig. Gen. Aln D. Warnock] had been on foreign service and my holiday spirit was lacking its usual gusto. But your thoughtfulness in sending the large picture of him made me feel there is still some compassion left in the United States. My confidence in Santa Claus is not entirely restored but it has had a shot in the arm. The sketch is a good likeness and to think the World's Greatest Newspaper would take time to do such a human thing makes it more than appreciated. BERNICE WARNOCK.

ONE MAN POWER SURPLUS.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Why disturb industry by drafting more men when there are 3,500,000 tax eaters on the New Deal pay roll, most of them doing nothing except trying to perpetuate F. D. R. Of course it would be tough for them to go to work after being on vacation for 12 years.

Could it not be cleared with Sidney to have them transferred to industry—work two days and then report only on pay days? JOHN B. EBERT.

IT'S HIS PODIUM.

Beloit, Wis., Jan. 10.—I did not vote for Franklin D. Roosevelt but am glad that he was reëlected. He helped compose the music. Let him help play it. I'm wondering how this grand symphony will end. A. G. GLASS.

WHY SHOULD UNCLE SAM COLLECT?

Chicago, Dec. 31.—If a union organization has the confidence of its members, why does it have to appeal to Uncle Sam to maintain its membership and collect its dues?

I don't ever remember reading or hearing that the railroad men, electricians, bricklayers, or any other union organization had to depend upon Uncle Sam for their existence.

As somebody said recently, if a firm as an organization has to collect its bills, why can't a union as an organization collect its bills?

I can't understand why union leaders have to demand the maintenance of membership and collection of dues clauses in contracts to keep their members in line. The only reasonable conclusion I can reach to justify their demands for such clauses is that the members were coerced into joining in the first place. AUNTY CLAUSE.

GUNS FOR 4-F ATHLETES.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—I see that Rep. O'Toole [D., N. Y.] made a proposal to War Mobilization Director Byrnes that 4-F athletes be drafted into military service and sent to battle fronts to entertain troops as "soldier athletic teams." I'm a lot older than these stars and I fought in the front lines of France with an infantry division, and I have a wife and baby who were tickled and thanked God that I was fortunate to return. The only entertainment we looked forward to on the line, was to see some replacements come up with rifles on their shoulders [not baseball bats] to take the place of a lot of good kids that fell. We have enough jackstrap soldiers in the army now. Let's give these glorified 4-Fs some combat training and see what kind of stars they are at killing Germans. I love sports, but I can do without a lot of things until this war is over.

DOUBLE TALK.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 5.—In the last Presidential campaign the phrase "double talk" was always a convenient rejoinder to any and all accusations made against the administration.

I trust that the 25,000,000 blind followers of the New Deal now realize the true meaning of that phrase and know to whom it rightfully belongs. It means double bungling, double rationing, double blunders with our allies and the small nations, double the arrogance of Washington, double the confusion on the home front, and then, of course, the real heartbreak of it all, double the gold stars in the windows of our American homes.

I also trust that the blame is being placed where it belongs. This surely is one time that they cannot place the blame on Harding, Coolidge, or Hoover.

At a tea this afternoon in the Exmoor Country club, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wells Moore of Highland Park are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Ann, to Gordon Lennox Pirie Jr. of the coast guard, son of Mrs. Pirie and the late Mr. Pirie of Glencoe. Young Mr. Pirie arrived yesterday from Baltimore, Md., where he is stationed as a seaman 1st class, and will be here until Monday.

Miss Moore attended Northwestern university and the University of Arizona. Her fiance entered the service upon his graduation in 1941 from Governor Dummer academy. The wedding is planned for April or May.

Miss Moore's brother, Corp. William John Moore of the army air forces, recently received the air medal for service in the Philippines. Mr. Pirie has three sisters—Priscillla who is at home this winter serving as a nurses' aid, and the twins, Nancy and Martha, who are freshmen at Western college in Oxford, O.

Other Engagements.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Leggett Porter of New Rochelle, N. Y., have sent word of the announcement of the engagement of their daughter, Jean Rogers, to Byron Vincent Kanaley Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Kanaley of Evanston. Miss Porter was graduated from the Scarborough school and attended Stephens and Beaver colleges. Mr. Kanaley was graduated from the University of Notre Dame.

Mr. and Mrs. Morton B. Friedman of Highland Park announce the engagement of their daughter, Denise, to Leslie Kodner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kodner of Chicago. Miss Friedman, a graduate of Carleton college, is a member of the staff of the City News Bureau. Mr. Kodner, a reporter on a Chicago newspaper, attended the University of Illinois.

Here and There.

The Society of Midland Authors' first gathering of the season, a luncheon at 1 p. m. today in the Arts club, will be a farewell to John T. McCutcheon before he and Mrs. McCutcheon leave the end of this month for their Treasure island in the Bahamas. Since the death of his close friend, George Ade, Mr. McCutcheon has been serving as the society's vice president from Indiana.

Mrs. Herbert E. Bradley will preside at the meeting, for which Miss Alice Gerstenberg has been taking reservations. The society, which was started during the last war, lists a membership of some 200 writers from 12 midwestern states.

The McCutcheons, who moved into their Lakeview av. apartment when they closed their Lake Forest home for the winter, will leave for Miami, Fla., Jan. 30. They will complete the last lap of the journey to the Bahamas by plane. Their youngest son, Barr, plans to join them during his spring vacation from Harvard university. Young Mr. McCutcheon's holiday will be short, as he is endeavoring to complete his college course in 22 months. His two brothers are stationed abroad, Lt. McCutcheon Jr. with the naval reserve in the Pacific, and Capt. Shaw McCutcheon at a Flying Fortress base in England.

Week-End Calendar.

Alumnae of the Sacred Heart of Chicago and Lake Forest who attend their annual breakfast at 1 p. m. tomorrow in the Camellia House of the Drake hotel will have a chance to meet Eddie Dowling, one of the stars of "The Glass Menagerie." Mr. Dowling will attend the pasty with Mrs. Frank E. Halle, of whose family he is an old friend, and will sit at the table of Mrs. Burton McNamara, president of the alumnae association. Miss Josephine McGuire is chairman of the breakfast, the fourth annual one in the series. This year the association is celebrating the success of a drive for funds to aid foreign convents all over the world.

Following a buffet supper at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Saddle and Cycle club, members and their guests will see a movie revival of Lillian Gish in "Broken Blossoms."

Col. and Mrs. W. W. Yaschenko will give a small dinner party tonight in their restaurant, the Yar, to celebrate the Russian New Year, which traditionally falls on Jan. 13.

Wedding News.

In a quiet ceremony at 4:30 p. m. yesterday in the Danville, Ill., home of her grandmother, Mrs. Julius C. Hegeler, and mother, Mrs. Hegeler Buckingham, Miss Josephine Buckingham was married to Lt. David Mattis Snyder of the army air forces, son of Mrs. Alan Macdonald and the late Stanley S. Snyder, also of Danville. In the absence of her brother, George T. Buckingham II., who is overseas with the army, the bride was given in marriage by her uncle, John Richardson Palmer. Her attendants included young Mr. Buckingham's fiancée, Miss Phyllis Kavanagh of Chicago. Alan Macdonald Jr. served as best man.

Lt. Snyder, grandson of Ross R. Mattis, who has lived in Champaign, Ill., since 1865, and nephew of the late William B. McKinley, who served in the national house of representatives and the senate for 23 years, is taking his bride to California. He has served as navigator on a Liberator bomber in the Pacific for 18 months. The bride is the daughter of Tracy Buckingham of Lake Forest.

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"Have you recipes for cookies with good keeping qualities which would be satisfactory to send to service men in the South Pacific?"

We do not recommend sending perishable items overseas. Cookies en route for such a long period probably would dry out considerably, no matter how carefully wrapped. When sending cookies to service men in camps in this country, send only the type which will not crumble and dry out, namely: large, hearty cookies [drop type, containing raisins or dates to provide moisture], filled sugar cookies, bars, brownies, and cookie squares. Omit the dainty, crisp varieties which would arrive at their destination in partly crumb form. Wrap cookies individually in waxed paper and stuff spaces in between cookies with extra paper or with popcorn.

"I have eaten pepper steak in several restaurants and have found it delicious. How is it prepared?"

Pepper steak is a braised steak—a sort of swiss steak, minus the tomatoes. Use round steak, flank steak, or other tough cuts of meat. Wipe well with a damp cloth and cut into pieces about 2 by 3 inches. Roll cut steak in flour and brown in hot fat, then bake or simmer over low heat until tender in water or bouillon to which chopped green pepper, chopped onions, and a little Worcestershire sauce is added. Add a little salt, then reseason before serving with salt and pepper.

"What is meant by the term 'scalded milk'?"

Noted Designer's Collection of Spring Attire Disappointing

BY REA SEEGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 12.—Somewhere, somehow, Hattie Carnegie, long a dress designer with a record for elegance, seems to have missed the boat with her spring collection. The new models she paraded past fashion writers during the current press week showings sponsored by the New York Dress institute were not up to the standard of those of the past years. This collection has an unbelievable quality of "chi-chi," something which stunned the veteran fashion sleuths who for years have wagered lunch money on the flawless perfection of any suit, dress, coat or ensemble with a Carnegie label.

Every piece in the collection is exquisitely made, but the silhouettes, extra frills, and difficult to wear sleeves in the silk suits shown were anything but the superbly simple creations that usually emerge from the dressmaking studio of this top flight designer. There were, however, the usual beloved simple suits with details of consummate artistry, such as narrow bands to mark the front belts, clever cut-out motifs, and perfectly matching blouses of silk.

Also, the hand loomed knit fabric suits with the Carnegie label still spell tops in swank, and have a young quality seldom found in any other knitted model. A navy blue two piece with vivid pink top was a perfect example of such a costume. All the summer suits of real silk were a revelation of what this luxury material, suitably tailored, can be when turned out by Hattie Carnegie.

But the beautiful prints were outstanding only because of the glorious beauty of the silk, and its gay colors. Otherwise the dresses could have any other label and still be just good looking prints. The new 1945 versions of the leg o' mutton sleeves were the shock of the showing. They give that pinched look to chest and shoulder lines, especially compared to the streamlined wide shoulders we've seen the last few sessions. Cut to end just below the elbow, these were just so many more difficult to wear sleeves.

Floor length dinner and evening gowns of combinations of crepe, chiffon, and lace completed the showing, none of which had any sensationally new silhouette, tho the colors were lush and different. The revival or 1945 version of the floating black chiffon dance dress worn by Irene Castle evoked a sentimental sigh or two from the susceptible gentlemen in the crowd. But, to the fashion writers, there was the disturbing feeling that Hattie Carnegie had flunked her midsemester exams this time.

On the Record

By Claudia Cassidy

"Othello" for Keeps.

Perhaps you prefer "Othello" in the library, where you can reach for it at any time. Perhaps you are impatient for Margaret Webster's revival, due on Theater Guild subscription April 9. But you might compromise on a record library in between, and after, by courtesy of Columbia's three albums starring Paul Robeson as Othello, with José Ferrer as Iago, and his wife, Uta Hagen, as Desdemona. You will find them in the set numbered M-554, which adds up to 17 records of the 12 inch size, and costs about $20, including tax.

Paul Robeson as Othello.

This is the Margaret Webster production—and again it isn't. I wish I knew why. It is the production made possible by Miss Webster, first in London in 1931 and again in New York more than a year ago, when she cast Paul Robeson as the first Negro of modern times to play Shakespeare's noble Moor. It has most of the cast that broke Broadway records for Shakespeare with 296 performances. But in no place that I could discover does the recording bear Miss Webster's name, nor does she play her original role of Emilia. That goes to Edith King, the Bianca when the revival opened, now playing Iago's wife on tour. She is not Miss Webster's equal as an actress, vocal or visual.

Yet on the whole, this is good Shakespeare, well played, accurately recorded, rarely sententious in speech, and spared the blight of "incidental" music that has hounded Shakespearean alarums and excursions since organists discovered electricity. It has the sparse accent of herald trumpets, nothing more. And it has a finer performance by Mr. Robeson than I heard him give in New York almost a year ago. Then, despite his ideal stature and superb voice, he had lapsed into rhetoric. Here he has resonance, simplicity, dignity, and authority. Some sibilance seeps into his rage, records being sibilantly supersensitive, but that is a mechanical blemish on distinguished characterization.

Unseen, Mr. Ferrer's Iago might be Basil Rathbone, pointing his words as if his disdainful tongue pricked them, but he is about as much "honest Iago" as a curled lip. Miss Hagen's Desdemona is a frail creature in the current style of voices that fade into mooning mists. Alexander Scourby, the Cassio, is generally competent in a supporting cast adequate as Shakespeare goes in the middle of the 20th century, when the poetic mood embarrasses so many actors.

The text is abridged, of course, and the program notes are by Theodore Spencer of Harvard, who wrote "Shakespeare and the Nature of Man." I still want to know what happened to Miss Webster.

College Heads Oppose Taking Federal Doles

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 12.—Acting on the second vital question before educators of the country, members of the Association of American Colleges today refused to indorse recommendations for government doles to colleges hard pressed financially thru the loss of tuition fees and other sources of income during war.

The action was taken after speakers at the association's 31st annual convention here expressed fears that government financial aid would lead to eventual federal domination of the educational system.

The educators last night disposed of the other vital question when they resolved to seek delay in congressional action on compulsory peace time military training until alternative measures for adequate national defense may be fully explored.

Federal assistance covering a wide variety of fiscal emergencies created by war had been recommended by President Cloyd H. Marvin of George Washington university, Washington, D. C., chairman of an association group working closely with congress.

In refusing to indorse these proposals, delegates representing colleges and universities thruout the country also turned down a resolution that would have put the association on record against asking for direct federal financial aid at this time. Both recommendations, lacking substantial support, were referred back to the Marvin committee.

Dr. Marvin reported a number of educational institutions in dire financial straits, altho a few had managed to improve their fiscal position despite the war. He made his plea for federal doles on the argument that the colleges' financial sacrifices were an inescapable phase of total war, and should therefore be borne in part by the federal government.

Dr. Marvin called for federal funds to make up part of the loss in tuition fees resulting from the military service of young men and women who would normally be in college; for long term government loans at low interest to finance the rehabilitation of physical equipment; for a federal fund to stimulate research studies in various universities, and for a "national system of earned, selective scholarships," each congressional district to be allotted 25 undergraduate and five graduate scholarships.

Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans affairs and the third Washington administration official addressing the convention, explained educational benefits under the service men's readjustment act, and said that nearly 2 million men and women would seek additional education at the end of their military service.

The delegates approved the creation of a committee to inquire into political or other outside dictation of educational programs. Widespread charges of political domination were made recently after a shift in the University of Texas official staff.

Competition Is Good for Boy, Girl Advised

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Q.—"I'm 16 and have gone steady for a year. About five weeks ago we had an argument, stopped seeing each other, and then, realizing our friendship was still important, went together again . . . altho not steady this time. Before I knew this boy at all he dated another girl and liked her very much. She came back last week for a visit [she had moved out of town] and, even tho she is now engaged, he has told me he cannot make up his mind which one of us he likes. Isn't there something I can do? He's leaving for the army soon and I want to be the lucky girl who can wait for him. . . ."

A.—Most boys like to be worried a little. Make him feel he'd be lucky to have you waiting for him; try dating a couple of other Joes just to give him a few free evenings to decide where his love lies.

Q.—"I've been in the army a year and a half and when I was in high school I dated the same girl for two years straight. She writes to me about every two weeks, but as soon as I mention that I am coming home on furlough the mail comes thick and fast. I always date her frequently when I am home and she seems happy to see me, but I'm beginning to feel that her affection is just one big act. . . ."

A.—Too many gals are operating on the "a boy in the hand is worth two in the service" theory. It may not be fun for you, especially if you really like the honeychile, but next time you go home try dating some other gal. One of two things might happen: your original dream gal might be roused to a little more appreciation or, better still, you might even have more fun with another girl.

Tribune Color Photos Present Brilliant Exhibit

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

One of the most interesting and brilliant exhibitions of the new year is the Chicago Tribune color photo exhibit which opens at the Chicago Historical society tomorrow with a formal preview and Monday to the public. The exhibition will continue thru March 15.

THE TRIBUNE long has been deeply concerned with color photography, and the successes it has achieved in developing the medium for use in a newspaper are amazing. The natural color photographs in the current exhibit are the work of the Tribune color studio, which was opened in 1936.

The pictures cover a wide range of subject matter. One tender little joke creeps into the exhibit when you know that a summer landscape entitled "June Green" was ignored for some time by those arranging the pictures in an effort to find the portrait to fit that title. Finally the mistake in identity was discovered and poetry had its day. "June Green" is hung with the country landscapes and photographs of a pheasant and of a plump turkey on its nest.

The photographs are hung in panels, one devoted to the army and navy, another to Hollywood stars, another to fashions, and another to news events. Figures of importance in the worlds of politics, the theater, and war are shown. The group of magnificent reproductions of famous paintings is outstanding. Sharing top honors with it is the group of spot news pictures in color—a surprising achievement because of the factor of time.

The Tribune color studio, headed by Edward H. Johnson, has scored numerous "firsts" since its 1936 opening, the first newspaper studio of its kind in the country. Among the imposing records are the first Paris fashion in color, the first wirephotos in color of the British king and queen visiting Washington, D. C., and the first bombing picture of England in color. Tribune color cameras have toured army camps, naval stations, Hollywood, New York, Washington, and Europe.

For all that, the exhibit is not pretentious. The pictures are there to be enjoyed. From the charming glimpse of Shirley Temple at, perhaps, 10, to the stirring scene of the grain elevators' fire, the photographs possess beauty, interest, craftsmanship, and originality. It is a superb show.

From 4 to 7 p. m. tomorrow, members and friends of the Chicago Historical society will be greeted in the Current Exhibit room, where the exhibition is installed, by James M. Hopkins, vice president of the museum, and Mrs. Hopkins. With them in the receiving line will be Mr. and Mrs. W. McCormick Blair, Mrs. Charles B. Pike, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Barnes, Col. and Mrs. Thomas R. Gowenlock, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, and Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, CAL., Jan. 12.—All is not like the bees and the honeysuckle between Connie Bennett and Gregory Ratoff on "Paris Underground." Ratoff ordered all visitors off the set, and that included a gent who was one of the picture's backers. Now I'm told that Connie, smart business woman that she is, has Leonard Moguy in reserve to rush right in and take over if Greg gets too information-pleasey. . . . The Jack Warners may buy Ida Lupino's home for little Joy Page and Bob Orr, since Ida bought Chester Morris' big manse.

Never the Twain . . .

Since Humphrey Bogart goes east with Louis Bromfield, instead of with Mrs. Bogart, and Lauren Bacall goes with the Howard Hawks, it means that the battlefield will be moved from the west to east coast. There's another guy back there that the little Bacall will see much of. . . . Reeves Espy, head of Selznick agency, has been taken on as general manager by Buddy De Sylva. Buddy's trying to get King Cole trio for "Stork Club." I asked if he was bringing Winchell out to be in it, too. He said, "No; Walter wanted a million dollars, and I didn't happen to have it on me that day. He figured if I could pay $100,000 for the story he was worth that. So, according to his figuring, I advised him to wait for 'Life With Father' and ask $5,000,000."

Own Jigsaw for Orson.

Orson Welles finally gets his way. He bought, for a fourth of the million it cost R. K. O. to shoot, the stuff he took in Brazil some years back. But now that Orson's got it, it will be interesting to see if he remembers what it was all about and whether he knows how to put it together and why he took it. . . . Alan Dinehart Jr. refused to try to break his father's will, which left everything to his stepmother. His wife is in Las Vegas getting a divorce. . . . Roy Roland, who directed "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes," also does the next Margaret O'Brien picture. It's "Death in a Doll's House." Deals with child psychology. The picture will show a child who has seen her own mother murdered. That's kind of gruesome for our little O'Brien, isn't it? . . . The Cary Grants are getting the inner circle together and gathering them in for a little birthday party for Cary on the 16th.

Look Out, Paris.

Soon as Orry-Kelly finishes "The Dolly Sisters" clothes, which I'm told are really divine, he'll start his new super Sunset Strip shop. . . . Spring cleaning starts a little early at Metro. Very soon three producers will be looking for berths elsewhere. . . . Just to keep the record straight, Alexis Smith's wearing a sign 'round her neck, and on it—"I'm not expecting a baby." . . . Mae Busch at Paramount is doing "Too Good to Be True." . . . Spring Byington is added to "Captain Eddie." That's nice adding. . . . Most stars seek privacy on Sunday, but Lassie holds open house. You wouldn't believe how many people come to gape at him. So far he hasn't been required to dip his paw in an inkpot and make his sign, but I'm told Sid Grauman is stirring up the cement so he can do it at the Chinese theater.

Movie Comedy of Small Town Skilfully Done

By Mae Tinée.

This is another of Preston Sturges' small town comedies, full of a pleasant sort of hokum, with some excellent direction and casting and plenty of fairly ingenious humor.

Eddie Bracken plays a lad who has been brought up to worship the marine corps. His father was a leatherneck who died a hero's death in France at the time his son was born. All set to add further glamor to the corps' record when World War II. starts, the son leaves his home town in a blaze of glory, only to be humiliatingly discharged before he even completes his boot training for an unheroic defect—chronic hayfever.

For obvious reasons, he hates to return home, so he tells his mother he's on his way overseas and not to expect word of him. His disappointment is bitter, and he pours out his story to a group of sympathetic and thirsty marines. The boys decide to fix him up, and they certainly do—in more ways than one!

Mr. Sturges is a master at portraying the small town, and the settings are perfect down to the smallest details. I particularly enjoyed Franklin Pangborn as the harassed m. c. of all town ceremonies, who has a frightful time controling the zealous local talent on big occasions. I also liked the unidentified man who plays the marine who starts most of the trouble because he has what the sergeant describes as a "mother complex"—he never knew his own and is ready to fight any man who is fortunate enough to have one and doesn't treat her right.

Raymond Walburn is excellent as a flannel-mouthed politician whose every sentence is a speech. Bracken carries his role well, and Ella Raines is sufficient, but no world beater, as the gal he left behind.

It seemed to me the story goes a bit out of bounds at the conclusion, but I have no doubt that most people will feel they get their money's worth at "Hail the Conquering Hero."

Thru the Looking Glass

Some women can't bear heavy, greasy creams. Others can't find creams heavy enough. We find ourselves more in the latter than the former class when the really bitter weather sets in, and today we would like to remind you thin skinned sisters of a specially rich cleansing cream.

This isn't new, nor is it one of those products you hear a great deal about, but for our money it's one of the best if you're looking for a cleansing cream that removes grime and lubricates at the same time. It's rich and gooey and while it's not one of those quick-as-a-wink cleansers like the liquefying type, it's worth a little extra trouble.

This simply drips in the jar and on your fingers and smells quite oily, but pleasantly so. We think the best way for the dry skinned woman to use it is to apply it in a pretty heavy film and allow it to stay on for a minute or two. You can work it in if you like—and you should like, because the more of the rich oil your skin will take the more smooth and dewy it will tend to be.

Then, too, you can't remove this in a jiffy with a couple of swift swipes of a tissue. You must remove it painstakingly; it's rich and wonderful, but you'd best remove every single trace of it if you don't want to look greased.

Maybe you might regard this as something of a nuisance—but we assure you that if your skin is dry this cleanser that is also soothing as balm is worth spending a few minutes on.

House Dress

Every job gains dignity thru the wearing of nice clothes suited to the purpose. The woman who has the responsibility of a home should wear smart frocks, and this new pattern is one she will like to make and to wear. Its tailored lines button down the front. Simple rick-rack braid is the trimming. Style No. 2808 is designed for sizes 12 to 48. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 35 inch fabric with ⅝ yard contrasting for collar and 1½ yards of edging.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The winter fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Services offices, is 15 cents, 12 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

Stenographic Trouble.

For the last three years [since he was promoted] a certain boss has been having stenographic trouble. Woman's place is in the home, he said, but the men he hired lasted about three weeks and then either the boss couldn't stand the employe or the employe couldn't stand the boss.

Last June, in desperation, he hired a girl, straight from high school, scarcely out of her bobby socks. She has held the job ever since, and in such a manner that her salary twice has been increased, and, in the firm's post-war plans, the boss is wondering—will she get his job?

Teen-Age Girl Is Treated as a Young Child

(Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

Time and time again I receive letters from mothers about an older child being hard to manage, while the younger one is and has always been good natured and amenable.

Today we have a letter which I believe ties up with just such a situation. And I believe that many of the letters of this kind that come in to this department describe a trouble which frequently dates back to little childhood:

"I have two girls, 14 and 11 years of age. I have practically no trouble with the younger one; she is obedient, alert, and loves to play with other children.

"My older girl is exactly the opposite. Not at all obedient. I always have to keep after her. I keep repeating the same things over day in and day out, but it doesn't seem to help. She is careless, lazy, and doesn't willingly do anything about the house.

"Now that she has reached the age of 14 and shows no improvement, I am worried. Please tell me what I can do to remedy the situation."

It is plain to be seen—and mothers in this sort of "jam" see it themselves—that whatever they're doing is wrong. No matter how logical it may seem to correct this and criticize that, it obviously does not work. It is quite plain that the mother's management meets with failure because it is ill-advised.

If what I think is the situation in these cases, then parents who find themselves up against this kind of a stone wall should do two things.

First, look back and see if this trouble may not have an early origin.

Second, recognize the fact that there is a tremendous—and I do mean tremendous—gap between an 11 and a 14 year old girl. Physically and emotionally she has leaped ahead much more than the three short years might indicate. She is having a difficult time to adjust herself to these changes.

The 14 year old cannot be treated like a child any longer—scolded and punished and directed at every turn. The first step in the right direction is to cut out all of that and enter upon a campaign of praise and friendliness, encouragement, and cooperation. Try it, if you are having a difficult time with a son or daughter of this age. You'll be surprised at the results.

Mrs. K. H., Chicago—Here's a good way to remove a tight fitting lid from a jelly glass without bending the lid out of shape: Place a thin piece of wood on top of the cover to serve as a "stiffener." Then the can opener will press down on the wood but won't bend the cover.

Mrs. Daniel S., Milwaukee, Wis.—It is sometimes hard to insert an electric plug into a wall outlet if the light is poor. To overcome this trouble I file a flat spot on top of the electric plug, and in this way I can feel with my thumb when the prongs are in the right position.

Mrs. Grace S., Rockford, Ill.—When it comes time to tag the little green things in your garden next spring, try my method of "waterproofing" the tags. I print name of the plant on a thick, glossy cardboard, then dip each card in a little melted paraffin. Such tags take the weather amazingly well.

Steps to Keep Youths in School to Be Told to City Club's Board

Civic committee activities of the Woman's City club are reviewed bimonthly by the club's board of managers, and of particular interest at a 10:30 a. m. board meeting Monday will be Mrs. John Gutknecht's report of the child welfare division's efforts to keep Chicago youths in school.

The women have coöperated with the Illinois child labor committee, the United States department of labor, and other groups in assisting Lester Schloerb, occupational research director of the Chicago board of education, with a "back to school" movement. The department also is working with the Juvenile Protective association on violations in the employment of minors.

Post-war plans for enlarging and extending public library facilities thruout the city will be described by Mrs. Arnold Alexander, public library committee chairman, and reports also will be given by Mrs. T. H. Ludlow of the public health department and Mrs. Melville Mucklestone, who is working with groups interested in the rehabilitation of returning veterans and in the readjustment of civilians in the post-war program.

'Private Investigator Maclain'

(Copyright: 1945: By Baynard Kendrick.)

By Baynard Kendrick

EXPENSIVE INVESTMENT.

Larmar considered writing a business. If he never ascended to any great heights, he equally avoided the abysmal lows. After his first two books he had managed to lay out his working hours into a systematized routine—seldom interfered with by sorry memories of the night before. On the terrace in summer and in his study in winter, from 2 to 6 in the afternoon, he produced without too much effort some 2,000 words of fiction in his cramped, meticulous hand. That is to say, he had produced before the disturbing advent of Troy Singleton upon his marital scene.

Seated at his desk on the terrace on the afternoon following the cocktail party, he was busily engaged in constructing a series of boxes neatly connected with parallel lines when he thought about Troy. Troy was a problem.

Larmar had met her a year before at a cocktail party in the Village. Oddly enough, he had been introduced to her by Paul. Lucia was away and Larmar, finding himself at loose ends on a Saturday afternoon, had attached himself to his secretary. They had finished up in two large basement rooms which opened onto a garden. The only thing he remembered distinctly was that Troy stood out from the crowd looking fresh, cool, and composed in an atmosphere as thick as steam.

The outside world was inclined to misjudge Larmar. He enjoyed drinking discreetly with any new girl who offered a mild flirtation. He might follow up with dinners, theaters, and dancing, if he found himself particularly attracted—but his interest was quick to wane.

Troy was different. In the first place, physically, she and Larmar Jordan contrasted to an extreme. Her classic face and symmetrically rounded body had attracted him strongly. Then, instead of gushing, she had passed him over with a word of greeting and started an animated conversation with Paul.

There was a curious quality of ungrown-upness about Troy which had proved that final barb necessary to finally hook and hold the illusive Larmar. She could talk so frankly, so uninhibitedly, telling him everything about herself and her troubles, her black eyes softened with unuttered appeal. At any rate, her technique had to be admired. In the short space of a year she had handily milked a fortune out of Larmar.

Even with the income from his parents' estate, Larmar was not a wealthy man. Lucia was extravagant. In spite of consistently increasing income from his writing, household expenses and current bills kept his bank account pressing very close to the wall. Yet Larmar was canny and over a period of time he had managed to salt away in first class securities quite a tidy sum.

That was before he met Troy.

First, it had been a small matter of a few thousand dollars to get her a part in a show. The expenses of production had, unfortunately, exceeded the estimate. To save his initial investment, Larmar, egged on by Troy's almost suicidal disappointment, had been persuaded to put in more. With her deep dark eyes promising everything, she came to the rescue. Larmar could recoup his losses in the night club business. There were fortunes to be made since the war.

Troy was still as sweet as some early morning blossom. By that time he realized that his gun collection was doomed.

Paul came out on the terrace and glanced accusingly at the pad of doodles. "What do you want?" Larmar asked. "You know I'm not supposed to be disturbed during the afternoon."

"You didn't seem busy," said Paul. "I've typed all the notes on the guns. I thought if you had anything to be copied I'd do it now. Sarah Hanley phoned. Said she had a bite on a serial. She wanted to know when you would have something to show her."

"Well, it might be worth $25,000 at that," Paul threw out by way of a feeler. "You could use it, couldn't you?"

Larmar discovered he had a headache. "Look, it's nearly four, Paul. You've been working hard all day, and I'm in a slump. Where's Lucia?"

"Where the devil is he?"

Paul said, "This is Thursday, his afternoon."

"It's funny," said Larmar, "that I never get an afternoon. But of course writers never work for a living anyhow. All they do is put things down."

"I think I better stay in," said Paul.

"No," said Larmar. "Leave him. If he bothers me I'll shut him in Lucia's room."

Sarah Hanley's phone call about a serial bite on his book had given him a mental prod. Words began to come. He lost himself in work for an hour and a half. It was after half past five when the doorbell rang. Then, cursing softly, he remembered he was in the apartment alone, and went inside to answer the door.

Larmar made no move to step aside. "I'm busy, darling. I thought we settled the matter of your coming here at the cocktail party yesterday afternoon."

She sensed his coolness and said, quite undisturbed, "I've come for the last time, Larmar. I thought it was a good chance to tell you something."

"If it's the last time it's just as well for everybody concerned," said Larmar. "I might as well tell you here and now, I'm broke."

"Easy come and easy go, Larmar." She shrugged, her eyes unreadable. "Don't be so dramatic. We've had a bad run of luck, but you still may collect. That's what I wanted to talk to you about. That, and something else."

"I said I was broke." He still didn't move.

"You might as well let me in and listen. I won't stay long and I know you're here alone." She smiled an impish smile. "Your wife is having cocktails with a newspaper man. I saw her in Robertina's bar just a few minutes ago."

CHARGES OPA'S 'TOUGH' POLICIES PERIL PROGRAM

Charging that the office of price administration has discarded its policy of coöperative education pledged prior to the November election and is embarking on a program of harassing enforcement, Joseph T. Meek, executive secretary of the Illinois Federation of Retail Associations, yesterday predicted chaos in the retail field unless OPA officials seek "friendly coöperation" with retail merchants.

Meek cited new OPA forms with such titles as "compliance docket" which, he declared, "reveal very clearly the local price panel can be judge, jury, and collecting agency for the United States government, with powers pretty much unlimited."

Always More Directives.

Illinois OPA officials in general, Meek said, have been genuinely coöperative but "from Washington comes an insistent stream of directives urging more enforcement, more surveys, more action of one kind or another."

He said that "an inner hierarchy in Washington is dedicated to a procedure of at least four or five surveys on prices a month, surveys conducted by people who are not at all familiar with retail problems."

Tho retailers have the right to go into court and prove price violations unintentional, he said, they go to any length to provide restitution, pay treble damages even tho they are in the right, to protect their names and to keep from appearing in court records and thus open to the inference of guilt.

Grocers All Tired Out.

Another sign of the growing revolt of retailers against burocratic bungling and harassment was contained in the editorial of the January issue of the National Grocers Bulletin, spokesman for 500,000 food retailers.

It asserted food dealers are tired of "burdensome regulations," "of being told how to run their business by individuals who have never had the responsibility of building, operating, and financing a business," and "of being threatened with public ridicule and scorn, and with fines and other penalties, for unintentional violations."

The editorial concluded:

"They are tired because all this, in their belief, only hinders and complicates the war effort. . . . They ask only that they be permitted to operate their business as responsible, honorable Americans, who are giving their best efforts to aid their nation."

GUNMAN HEAVED THRU GLASS BY GAS OPERATOR

NATIONAL CO-OP COUNCIL ASSAILS FARMER DRAFT

Speaks for 2 Million in Food Warning.

Drafting of more farm workers for military service carries a danger of serious shortages of essential food products, the National Council of Farmer Coöperatives warned yesterday in a resolution adopted at the closing session of its 17th annual convention in the Edgewater Beach hotel. The council represents 4,700 coöperative associations with more than two million individual members.

"The farm man power line of national defense is already stretched as thin as consistent with national safety and we cannot count on a repetition of the favorable weather factors that aided so materially in the large production of the war years to date," the resolution said.

Present Labor Overworked.

"A large majority of farms are now being operated only because the younger men are working long, continuous hours beyond anything heretofore believed physically possible and the older men and their families have stepped up their hard work beyond their ability to continue longer."

Another resolution denounced the office of price administration for "inexcusable" delays in establishing or adjusting ceiling prices on farm products. Such delays cause confusion in harvesting, marketing, and processing, wastage of valuable food products, and shortages in consuming areas, with consequent black markets, the resolution said.

Warn of Foreign Competition.

The council commended the OPA's practice of setting up industry advisory committees for consultation on price ceiling regulations, but asserted such consultation should precede the final decision rather than come after the regulation has been drafted.

All the resolutions except one dealing with foreign trade were adopted without dispute on the convention floor, but the tariff question provoked a hot debate. The result was a new paragraph in the foreign trade resolution, asserting:

"Great care will have to be exercised that the great markets of America are not opened up to the importation of the products of cheap labor and low standard of living countries. With respect to crops normally in exportable surplus, steps should be taken to give producers of such crops an American standard of living."

TAVERN ROBBED OF $300 AND CIGARETS.
Burglars who broke into the tavern of John Brash at 4700 Wentworth av. Thursday night stole $300 and 20 cartons of cigarets, Brash reported to the police yesterday.

MILITARY TRIAL ORDERED FOR 2 LANDED BY SUB

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12 (AP).—President Roosevelt has ordered that the two men recently landed on the Maine coast by a German submarine be tried by military tribunal and subjected to the laws of war.

The order does not mention any particular offenses, but declares all citizens of enemy countries who attempt to enter the United States in time of war, and who are charged with attempts at sabotage, espionage, or other hostile acts, "shall be subject to the law of war and to the jurisdiction of military tribunals."

No such an order existed at the time eight Nazis were landed by submarine on the New York and Florida coasts in 1942. Then, the President himself set up a special military commission to try the men. Six of them were executed. Under the order just issued commanding generals in the areas affected automatically will set up military commissions when the need arises.

15 COMPLAIN OF RACKET IN RENTAL DEALS

A group of 15 persons, who complained by letter yesterday to the Better Business bureau of Chicago that they had been victims of the racket requiring purchase of the furnishings of an apartment before they could rent the premises, were advised by F. R. Moorman, head of the bureau's investment department, to take their complaints to the Chicago rent control office. Officials of the rent office said that furniture purchasing requirements violate federal rent regulations and that such cases are investigated and, when substantiated, are prosecuted.

To the Customers of The Peoples Gas Light and Coke Company

OUR GOVERNMENT ASKS ALL OF US TO CONSERVE FUELS

From time to time since the War began, this Company, in cooperation with the United States Government, has asked its customers to conserve gas.

War Mobilization Director Byrnes, through a directive dated January 10, 1945, calls attention to the acute fuel shortage existing and asks the public to exert every effort to conserve all fuels—coal, coke, gas and oil.

While there is need to conserve all forms of fuel, it is indicated that shortages will be most severe in coal. Hundreds of thousands of tons of coal are used yearly to provide you with gas; and gas consumed by our customers this winter, due to war-time demands and low temperatures, has exceeded all previous records. Every cubic foot of gas saved helps the fuel conservation program, not only by saving gas, but coal as well.

1. Keep temperatures in buildings and homes no higher than 68 degrees, as recommended by the United States Government.

2. Use your gas range for supplemental heating as sparingly as possible during extremely cold weather.

3. Be as economical as possible in the use of your other gas appliances.

We have every confidence that the people of Chicago will do their part to comply with the request of our Government to conserve all fuels.

BY FRANK MASTRO.

At least 21 boxers will represent the 87th St. Naval Air Technical Training school in the south sectional Golden Gloves tournament in St. Sabina gymnasium Jan. 29 and 30, it was indicated yesterday by Lt. [j. g.] E. C. [Gene] Rankin, who will coach the squad.

Ten of these sailor and marine entrants will be in the open class and the others in the novice division.

The 16 winners of the south side eliminations will meet the north side champions for city titles in Marigold Garden Feb. 12. The 16 north sectional open and novice titleholders will be determined in competition in Loyola university gymnasium Jan. 31 and Feb. 2. Champions in both divisions will be awarded Golden Gloves. In addition, those capturing open titles will represent Chicago against 25 out of town teams in the Tournament of Champions in the Stadium Feb. 26, 27, and 28.

Rankin Has Strong Team.

It will be the first time for the 87th st. station in the annual tournament sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. Its entry was made possible by wholehearted cooperation from Capt. William O. Gallery, Lt. Comdr. Frank A. Davis, and Lt. Comdr. Patrick H. [Pat] Boland, commanding officer, executive officer, and athletic officer at the station, respectively.

McCarthy Has Seen Action.

McCarthy, native of New York City, joined the navy after seeing service in the merchant marine and is a student in the aviation hydraulics school. His ship was torpedoed off the shore of Singapore and he was taken prisoner by the Japs.

OPEN CLASS.

126 POUNDS—Dave McCarthy, Bronx, N. Y., and Charles J. Amato, Hoboken, N. J. 135 POUNDS—Jack Stella, Philadelphia, Pa., and Herman L. Surles, Orangeburg, S. C. 147 POUNDS—Donald W. First Examinations Thursday.

The station's representatives will be examined on the first night of the bouts at St. Sabina [Jan. 29]. This privilege was granted the service men because of naval duties.

The first pre-tournament examination will be held in C. Y. O. center gymnasium next Thursday, from 6:30 to 8 p. m., for Catholic Youth organization boxers. Other early entrants will be assigned to the second examination on Jan. 24. Final tests will be held Jan. 26.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

IF AL SIMMONS, now on the Athletics' roster, can hold on for 36 days this coming season he will become a 20 year man—and there haven't been many such in the big leagues. . . . When Ted Lyons, the White Sox vet, went into the marine corps he was 74 days shy of the 20 year total. . . . One season is reckoned for every 172 "playing" days. . . . The Fanatorium Majors of Grand Rapids, Mich., a women's bowling team, averaged 925 pins for its first 36 games in league competition this season. . . . Bob Steber of the Nashville Tennesseean predicts that his newspaper will have the most powerful Golden Gloves team in its history, and it has sent some mighty ones to Chicago's Tournament of Champions. . . . The Nashville tourney will start Jan. 29 in the city's Hippodrome. . . . A lot of long distance sluggers have appeared in major league box scores since 1930, but Hack Wilson's record of 190 runs batted in for the Cubs that season still stands. . . . That was the season Hack collected 56 home runs. . . . When the Gridiron club of New Haven held a banquet honoring Yale's Howie Odell he received a watch engraved, "With affectionate admiration for the coach of the least appreciated team in the United States." . . . Alphonse Thomas, manager of the Baltimore International club and former White Sox pitcher, wrote 21 major league clubs asking if they had any players for sale. . . . He received negative replies from 17. . . . Says Coach Harry Stuhldreher of Wisconsin: "Great as was Ohio State's football team in 1944, it was not up to pre-war standard, nor was any other eleven in the Western conference." . . . At least one baseball club is "going south" for spring training this year. . . . The Portland club of the Pacific Coast circuit will work out in San Jose, Cal. . . .

Pete Cawthon, assistant coach and scout for the Detroit Lions, was a recent visitor to the University of Alabama campus in Tuscaloosa. . . . He hoped to sign Ralph Jones, the Crimson Tide's left end and acting captain in the Sugar bowl game. . . . Jones is a free agent, having been overlooked in the National Football league draft, but he has been ordered to report for his selective service examination next Thursday. . . . Michigan State college has a civilian enrollment of 900, as compared to 450 a year ago, which is why the Spartans are booking schedules in boxing, fencing, swimming, wrestling, and track, in addition to basketball. . . . Carl Snavely is said to have written his own contract for the head coach's job at North Carolina. . . . Among the terms, it is reported, are post-war salary of $12,000 annually and a three months vacation each year. . . . Martin Burke, who fought as a heavyweight with fair success, some 10 years ago, now is coining money as a night club operator in New Orleans. . . . Pete Herman, another ex-fighter, also is doing very well in the same business in the same town. . . . Pete Elko, Nashville third baseman, who belongs to the Cubs, won a place on the Southern association's all-star team. . . . Harry Gilmer, Alabama's rifle-shot passer, was a wing back and did no throwing in his first three years at Birmingham's Woodlawn High school. . . .

Short Changers.

Now and again when we run across
An "artist" who deals in "short change,"
We think it's a pretty contemptible trick,
But yet, and isn't it strange,
Many of us, if the truth be known,
Practice that selfsame wile,
But with something much more worth while.

When we don't give to life the returns that we should
For the good things that come our way,
Aren't we, in a sense, short changing,
Holding back part of the pay
That should be returned to the pool of life

WEBER JUNIORS DEAL LEO 29-24 OVERTIME LOSS

Red Horde Wins 28th Straight.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

OTHER PREP NEWS ON NEXT PAGE.

The bright young men who comprise Weber High's junior basketball team opened defense of their Catholic league championship on their home floor with a victory last night, but it required perspiration no end and a goodly dash of dramatics before they could conquer a fighting Leo team, 29 to 24, in an overtime period.

The triumph not only gave the youthful Red Horde its first league decision of the season in south section play, but also extended its winning streak to 28 consecutive games.

Lions Lead at Start.

Leo held a 7 to 2 lead thru most of the first quarter, but baskets by Walt Pokoj, Johnny Stachurski, and Dick Zaleski brought the Horde within a point at the end of the period. Center Joe Srenda tied it up with a free throw early in the second quarter. Stachurski, who ultimately led all scorers with nine points, then came thru with a basket and free throw to give Weber a 10 to 9 advantage at the intermission.

The tempo of the second half was such that the score was tied five times in the final 16 minutes. Bob Kozlowski and Dick Eber contributed three points after Pokoj's long shot had given Weber a 12 to 9 margin. Eber then hit from the side at the end of the quarter to send the Lions into the final period with a 15 to 13 lead.

Scores in Final Minute.

The reliable Stachurski made it 15 to 15 at the outset of the last quarter. Then Milt Mayer, the quarter back of the Horde's league championship football team, tapped in a basket, the first of three for him. He added a long shot, and Leo trailed by four points. Don Tesmond then scored for Leo, but Zaleski made a long one. After Dick Kloser added one for the Lions, Pat McGinnis of the south siders connected from the corner to tie it at 21 to 21. Kozlowski scored on a push shot, but with less than a minute remaining, Stachurski deadlocked it again.

In the overtime, Mayer scored what proved to be the deciding basket, and Stachurski slipped in a sleeper shot. Mayer passed out to Zrenda for an easy basket, and Kloser's free throw for Leo ended the scoring.

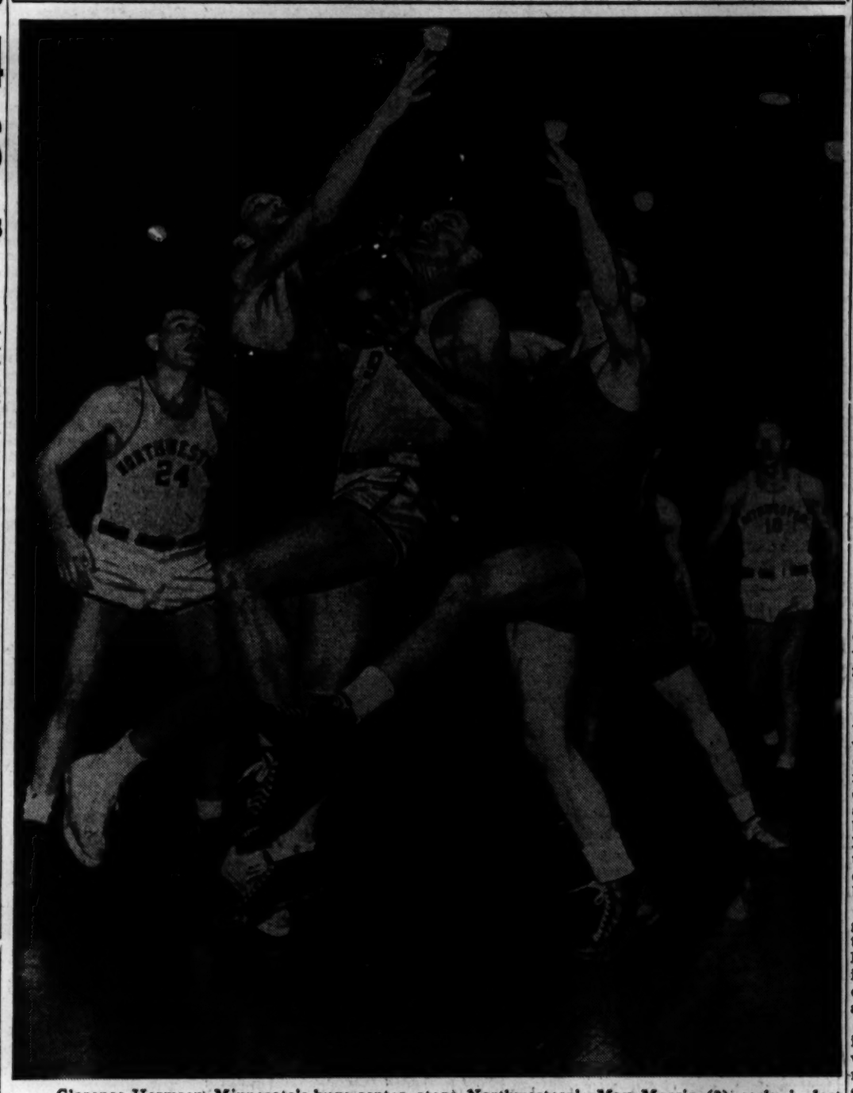
WILDCATS ARE STOPPED, BUT NOT FOR LONG



Clarence Hermsen, Minnesota's huge center, stops Northwestern's Max Morris (9) early in last night's game in Evanston, but the Wildcats were too tough on most other occasions. As a result they whipped the Gophers, 52 to 33, for the second victory in two Big Nine games. Other players are Bud Pettit (24) and Frank Wright (10), both of Northwestern, and Ralph Holmberg (14) of Minnesota.

WAUKEGAN FIVE RALLIES, BEATS PROVISO, 34-33

BOX SCORES ON NEXT PAGE.

Waukegan High school, trailing Proviso, 22 to 16 at the half, last night rallied to win, 34 to 33, in a closely contested heavyweight game in the Suburban league, after the Proviso frosh-soph team had defeated the Waukegan juniors, 29 to 14, in the first game.

Evanston and New Trier also divided in two games. The New Trier heavyweights, leading by one point, 15 to 14, at the half, added six points to that margin in the final two quarters to win, 35 to 28. The Evanston juniors won, 32 to 30.

Morton Wins Two.

Morton and Oak Park rounded out the Suburban league schedule, with Morton winning both games. The Morton heavyweights won, 43 to 26, while the frosh-soph team triumphed, 59 to 47.

The Riverside heavyweight team routed La Grange, substituting freely to win, 56 to 25, after holding a 31 to 10 half time advantage. In the junior game, it was a different tale, with the La Grange lightweights taking a 26 to 24 decision in a nip and tuck contest.

The Hinsdale lightweights and the Maine heavyweights were victorious in the third West Suburban meeting. Hinsdale's juniors defeated Maine, 34 to 17, but Maine came back to beat Hinsdale, 31 to 24, in the senior game.

Calumet City, Blue Island Win.

Calumet City and Blue Island each came thru with double victories in the South Suburban league. The Calumet heavyweight team trounced Bloom, 48 to 27, while the Blue Island heavyweights routed Argo, 40 to 23. In the lightweight clash, Calumet and Bloom played a closely contested game, with Calumet winning, 24 to 23.

Kankakee and Thornton divided in the third South Suburban meeting. The Kankakee heavyweights won, 42 to 40, while the Thornton lightweights triumphed, 34 to 28.

Army, Marine Officers Laud College Sports

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Jan. 12.—The status of intercollegiate athletics in the post-war period was the topic for discussion today in the joint session of the National Collegiate Athletic association, the College Physical Education association, and the American Football Coaches' association. These associations are holding their conventions here simultaneously and met together to hear the opinions of nationally known figures.

Today's speakers were Howard L. Bevis, president of Ohio State university; Dean Norman S. Buck of Yale university; Brig. Gen. William W. Welsh, army air forces, and Col. Emery E. [Swede] Larson, United States marine corps.

Training Is Imperative.

Gen. Welsh and Col. Larson, a former coach of the United States Naval academy football team, pointed out the necessity of physical conditioning during war time, praised the training courses conducted by the physical educators and the football coaches, and united in the belief that it will be imperative to continue this training and add to the program when peace comes.

Coaches and educators were urged to redouble their efforts and to maintain their programs so that the nation's youth will be physically ready for war and peace. The football men, who assembled from all sections of the country for their 22d annual meeting—the first since Pearl Harbor—agreed that intercollegiate competition in general, and football in particular will be continued.

The physical educators continued discussion of an intercollegiate competitive program in the afternoon. Speakers for the small college group, at which Clarence P. Houston of Tufts college presided, were Carl K. Dellmuth, Swarthmore; Lloyd Messersmith, DePauw, and Lysle K. Butler, Oberlin.

Coaches Suggest Changes.

Ogden D. Miller of Yale presided over the discussion at the large college session. Speakers were H. C. Willett, Southern California; A. W. Hobbs, North Carolina, and Ralph W. Aigler, Western conference faculty representative from the University of Michigan.

Lou Little, Columbia university football coach, presented his rules committee's recommendations to the coaches' convention in the afternoon. The report will be forwarded to the football rules committee of the N. C. A. A. which will act on these proposed changes and draw up the football code for 1945 at a meeting next month.

While the coaches are by no means unanimous on the proposal to permit forward passing from any point behind the line of scrimmage—a passer now must be 5 yards back—the recommendation was approved. The coaches also ask that a one inch artificial tee be permit-

FOUR BIG NINE DUELS HEADLINE TONIGHT'S CARD

The tempo of Western conference basketball campaign will be stepped up tonight as eight of the nine teams play important games. The Minnesota Gophers will invade the Wisconsin Badgers' stronghold, Iowa's unbeaten Hawkeyes entertain Purdue's dark horse Boilermakers, Michigan's Wolverines play host to the fast moving Illini, and the champion Ohio State Buckeyes go up against Northwestern in Columbus, O. Indiana's Hoosiers will be idle, their scheduled game with Ball State Teachers having been canceled.

In other important games in the midwest, Michigan State will play at the University of Kentucky, Great Lakes will seek its 15th straight victory as it faces Marquette in Milwaukee, and De Paul will play the University of Western Kentucky in Louisville. The Iowa Seahawks meet the Missouri Tigers of the Big Six conference in Columbia, Mo.

Iowa Expects Full House.

Iowa, one of the Big Nine leaders and generally regarded as Ohio State's No. 1 challenger for the 1945 title, is expecting a capacity crowd of 11,000 for its clash with Purdue, which scored quite an upset in beating Ohio State's champions last week. The Hawkeyes, who like to run and shoot, as is attested by their 68.4 point average this season, expect to run up against the same ball control game which the Gophers used against them so successfully. It was this same type of deliberate attack which Ward [Piggy] Lambert directed against the favored Buckeyes with the resultant 37 to 36 Purdue triumph.

SCHADLER AND MORRIS SCORE 14 POINTS EACH

Wildcats' Second Big 9 Victory.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

The Minnesota Gophers, given advance billing as a pretty hot article in Western Conference basketball circles, received a chilling reception from Northwestern's Wildcats last night in the Evanston High school gymnasium as the Purple clad squad scored its second straight Big Nine victory, 52 to 33.

Northwestern's triumph, which was handily earned, principally thru the return to top form of Capt. Bennie Schadler and the continued brilliance of Max Morris, gave the boys quite a lift for their trip to Columbus, O., where tonight they meet Ohio State, reigning champions. The team left immediately after last night's game.

Wildcats Well Balanced.

Northwestern showed a much better balanced team than the Gophers, who recently whipped Purdue, conquerors of the Buckeyes in their first meeting this season. The Wildcats were able to offset the Gophers' advantage in height, as represented by 6 foot 7 inch Clarence [Kleggie] Hermsen, with a closer knit defense than the Minnesotans and a sharper offense, an attack which continually broke in for close-in scoring shots.

Schadler, who had been unable to get going in earlier games, showed the class which made him the team's leading scorer last year, and pitched in seven goals for 14 points. Morris equaled that total with five goals and four free throws.

Minnesota's attack was almost nil in the first half as Northwestern went off the floor for the rest period, leading, 23 to 8. The Wildcat defense forced the Gophers into numerous long shots, and they weren't able to connect. Despite Hermsen's height, the Gophers were unable to cash in on under-the-basket operations and failed on many of the rebounds.

Muske Leads Gophers.

The Gophers were the first to score after about three minutes of cautious action, Arnie Lehrman slipping one in from the side. Then the Wildcats opened up and scored three baskets, by Morris, Frank Wright, and Bud Pettit.

Joe Knoblauch counted a free throw for the visitors and Morris slipped in a rebound for two more. Hermsen scored from underneath, Morris followed with a hook shot, and the Wildcats led, 9 to 5.

Schadler Goes to Town.

Wallie Rucke, marine veteran of Tarawa, narrowed the gap with a long one and then Schadler went to work. He whipped in four in a row, all from long range, and, when Morris made a free throw, the Wildcats were out in front to stay, holding a 20 to 7 advantage.

The Purple drive was stopped momentarily when Hermsen made a free throw, but in the closing minutes of the period, Pettit hit from the side and Morris added a free throw.

Schadler added two more field goals as the second half started and Morris came thru with one before Hermsen broke it up with a free throw. Schadler came right back with another from the field, his seventh, and Pettit hit from the side to widen Northwestern's lead to 33 to 9.

Subs Get Their Chance.

Knoblauch halted the Wildcat drive with a basket and a free throw and Ray Christesen and Muske hit in succession. With the score 38 to 21, substitutions were run in until none of the starting lineup of either team was on the floor. The Gophers then rallied, and almost earned a draw for the second half scoring honors. Lineups:

SILVER SKATES TUNEUP EVENTS END TOMORROW

Hold Peirce, C.Y.O. Meets at Humboldt Park.

The Peirce skating meet this afternoon in Humboldt park, followed tomorrow by the C. Y. O. Derbies at the same site, completes the program of the races sanctioned by the Illinois Skating association prior to THE TRIBUNE'S 28th Silver Skates Derbies. The Silver Skates events will be held next Saturday and Sunday in Garfield park.

Public School Meet Today.

The 23d annual Chicago Public High School league ice skating meet will be held this morning at 10 o'clock at Waveland av. in Lincoln park. Taft is the defending champion in the senior division and Senn holds the junior crown. Ninety-five skaters will compete in the junior division and 110 in the senior events.

Schools entered include Amundsen, Austin, Chicago Vocational, Crane, Lane, Lindbloom, Roosevelt, Schurz, Senn, Sullivan, Taft, and Tilden.

Races will be held in 10 age classes this afternoon at Peirce and the Peirce playground skaters, coached by Fred Gohl, will be represented by a squad which includes Fred and Richard Gross, who hold state titles, and by Joan Holm, who tied for the girls' juvenile state championship.

Beginners' races will begin at 1 p. m. and the regular Illinois Skating association events will start at 1:30.

C. Y. O. Seeks to Regain Prestige.

The Catholic Youth organization, which lost its first meet in more than a score of Derbies last week to Glen Ellyn A. A. A. in the state meet, hopes to regain its status as the outstanding skating organization in Chicago tomorow.

Two days remain in which entries will be accepted for The Tribune Derbies next week. All letters must be postmarked before midnight tomorrow. The lists then will be compiled by the clerks and printed to facilitate passing out the racing numbers to contestants next Saturday and Sunday.

First Five Places Count.

Altho six prizes are awarded in each of the eight Derbies, only five places count in the team scoring. These are graded from 50 points for its title to 10 points for fifth place. The C. Y. O. is defending champion, and has possession of the Walter Eckersall Memorial trophy which was placed in competition in 1931.

Iowa will start the same select five which has beaten Macomb teachers, South Dakota State, Nebraska, Denver, Notre Dame, and Michigan State, in addition to its lone Big Nine triumph over Minnesota. Dick Ives and Ned Postels will be at the forward posts, Clayton Wilkinson will be at center, Herb Wilkinson and Jack Spencer at guard.

Michigan will be at top strength as it faces the Illini in quest of its 10th victory in 11 games. Coach Doug his team can win. Junior Kirk still favors an injured foot; Jack Burmeister has an injured knee which won't allow him to go the full 40 minutes, and Don Delaney hasn't regained his strength from a tonsilectomy during the holidays.

Badgers' Patterson Ill.

The University of Wisconsin outfit will be making its second attempt to break into the victory column against the Gophers. The Badgers again may be handicapped by the loss of Ray Patterson, who, after rejoining the squad on Monday, failed to report for practice the last two days due to another cold. He may be able to play part time.

Coach Bud Foster will stick to his regular Wisconsin lineup if Patterson starts. If not, either Gene Mathews or Vince Goering will be at forward. Both are little fellows.

Sherrer Wins; Bell, Jolson Fight Draw

After five rounds of see-saw action, Sherrer, 19, found the range and had Eaton on the verge of a knockout in the sixth. Jack recovered between rounds but Sherrer's fast finish gained for him the unanimous vote of Referee Howard Walsh and Judges James Lynch and George Kenny.

Jolson Floors Foe.

Al Jolson, New Orleans, La., welterweight, and O'Neil Bell of Detroit fought to a draw in an eight round co-feature. Jolson, 3 to 1 underdog, appeared to have an edge. He floored Bell for a two count in the sixth round.

Art McWhorter, former Gary sectional Golden Gloves light heavyweight champion, hammered out a decision over Charles Polk in six rounds and Johnny Flanagan, also a Golden Gloves graduate, knocked out Dave Mason, Cleveland heavyweight, in the first round of another bout set for six rounds.

Provide Extra Entertainment.

After Flanagan floored Mason for the count two Negro women, identified as Dave's wife and his sister, clambered onto the ring apron and verbally belabored Flanagan for his achievement, his seventh straight victory. When Illinois athletic commission inspectors and Andy Frain ushers attempted to eject them they were struck repeatedly by the women's purses to the accompaniment of roars of laughter from the crowd.

BIG TEN EXPECTS TO TAKE TIME IN NAMING LEADER

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Columbus, O., Jan. 12.—Altho nearly all of the directors of athletics of the Western conference are here today attending the meetings of the National Collegiate Athletic association and the American Football Coaches' association, no conference meeting will be held to continue discussion leading to selection of a commissioner to succeed the late Maj. John L. Griffith, it was reported by one of the directors.

"The conference may not pick a commissioner until May or early summer," one director said. "We can operate satisfactorily for the time being."

K. L. [Tug] Wilson, director of athletics at Northwestern university, who is a member of the directors' committee conducting affairs of the commissioner's office, has been mentioned as Maj. Griffith's successor. Most recent rumor is that H. O. [Fritz] Chrisler, Michigan athletic director, who is on the executive committee with L. W. St. John of Ohio State, and Wilson, may be offered the commissionership.

Ask Speed-Up Program for Prep Football

BY DAVID CONDON.

The National Federation of High School Athletic associations last night concluded all business except a meeting of the football rules committee, as the executive board met in final session in the Continental hotel. The football committee will meet today in the Hamilton hotel to discuss proposals which, if enacted, would open up high school football action until the preps might rival the professional game in wide open play.

Last night's meeting of the executive committee was merely an organization gathering, after delegates had reëlected B. C. Alwes of Louisiana and elected John K. Archer of New York to three year terms as members of the committee.

Adopt Three Major Proposals.

The most important action taken by the federation came in the day sessions as members approved three major proposals:

1. That the federation would cooperate with the Amateur Athletic union in an alliance agreement to be mutually established.

2. Acceptance of a baseball agreement with a committee of major and minor league members which is intended to secure the coöperation of both parties in preventing high school players from taking any action that might make them ineligible for high school sports competition.

3. Admittance of three new states, New Hampshire, Vermont, and Delaware, into the association.

Previous to the enactment of these proposals, the federation heard Lt. Col. Louis H. Renfrow of the selective service department in Washington declare that in his opinion the best method of decreasing service rejections because of mental hygiene and psycho-neurotic disorders, was a well balanced educational, recreational, and athletic program. He said these programs would insure mental as well as physical fitness.

43 States Now Members.

The admittance of Delaware, Vermont, and New Hampshire into the federation increased the total state membership to 43 and leaves only Texas, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, and Rhode Island out of the organization.

Most important measures to be considered by the football committee meeting today will be a proposal which would permit the defending team to run with a recovered fumble and a rule change that would sharpen the attack of the T formation by increasing the number of eligible pass receivers.

The latter suggestion would make a quarter back eligible to receive a forward pass, even tho he first handles the ball less than a yard behind the center. Several other minor changes also will be considered.

Chicago Latin, Groth Defeat F. Parker Five

The Chicago Latin heavyweight basketball team, paced by Johnny Groth, won its third victory in four games by knocking Francis Parker out of the undefeated class in the Private School league yesterday, 27 to 25. Chicago Latin trailed, 16 to 13, at the half. Groth, a guard, scored 16 points.

Todd School of Woodstock routed Wheaton academy, 48 to 19, to keep its title hopes alive and University High defeated North Shore, 29 to 26. The Todd and University junior teams also won, Todd beating Wheaton, 31 to 12, and University defeating North Shore, 20 to 18.

POLICE CAPTAIN LIST POSTPONED BY DRURY SNARL

Merit Board Opens Study of Court Order.

Police captain problems of the city civil service commission were further complicated yesterday when Superior Judge Joseph A. Graber issued a mandamus ordering the commission to give a competitive promotional examination to Lt. William J. Drury within 15 days.

Walter L. Gregory, commission chairman, immediately postponed publication of the eligibility list of 131 lieutenants who took examinations last September for promotions to captaincies. He had planned to post the list yesterday.

Drury Ineligible in September.

Lt. Drury was acting captain at Town Hall station last summer when he and six captains were discharged for alleged failure to suppress gambling. Judge Graber recently ordered all these officers reinstated. Drury was not eligible for the September examinations, as he nominally was no longer a member of the department.

Chairman Gregory and James B. Cashin, a commission member, spent an hour yesterday in private discussion of Judge Graber's order to qualify Drury for promotion, then told newspaper reporters that the commission will study the mandamus carefully in regard to its effects on civil service rights of other police officers.

Careful Study Required.

"The order places a serious responsibility on the commission," Gregory said, "and before it determines the course to be taken the commission will study the facts very carefully."

Gregory said he did not know whether an examination could be given to Drury within 15 days. The 10 questions asked the other lieutenants are no longer secret, he said, and cannot be used in a test for Drury.

Rules Complicate Issue.

Civil service rules provide competitive examinations for promotions, and Drury could not be given an examination different from that the other men took, lawyers said. It may be necessary to give a new examination for all the lieutenants, they suggested.

It was reported yesterday that Atty. Francis X. Busch had been retained by lieutenants eligible for captaincies and 25 sergeants eligible for lieutenancies to take court action to force immediate posting of the captains' list.

BABY SMOTHERS TWIN, 11 MONTHS, IN THEIR BED

Jean Keating, 11 months old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Keating, 8303 S. State rd., Stickney township, was smothered yesterday, apparently by her twin sister, Joan. The twins were in bed in an upstairs rooms when their parents heard a cry. Mrs. Keating hurried to them, and found Joan lying on Jean, the latter's face pressed against the bedding. Jean was unconscious. Keating, a defense worker, tried artificial respiration, then took Jean to the Little Company of Mary hospital, where further resuscitation efforts were futile.

FREED AS DEATH SUSPECT, DIES IN BUILDING PLUNGE

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 12 [Special].—Lee Borden Judson, 67, former Chicagoland resident who was freed yesterday in a murder case in which his wife was held for trial, today plunged to his death from the 13th floor of a downtown office building. His body fell to the fourth floor landing in a light well.

"Some way I knew this last night," sobbed his wife, Louise Peete Judson, 63, in the county jail. "He could not face the disgrace I brought upon him. As long as it was with him he was a marked man. Our life together was so beautiful he told me 'If you ever leave me, I'll take sleeping' powders'."

Judson, who worked on newspapers at Elgin, Ill., 35 years ago and recently had been a bank messenger, was married to Mrs. Peete last May. He was stunned when he learned last month, when she was arrested for murder, that she had served 18 years in prison for an earlier murder. She is now charged with slaying Mrs. Margaret Logan, 60, a real estate agent who employed her as a housekeeper.

AUTO DEATHS UP; ARROGANT WAR WORKER BLAMED

War workers with a superiority complex are responsible for most of the automobile accidents which resulted in an increase in injuries and fatalities last year, James Gilruth, director of engineering and safety for the Illinois Automobile club, said yesterday at a meeting of the traffic committee of the city council.

"Eighty per cent of traffic accidents are caused by war workers or drivers who think they are war workers," he said. "They think they can get away with things ordinary citizens cannot do, and they even carry this attitude into court when they are arrested."

Injuries	15,134	14,789
Killed	417	372

There were 1,138 accidents in January, compared with 964 in the low month of April; 1,404 persons injured in January, compared with 1,040 in November, and 49 persons were killed in December, compared with 25 in August.

WPB EXPANDS 1945 MUNITIONS PLANS SHARPLY

Spurt Assures Jobs for All, Says Krug.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12 [Special].—War Production Chairman Krug today announced a big increase in war production programs. The "second wind" spurt scheduled for early this year will guarantee a war job for every American who wants one, he said, and apprehension of workers over possible layoffs because of cutbacks "can now be dispelled."

Half of all munitions programs must rise 65 per cent, on the average, over the 1945 schedules which were set last fall when an early end of the war in Europe appeared probable, Krug told a press conference. "Hot" types of planes, including Super Fortresses, and jet-propelled fighters, will go up threefold by June.

Demand Larger Than in '44.

WPB and the army and navy now are scheduling about 2½ billion dollars of new weapons and supplies, which will bring total 1945 armament output to about 64½ billions, somewhat higher than 1944, Krug said.

Tanks, trucks, planes and weapons for divisions of the French army now being formed will account for part of the new increase, Krug acknowledged, but he would not state how much of the 2½ billion dollars increase is destined for France.

Krug disclosed the expanded program included increases of 1 billion dollars each in ships and combat vehicles, and a 30 per cent increase in ammunition. The increases range on various items from 5 per cent to 600 or 700 per cent.

Boost Boeing Output.

A 9 per cent increase in aircraft, both in numbers and weight, is on the books. As typical of increases sought Krug cited the Boeing plant at Renton, Wash. In December it produced 35 Super Fortresses but by July it and the Boeing factory at Seattle are scheduled to produce a total of 200 a month.

The Ford plant at Willow Run, Mich., which makes the B-24 Liberator, will at least continue its present rate of production, with a possibility of an increase, Krug said. It was planned to cut production at Willow Run.

Total plane production, he said, will run about 82,250, instead of the 76,000 previously scheduled. Besides the 50 per cent of armament programs which will rise, 15 per cent will stay at present levels, and 35 per cent will taper off, Krug stated. The "tremendous" increases called for in the rising schedules will more than offset the planned declines.

Civilian Output Cut.

The supply of metals allotted for spot production was cut so deeply that one of Krug's lieutenants summarized: "Output will be reduced to a driblet." Authorizations already made will not be canceled, but material may be lacking to fill them and new requests will be held to a minimum.

Heavy drains on copper, brass, steel, aluminum sheet, lead, and other metals necessitated the new tightening of the "spot" civilian goods program, Krug said.

Spot Plan Is "Shelved."

The new clampdown on materials—following the recent suspension of new authorizations in 125 industrial areas—means that the spot plan has been virtually "laid on the shelf" indefinitely, one associate of Krug stated.

Krug reported the allocation of carbon steel for spot manufacturers had been cut from 250,000 tons in the January-February-March quarter to 150,000 tons, while alloy steels were trimmed from 25,000 tons to 10,000. Deeper cuts can be expected later, it was predicted.

New allotments of copper and copper alloy products—except foundry items—were halted entirely. Aluminum sheet is so scarce, Krug said, that few mills will be able to make deliveries to spot producers.

Two Carriers Install New Safety Lights

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

To increase safety in train operation, the North Western and Rock Island railroads are installing powerful red emergency flashing lights on the rear of passenger trains. The new lights are similar in type to the big locomotive lights that describe figure eights on high speed trains, officials of the two railroads said yesterday.

The new device was described as one of the most notable safety measures to be adopted by railroads in recent years. It was developed to prevent rear end collisions and is to be used only in emergencies.

When a train is brought to a stop in an emergency, a trainman pushes a switch which starts the red light cutting figure eights just before he hops off the train to post signal lights and torpedoes on the track. The red flashing light is left on while the train is moving slowly after an emergency.

"We consider the new light a forward step in the art of railroading," L. L. White, North Western vice president in charge of operations, said. "However, we consider it an adjunct to the flagman; it is not to decrease his responsibilities in maintaining train safety."

Altho for the time being it will be necessary for a trainman to throw a switch to start the light, White said the time may come when it may be activated automatically. It will be possible for the light switch to be thrown at certain speeds, when the train is traveling 10 miles an hour, for example.

Developed from Earlier Device.

J. D. Farrington, chief executive officer of the Rock Island, has been one of the pioneers in experiments with the light which is a product of the Mars Signal Light company, Chicago.

Experiments show that the red flashing rear light can be seen about eight miles at night and about three in daylight. The red flashing light, which is turned on at the front of the train by the engineer only in an emergency, can be seen about 10 miles and under certain favorable weather conditions in the west up to 50 miles.

MANUFACTURERS OPPOSE BILL FOR DRAFT OF LABOR

Directors of the Illinois Manufacturers' association yesterday adopted a resolution opposing enactment of legislation authorizing federal officials to draft men and women for war work.

"It is common knowledge that Illinois manufacturing industry has converted to war production promptly, completely and efficiently and has made a remarkable war production record," the resolution said. "If this production record is to be continued, it is essential that the government avoid the imposition of undue restrictions upon management and workers.

"We believe that forced labor would impede war production in this state and interfere with the war effort. We accordingly express our opposition to the principle of compulsory drafting or man power for war production work."

AIR LINE TELLS PLANS FOR NEW AFRICAN FLIGHT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12 (AP).—Post-war plans for a 34 hour air route from New York to South Africa were described to the civil aeronautics board today. Pan American Airways said it could make the hop in that time with 59 seat luxury passenger planes. The fare would be $368 one way.

They would utilize a new route via the Azores Islands, instead of their present South American hop, line officials said. The Azores route would provide the "shortest and cheapest" method of travel between the points involved.

"Unless this is done much of the travel to Africa would proceed to Europe and thence by foreign flag lines rather than an American service," they said. Five other companies also are seeking post-war South Atlantic routes.

Graham-Paige Starts Big Landing Craft Order

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 12 (AP).—Graham-Paige Motors corporation today announced it had begun work on a 25 million dollar navy contract for amphibious landing craft and had received an order for approximately 10 million dollars of additional craft as soon as the present schedule is completed.

Senators Told Plan May Pay Its Way.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12 (AP).—An estimate that 12 to 15 billion dollars would be required to buy up and demolish slums and "blighted areas" in America's bigger cities was made today by Alfred Bettman in testimony to the senate subcommittee on post-war economic policy. He represented the American Institute of Planners, whose members include officials of numerous cities.

Urging that the federal government back such a program, Bettman estimated it could be financed for 750 millions a year. The eventual net cost to the government may be nothing under a plan whereby income from redeveloped areas would be used to repay the treasury, he said.

Realty Group Backs Idea.

Backing for a city redevelopment program also came from Seward H. Mott, testifying for the Urban Land institute, a private organization whose members are drawn mainly from the building and real estate businesses. Government housing agency officials also have indorsed such a project.

Under the plan advanced by Bettman, an interested city would draw up a redevelopment plan. If this were approved by a federal redevelopment authority the government would lend the money without interest or at very low interest rates to buy the "blighted properties" and clear the area.

Funds derived from resale of the properties, ground rents, or leases would go to repay the federal loan—so far as they would reach.

Taft Questions U. S. Position.

Chairman Taft [R., O.] of the subcommittee questioned Bettman as to where federal interest arose in such a program. The senator said there would be a public welfare interest if the areas were primarily slums and substandard dwellings, but he could not understand any national economic interest in removing obsolete warehouses and nondwelling properties.

Mott urged "elimination or more careful control of federal subsidized public housing." Remodeling of existing dwellings, he suggested, may be a better and cheaper method than new construction.

GRAIN FUTURES END MIXED; CORN AND OATS ACTIVE

Grain futures prices closed mixed yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade, altho buying by cash interests helped corn and oats prices, especially May deliveries. The feed grain market was developing independent strength, brokers said.

Altho no new seasonal high prices were established for corn or oats, and the advance was pared in sympathy with easiness in wheat and rye, corn closed ⅛ cent higher to ⅛ lower and oats ⅝ higher to ⅛ lower. May oats closed at 70⅝ cents, a new high since last July.

Rye moved within a range of about 1 cent and closed ⅛ to ⅜ lower. Wheat was dull and ¼ higher to ⅛ lower. There was no trading in barley futures.

MAKE RECHARGE DEVICE FOR WET FLASH BATTERY

B. F. Goodrich company has developed a recharger unit which reenergizes the company's new type wet cell flashlight batteries, it was announced yesterday. The device works off the ignition system of virtually any gasoline engine and may be attached to the dashboard, cowl, side panel, or any of several other places. It should prove valuable in keeping fully charged the flashlights used in connection with transport trucks, police and fire vehicles, war plant patrol, taxicabs, trucks, buses, and delivery and repair trucks, the company said.

MILITARY NEED PINCHES FILM, PAPER SUPPLIES

New York, Jan. 12 (AP).—Increased military demands in the last six weeks have produced a severe shortage of film and photographic paper for commercial use, manufacturers and dealers said today.

Demand for both film and paper for military and war production use is so large that Eastman Kodak company cannot fill quotas allowed for commercial use, its officials said.

THE PRICE OF LIVE HOGS

BY AL CHASE.

The seven story apartment building at 191 E. Walton pl., one of "Streeterville's" best known properties, was purchased yesterday by an undisclosed buyer for $175,000. Title was taken by David Taylor, attorney for buyer. The seller was the Marmo corporation, in which the Joy Morton estate was said to be a large stockholder. The corporation was represented by Murray Wolbach.

Edward Hopkins Jr. of Sudler & Co., who negotiated the sale, said the new owner, a prominent Chicagoan, bought the property solely for investment and had no plans for remodeling or changing the size of the apartments. Sudler & Co. will manage the property after March 1.

Mortgage Foreclosed in 1933.

Built in the early 1920s from plans by the late Howard VanDoren Shaw, one of Chicago's leading architects, the building had six large apartments of 13 rooms each, one to a floor. Six prominent families occupied them.

In 1933 the Provident Mutual Life Insurance company of Philadelphia foreclosed a mortgage and took over the property. Five years later it spent $80,000 remodeling the six big suites into 26 units of two, three, and four rooms each.

Winthrop Towers Sold.

The 12 story Winthrop Towers apartment hotel, at 6151 Winthrop av., was sold by Winthrop Towers Hotel corporation to an undisclosed syndicate for $285,000. Title was taken by the Liberty National bank, trustee. The building contains 120 furnished four and five room suites. Philip E. Gold was attorney for the buyer and Joseph F. Sheen for the seller.

The square block of land bounded by Wells and Schiller sts. and North Park and Evergreen avs. was sold by Zeigler Store company to Evergreen-Wells corporation for $177,000. Part of the land is improved with five five-story buildings, containing 250,000 square feet of floor space, under a 10 year lease to the Scholl Manufacturing company, maker of orthopedic supplies.

HOG PRICES DIP UP TO 25 CENTS ON BIG SUPPLY

Hog prices fell yesterday as shipments from farms increased seasonally. Many kinds finished as much as 25 cents below Thursday and in some instances 30 to 45 cents below the ceiling prices. The average sank 10 cents, to $14.55, equaling the lowest average since Dec. 23.

Early buyers gave the $14.75 ceiling for about 1,000 choice 190 to 230 pound spring pigs, but soon afterward large droves of similar kinds moved to the scales at $14.60 or $14.65.

Butler December Sales Lower than Year Ago

Butler Brothers yesterday reported consolidated sales in December were $10,613,719, a decrease of 12.45 per cent from a year earlier. Sales in 1944 were $118,823,743, a decrease of 4.63 per cent.

1944 DIVIDEND TOTAL CLIMBS 3.3 PER CENT; LARGEST SINCE 1941

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12 (AP).—Publicly reported cash dividends amounted to $3,685,500,000 in 1944, the commerce department reported today. The total was 3.3 per cent above 1943 payments of $3,568,800,000 and the most since $3,942,000,000 was disbursed in 1941. The 1942 figure was $3,530,500,000. Those were the only years in which the department made such a compilation. Dividends last month were $774,100,000, an increase of 5.9 per cent from December, 1943.

Mining dividends last year rose 8.4 per cent, "miscellaneous" 5.1, and manufacturing 5 from 1943. Railroads, communications, finance, and trade experienced minor changes. Heat, light, and power declined slightly with gas up 10.6 per cent and electric light and power down 1.2.

Within the manufacturing division automobile company dividends were up 26.1 per cent and oil refining 14. Textiles and leather declined 3.7, non-ferrous metals 2.8, iron and steel 1.8, and electrical machinery, 1.7.

PREFER PRIVATE TO GOVERNMENT STANDARDS RULE

New York, Jan. 12 (AP).—Undersecretary of Commerce Taylor said after a discussion with industrial leaders today that the group's consensus was that private rather than government decisions should determine standards for consumer goods. The commerce department called the meeting after it had received criticisms of present standardization groups, and said there had been strong demand for government performance standards for consumer goods and standards in fields not hitherto covered.

The conference, however, approved steps taken by the American Standards association to broaden its work "so that it may deal with any standards or standardization project whether in the field of engineering, accounting, business practice, or consumer goods and which deserves national recognition."

Charles E. Wilson, president of the General Electric company, was named chairman of a committee to act in an advisory capacity to the department of commerce and the A. S. A. Taylor said the department would give full consideration to any recommendations made.

CHICAGO ROADS LITTLE AFFECTED BY TRAVEL RULE

The office of defense transportation order requiring railroads to discontinue schedules on which seat occupancy averaged less than 35 per cent in November, 1944, will have little effect on some lines operating out of Chicago, rail officials said yesterday. Among those who expressed this view were representatives of the Rock Island, Burlington, Milwaukee, and North Western railroads.

None of the restrictions on railroad service to resorts or vacation areas affects the Pullman company, Pullman officials said. The company has complied with all restrictions on use of equipment, they said.

Order Cut in Coal Shipped from Midwest to Plants

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12 (AP).—The solid fuels administration today ordered reductions in shipments of Illinois and western Kentucky coal to industries having more than 20 days' supply. The reductions, amounting to 15 to 50 per cent of orders for shipment between Jan. 15 and Feb. 1, completed an emergency program covering midwestern coal in the face of a tight supply situation in that area.

FOUR ELECTED NEW DIRECTORS IN CONTINENTAL

Bank Orders Usual Dividend of $2.

Four new directors were elected by stockholders of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company at the annual meeting yesterday, increasing the board's membership to 19. Two of the new directors were elected as replacements. Other board members were reelected.

Arthur S. Barrows.

L. P. Fisher Succeeds Brother.

The new directors are Lawrence P. Fisher, vice president of Fisher & Co. and a director of General Motors corporation; Arthur S. Barrows, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Charles Y. Freeman, chairman of Commonwealth Edison company, and R. L. Williams, president of the North Western railroad.

Lawrence P. Fisher was elected to succeed his brother, Charles T. Fisher, who became ineligible to remain a director because as a director of Detroit Edison company, under a recent securities and exchange commission ruling, he is not permitted to be a director of a bank outside the Detroit area. The other vacancy on the board was caused by the death last October of Donald R. McLennan.

Consolidation Is Approved.

Stockholders also approved consolidation of the bank with the old Continental National Bank and Trust company. When Continental Illinois was formed in 1929, Continental National was continued in existence for legal reasons in connection with administration of its trusts. These reasons no longer exist and Continental Illinois will administer trusts remaining. No capitalization or distribution of stock was involved.

Walter J. Cummings, chairman, told stockholders the bank was in a strong financial condition. He said gross earnings were 3 million dollars larger last year than in 1943 chiefly because of an increase in interest earned.

After the stockholders' meeting directors announced several promotions among the personnel.

Trust Division Advances Four.

Allan B. Hussander was moved up from secretary to vice president in the trust department; Paul C. Butcher, a second vice president, was elected secretary, and Carl D. Bergstedt and Peter J. Laninga were named assistant secretaries.

In the commercial banking department Tilden Cummings, Frederic A. Curtis, Robert A. Daly, Osmond A. Jackson, Paul E. Miller, Wilfred E. Resseguie, and Frederick B. Stocker Jr., all assistant cashiers, were promoted to second vice presidents.

New assistant cashiers elected were Sidney A. Barclay, Einar N. Engebretson, Arthur B. Henderson, Arthur J. Hercher, George F. Kernan, Harold F. Koetke, and Louis H. Severin. Walter J. Blacklock, assistant cashier in the foreign department, was made a second vice president.

Stock Average Declines First Time in Week

New York, Jan. 12 (AP).—The stock market today declined on the average for the first time this week. Selective advances were well distributed, but rails and many industrial leaders lost fractions to more than a point.

The extended drive to the highest average prices since 1937 tended to inspire additional profit cashing on the belief the list was exceptionally vulnerable to bearish news. Numerous stop loss orders in the carriers helped depress this group. Armament rated issues again had to contend with good war news, notwithstanding the announced brisk expansion of military production. Individual situations were helpful, as was the knowledge that vast amounts of idle funds were seeking employment.

The market retained breadth and 965 issues were traded. Transfers totaled 1,745,310 shares, compared with 2,212,920 yesterday.

RAIL BONDS WEAKEN.

New York, Jan. 12 (AP).—Leading rail groups declined in today's bond market, but some individual carriers extended advances to reach new highs for the last several years. Transactions totaled $18,109,300, against $23,308,400 yesterday.

Reflecting heaviness in many loans of Baltimore and Ohio, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, New Haven and Seaboard Air Line, the Associated Press rail average dipped 0.2 to 98.5, first decline since late December.

CHICAGO PRICES SAG.

Prices were lower and turnover decreased to 51,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Active stocks included Wisconsin Bankshares, which closed up ⅝ at a 1944-'45 peak of 12⅝; Chicago corporation common, up ⅛; Asbestos Manufacturing, unchanged, and Peabody Coal, down ⅜. A newly listed issue, Admiral corporation, closed at 11 in its initial trading.

STRIKE CURTAILS LIGHT, POWER IN CLEVELAND AREA

Cleveland, O., Jan. 12 (AP).—War plants, heeding appeal from Cleveland Electric Illuminating company, voluntarily curtailed use of electric power tonight in the wake of a strike of 400 CIO coal passers and maintenance men which threatened paralysis of the community's industrial and transportation facilities.

The company reported at 11 p. m., central war time, curtailment "is steadily progressing" and that within one hour industrial kilowatt consumption was reduced 212,000 kilowatts to a load of 370,000 kilowatts, 30 per cent below normal.

The utility warned that operation of its power plants might stop "at any moment" and necessitate immediate suspension of service to many of its 357,000 industrial and domestic consumers. No reason for the strike was given.

LARGE POST-WAR PLANE BUILDING HELD ESSENTIAL

If the United States is to maintain an efficient peace time air force, capable of meeting any challenge, the aircraft industry must be aided in keeping up efficient large scale production methods by the placement of substantial military orders after the war, Francis A. Callory, vice president of Consolidated Vultee Aircraft company, said yesterday.

At a luncheon meeting of the Executives' club in the Hotel Sherman, Callory said that the aircraft industry should be steadily engaged in "normal military output" during peace time.

American Car to Build 100 More Hospital Units

New York, Jan. 12 (AP).—American Car and Foundry company today announced it had received additional orders for 100 specially designed hospital cars, 50 for the navy and 50 for the army.
